MOSCOW — Premier Aleksei N. Kosygin of the Soviet Union and President Nixon signed an agreement on space cooperation Wednesday, proclaiming a commitment by the two countries to carry out a docking of spacecraft in 1975.

Under the accord, American astronauts will be trained in the Soviet Union and Russians in the United States in preparation for the experiment, in which crews will visit each other in their linked craft.

The two agreements had been prepared in advance together with two others on medicine and environmental pollution signed Tuesday. But all four were hailed by the two sides as setting a favorable atmosphere for major pacts on trade and strategic arms yet to come during President Nixon's week-long stay here.

The President and his principal advisers, meanwhile, continued to meet with the Soviet leaders in what were described as "businesslike, open and constructive" discussions. The meetings, by the end of Wednesday, totaled about 15 hours.

Mrs. Nixon continued to follow her program of Moscow tours, which took her today to Moscow University, the crush of shoppers at the GUM department store on Red Square and, in the evening, to the circus.

Although an agreement on limitations of strategic arms, which has been under negotiation in Helsinki, Finland, is expected to be signed by Nixon in Moscow, Soviet and American spokesmen denied reports that the accord had been definitely completed.

However, the spokesmen confirmed that the two principal negotiators, Gerard C. Smith of the United States and Vladimir S. Semyonov of the Soviet Union, were flying here today from Helsinki. This was taken to mean that virtually all the technical details had been ironed out.

Wednesday's meetings between Nixon and the Soviet leaders, which began in the morning and extended into the evening, had been concerned mainly with European problems. The delegations were understood to be seeking mutually acceptable approaches to the long-planned European Security Conference, proposed by Moscow, and a mutual balanced reduction of forces in Europe now that West Germany's ratification of its goodwill treaties with Moscow and Warsaw had cleared the air.

The Soviet Union was believed continuing to press for holding the conference later this year, and has been urging participating nations, which include the European countries plus the United States and Canada, to convene a preparatory meeting in Helsinki, the Finnish capital.

The United States favors a European conference in principle and has said that the ratification of the West German treaties now opened the way for the preparatory stage of such a gathering. But Washington has also insisted that the conference be thoroughly prepared to insure concrete results.

Bremer Pleads Innocent To Federal Charges

BALTIMORE (AP) — Arthur Herman Bremer, smiling and appearing at ease, pleaded innocent Wednesday to federal charges arising from the attempted assassination of Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace and the wounding of three other persons at a political rally May 15.

Making his first public appearance since the night of the shootings, the 21-year-old unemployed busboy from Milwaukee replied in a firm voice to formal arraignment questions asked by Chief Judge Edward S. Northrop in the 16-minute hearing in U.S. District Court.

The defendant told Northrop his name and age, that he understood the four charges against him and that he had attended college "one year-plus."

The formal plea was entered by Benjamin Lipsitz, the court-appointed attorney, as Bremer stood before the bench in the company of four guards.

Bremer, also facing state charges, was named Tuesday in a federal indictment alleging the shooting of Wallace and a Secret Service bodyguard, Nicholas J. Zarvos.

Specifically he is charged with shooting a presidential candidate, assaulting a Secret Service agent, bringing a .38-caliber pistol from Wisconsin to Maryland and using the weapon to commit a felony.

Judge Northrop gave Lipsitz 30 days to file motions, half the time the lawyer had requested. The judge said the government would then have five days to respond, after which he would hold a prompt hearing and set a trial date "as expeditiously as possible."

U.S. Atty. George Beall said after the arraignment that he was considering asking the court to order Bremer to undergo a psychiatric examination.

Lipsitz, who declined to answer any questions, lost two attempts Wednesday to get a reduction in the $200,000 bail under which Bremer is being held in tight FBI security at the Baltimore County Jail in suburban Towson.

Security at the downtown federal courthouse was tight. About 80 newsmen and spectators filling the court seats had to undergo electronic searches before entering and were required to remain seated while a phalanx of FBI agents and deputy marshals moved Bremer in and out of the room.

After the hearing the defendant was quickly taken down to a basement loading dock, placed in a Baltimore City police paddy wagon and whisked back to the Towson jail, from where he had been brought sometime before dawn.

No date has been set for arraignment of Bremer on state charges contained in four identical-count indictments returned Tuesday by the Prince Georges County grand jury.

The federal charges could bring a maximum aggregate sentence of 40 years in jail and a $30,000 fine. Because some of the state charges are common law offenses, there is no set penalty.

Senate Passes $21.3 Billion Compromise Higher Education Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate passed 63 to 15 Wednesday the $21.3-billion higher-education bill containing antibusing riders designed to slow down school desegregation efforts.

The compromise bill would set up the most far-reaching programs ever advanced to aid the nation's colleges and their students.

The overwhelming vote sent the measure to the House where opposition against it is strong.

In the end, many Southern Democrats voted for the bill even though they considered the antibusing provision too weak.

Several liberals, on the other hand voted against the measure. They said it is a landmark education aid bill but viewed the busing riders as strong enough to cause real damage to school desegregation.

The major antibusing rider in the bill would require, until Dec. 31, 1973, a stay of all federal district court busing orders until all appeals had been exhausted.

Southerners said this would give them some relief. Civil rights advocates insisted, however, that it is unconstitutional and that the courts would so hold. But they said it would bring many frivolous appeals in an effort to get stays.

One of the other busing provisions would prohibit use of federal funds for busing to desegregate a school system unless the local district asked for money for this purpose. Even if such a request were made, the funds could not be granted if the busing were over such a great distance as to harm the child or if the child were moved to an inferior school.

The third rider directs federal officials not to require or induce local districts to spend state or local funds for such busing unless it is required by the Constitution.

District Attorney Issues Directive To Enforce Pennsylvania Blue Laws

Warren County District Attorney William Morgan said Wednesday his office will be enforcing Pennsylvania Blue Laws, which he reminds, are still on the books.

Morgan said he has received numerous complaints about Sunday openings of larger retail dry goods establishments and large food stores. He noted that food stores that employ over 10 persons are not legally permitted to sell on Sundays, and that there's an absolute ban on Sunday openings for any retail outlet selling jewelry, furniture, clothing, luggage, etc., unless a religious belief causes the merchant to remain closed some other day of the week.

The district attorney has issued a directive to Sheriff D.E. Allen Jr. to make arrests this Sunday, May 28, for violations of the Blue Laws.

McGovern, Buoyed By Two Victories, Now Ready To Battle Humphrey In Calif.

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Political Writer

Sen. George McGovern carried the boost of a double primary victory into his California campaign confrontation with Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey Wednesday. But the Minnesota senator said his rival's momentum isn't going to win the big test on June 6.

McGovern, the winner by whopping margins in Oregon and Rhode Island primaries Tuesday, took up his California campaign in Sacramento. He pledged top appointments by a McGovern administration for Mexican-Americans, the state's largest minority group. McGovern said there would be a Spanish-speaking American in his Cabinet and an appointment to the federal bench in California for a Mexican-American.

In Silver Spring, Md., Gov. George C. Wallace got word in his hospital room Wednesday that he had finished second in the Oregon primary. "Oh, that's great," he said.

Later, he talked to newsmen for the first time since he was shot at a campaign rally in Laurel, Md., on May 15, and said he is "sorry it has to end this way."

"There won't be any more speeches for you fellows," he said.

But he said, "The campaign is not over or anything like that."

Without the candidate, the Wallace campaign went on. Television and radio advertisements, recorded before the shooting, were used to bid for Wallace votes in both Oregon and Rhode Island.

The same pattern is likely in California, where Wallace managers are planning a write-in campaign for the Alabama governor.

That will be an exercise in political psychology; off the ballot, Wallace can't win, and the victor takes all 271 votes in California.

That makes California pivotal for McGovern, who now commands about one-third of the 1,509 votes it will take to choose a nominee at the Democratic National Convention, and for Humphrey, battling to overtake him.

Humphrey said no matter what happens in California, both he and McGovern will be candidates at the convention.

McGovern's number now is 497½. He gained 34 votes with his Oregon primary victory, 22 in Rhode Island, and 11 more in Missouri Democratic conventions Tuesday.

Wallace is second with 323, Humphrey third at 295½.

Humphrey wound up third behind Wallace in Oregon, and third behind Sen. Edmund S. Muskie in Rhode Island. He said he hadn't lost anything because he hadn't tried in those states, concentrating everything on California.

He did make one brief campaign visit to Rhode Island a week ago. McGovern didn't campaign there at all, but his organization was formidable.

President Nixon won overwhelmingly in Republican primaries, with 88 per cent of the vote in Rhode Island, 83 per cent in Oregon.

Peace Movement Gathers Momentum; IRA Defies It

LONDONDERRY, Northern Ireland (AP) — A peace movement in Northern Ireland gathered momentum Wednesday. But the outlawed Irish Republican Army defied demands from a growing number of its Roman Catholic supporters for an end to the violence.

"The shooting goes on," the IRA declared in its barricaded stronghold here.

Hopes for a cease-fire have spread to Belfast from this key city, where war-weary Catholic women sparked a "stop the killing" protest two days ago.

British officials, however, were fearful of desperation moves by the IRA and expressed little hope for an eventual halt to the shooting and bombing.

The British army reported no incidents since early Wednesday when a 22-year-old Catholic mechanic was killed by gunmen at the door of his Belfast home.

The bombings that wrecked stores in the province's capital Tuesday ended in the night.

The peace call was sounded in the IRA's "Free Derry" citadel here, where the gunmen rule the Catholic Bogside and Creggan sectors behind guarded barricades and trenches.

More than 200 women, angered over the killing of a Londonderry-born British soldier by the IRA's Marxist Official wing, demanded the guerrillas stop the shooting.

The women, joined by 2,000 more fist-shaking protesters, shouted down IRA commanders who refused to put down their guns.

The demonstrators offered a six-point plan calling for a truce in the IRA bastion in return for a British guarantee that troops and police will not enter during the cease-fire.

Wallace Speech-Making Over But He'll Be At Convention

SILVER SPRING, Md. (AP) — "I'm sorry it wound up this way. There won't be any more speeches for you fellows," Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace apologized to reporters in his first meeting with them since he was shot at a campaign rally last week.

But the Democratic presidential aspirant, who had said he would campaign in a wheelchair if necessary, was elated with his second-place finish in the Oregon primary Tuesday. "Oh, that's great," he said when awakened and told of the primary results early Wednesday.

Although he indicated his speechmaking is over for this campaign he is expected to be at the Democratic National Convention in July at Miami Beach.

Although apparently resigned to a largely inactive role himself, Wallace made it clear he still views himself as a viable candidate. He said "The campaign is not over or anything like that."

Aides have indicated that if his physical condition prevents appearances at rallies or similar active participation, Wallace still may be able to make tapes for television and radio broadcast.

His press aide, Billy Jo Camp, told newsmen Wednesday afternoon that the governor's reference to winding up referred to the Maryland campaign.

Reporters admitted to Wallace's room were barred from asking him questions about the assassination attempt.

Wallace, paralyzed from the hips down at least temporarily, is not expected to be out and about for three to five weeks more.

Meeting with reporters, Wallace talked in a huskier than normal voice.

"I feel pretty good for a man who got shot four or five times," said Wallace. "It will take time to get over it."

Asked if he wanted to go home to Alabama, Wallace replied: "You always want to be home, but I want to be here the proper length of time."

There are reports that Wallace will be transferred soon to a Birmingham hospital where a second operation will be performed to remove a bullet from his spine.

Allegheny National Forest Announces Rec Area Fees

Effective this Friday the Allegheny National Forest will begin collection of fees at nine designated recreation areas on the forest. Although rates for this year are comparable with last season, this year's charge system will differ from previous programs which involved the use of the annual Golden Eagle Passport to enter the Forest's facilities and other federal recreation areas.

In short, the Golden Eagle Passport is out this year for Allegheny National Forest unless, says Ralph H. Freeman, supervisor, Congress acts soon to renew the pending revision to the Land and Water Conservation Fund Act. In that event, he said, there is a slim chance the ANF could resume the Golden Eagle Passport later in the season.

The 1972 daily fees for the nine designated recreation charge areas are as follows:

Buckaloons: Boat launch, $1 per car. Family camping, $2 per campsite. Group camping, reservation only*, and picnicking, $1 per car.

Dewdrop: Family camping, $2 per campsite.

Kiasutha: Swimming, $1 per car. Boat launch, $1 per car. Family camping, $3 per campsite, and picnicking, $1 per car.

Kinzua Beach: Swimming and/or picnicking, $1 per car.

Loleta: Swimming, $1 per car. Family camping, $2 per campsite. Group camping, reservation only*, and picnicking, $1 per car.

Red Bridge: Family camping, $2 per campsite. Twin Lakes (under construction, will reopen approximately July)—Swimming, $1 per car. Family camping, $2 per campsite. Group camping, reservation only*, and picnicking, $1 per car.

Willow Bay: Boat launch, $1 per car. Family camping, $2 per campsite, and picnicking, $1 per car.

Beaver Meadows: Family camping, $1 per campsite.

*Fees established for group camping at Buckaloons, Loleta and Twin Lakes depend on size of group. A $5 minimum applies in each case. Reservations for group camping should be made directly to the district rangers at Sheffield, Marienville or Ridgway.

Injuries Minor; Car Totaled

This 1967 Chevrolet coupe was totaled $1,000 in an early morning accident Wednesday on Weiler rd. Conewango Township Police Chief James Tridico, who investigated, said the auto, driven by Norman R. Jefferson, 20, of Mason's Mobile City, Warren, was traveling east when it went out of control, struck a culvert on the east side of the road, continued over 179 feet along a 10-foot embankment and hit a number of rocks before coming to a stop. Jefferson and a passenger, Richard Hoffmann, 22, of 600 Follett Run rd., Warren, suffered scratches, bruises and abrasions and later went to the hospital on their own for treatment, Tridico said. Tracer Bullet Factory Explodes; Five Killed

KILN, Miss. (AP) — A series of explosions leveled a tracer-bullet loading facility at a military ammunition plant Wednesday, killing five women and setting off fires in the woods dotted with small ammo storage sheds.

A civil defense official from Biloxi, Wade Guice, said five bodies had been taken from the explosion area and no other persons were missing. No identities were available immediately.

Officials said 140 other workers on the grounds at the time were unhurt.

Everybody was ordered out of the area, including firemen, when flames licked near a metal drum packed with 40 pounds of lead detonate, which was described as more powerful than nitroglycerine.

Fire-fighting units from nearby towns, state and county police officials, and a truckload of Seabees from Gulfport were lined along the blacktop road about a half-mile from the plant, which is located in the Mississippi village of Kiln. It is adjacent to the NASA test facility where Saturn rockets once were tested, about 20 miles from the Gulf of Mexico.

The plant, operated by Ingram Industries Inc., makes tracer bullets and flares and has been under government contract to manufacture 40mm cannon shells.

There were four main loading buildings at the 60-acre facility. They were widely separated and made of corrugated metal. The blast obliterated one of them and knocked down trees around it for about a 10-acre area.

The piney woods surrounding the manufacturing area contained numerous storage sheds where the completed ammunition was kept temporarily.

Cause of the blast was not known.

Officials said the buildings and grounds represented an investment of about $1 million.

Ralph Nader Puts Skids Under Snowmobile Safety

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Ralph Nader task force Wednesday called snowmobiles noisy, dangerous and destructive. They proposed limits on snowmobile production and regulations on noise and safety features.

"The time has come to call this industry to account for the damage it has done, and to set standards to prevent future damage," said the task force report, prepared by five members of the Center for Auto Safety.

The National Safety Council reported 102 persons were killed in snowmobile accidents two winters ago. The Nader report said one in 10 snowmobile accidents is fatal, compared to a 1 in 26 ratio for automobiles.

The report, written by a young Cornell University graduate engineering student, said manufacturers have failed to design in safety and must share responsibility for the damage and deaths.

The International Snowmobile Industry Association in Minneapolis declined comment until officials can read the report.

A spokesman for Outboard Marine, which makes the Evinrude and Johnson snowmobiles, praised the Nader report's recommendations on noise control and safety devices.

The report cited evidence of environmental damage: A U.S. Bureau of Land Management report that the noise drives animals away from wintering areas; a University of Minnesota researcher's finding that the machines kill small burrowing mammals by packing the snow, and a Michigan researcher's conclusion that the same packing also destroys perennial plants.

Canadian tests of a snowmobile showed its noise level to be as high as 113 decibels, enough to damage hearing after a few minutes. The task force proposed restricting noise levels to 82 decibels next year and 73 decibels the following year.

Da Nang Bridge Blown; Communists Hit Elsewhere

SAIGON (AP) — Communist-led forces blew up the main highway bridge on the northern outskirts of Da Nang and also struck hard to the south of the port city, forcing government troops to abandon two outposts in the Que Son valley under heavy fire, military sources reported Thursday.

The sources said at least 30 civilians were killed and 30 to 40 more were wounded by enemy shell fire.

On the central highlands front, North Vietnamese forces bombarded the Kontum City area with 100 rockets, the heaviest shelling attack around the city during the enemy's two-month offensive. Field reports said at least six Vietnamese were killed and three wounded.

Fighting also was reported on the outskirts of Kontum City, ranging from 2½ miles north to 6½ miles west. Field reports said 80 North Vietnamese troops were killed while South Vietnamese losses were 12 men killed and 47 wounded.

In the air war, the U.S. Command reported six American aircraft lost and 14 crewmen missing in the bombing campaign over North Vietnam and in support of Saigon's counter-blow north of Hue. Another U.S. aircraft went down near besieged An Loc and both crewmen are missing, the command said.

South Vietnamese marines raiding enemy-held territory north of Hue pushed for a linkup in northernmost Quang Tri Province in hopes of upsetting any plans by the North Vietnamese to attack the old imperial capital.

A dozen U.S. B52 strategic bombers dropped 300 tons of bombs on North Vietnamese troop concentrations and staging areas 30 to 35 miles northeast of Saigon on the southern edges of War Zone D, a longtime enemy base.

The Saigon command reported heavy fighting on the southern front about three miles southwest of An Loc.

Identity Of Child Revealed

The body of a four-year old girl exhumed Tuesday from an unmarked grave in a field on Kidder rd. in Freehold Twp. was identified Wednesday by State Police at the Warren substation as that of Autumn Diane Will, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence A. Will of RD 2, Waterford, Pa.

Autumn, who had been killed on May 14, 1972 in Ft. Dodge, Iowa when she allegedly ran in front of a car, had been brought back to Pennsylvania by her parents for burial on a farm owned by Lawrence Will's father. It is believed the owner refused permission for the burial and the body was kept in the trunk of the fathers' car until Sunday when it was buried in the field grave.

Iowa State Police are seeking the operator of the car that allegedly struck and killed the child. An autopsy has been ordered on the girls' body.

The Wills are also parents of a six-year old son, police said.

Seven Winners Reported In County

The winning number in this week's Pennsylvania Lottery is 4-2-5-9-4-1. Seven winners were reported Wednesday evening by State Liquor Stores in Warren, Youngsville and Sheffield. Of these, six were $40 winners and one, at Warren, a $100 winner.

If your ticket matches the winning ticket exactly you win $50,000. If your ticket matches the final five figures, you win $4,000 and you would win $400 if your ticket matches the last four digits on this week's winning number. Should your ticket match the final three digits, you go home with $40.

Tickets ending in -1 and -41 qualify for the next semifinal millionaire drawing.

But all is not lost if your ticket this week does not happen to fall into any of the above $-happy categories. There are consolation prizes ranging from $1,000 to $40, and this is how they run: If your ticket matches the first five digits of this week's winner you pick up $1,000. If you can match the middle four numbers you win $100 and if your final four digits are 5-9-4-2 you win $40, and if your final four numbers are 5-9-4-0 you also win $40.

Cash winners should take their tickets to the nearest State Liquor Store for verification. A check for the amount won will be mailed from Harrisburg. Winners must claim their prizes within one year of the drawing date.

Millionaire qualifiers should watch this paper for the results of the next semifinal millionaire drawing.

Of The Unknown Soldier in the Alexander Gardens next to the Kremlin's red-brick wall.

He then conferred for about two hours with the Soviet leaders on the European question. In the talks, which were held in St. Catherine's room of the Great Kremlin Palace, the president was joined by Secretary of State William P. Rogers, Henry A. Kissinger, Nixon's adviser on national security affairs, and Martin J. Hillenbrand, assistant Secretary of State for European affairs.

On the Soviet side, Leonid I. Brezhnev, the party chief, President Nikolai V. Podgorny and Kosygin were joined by foreign minister Andrei A. Gromyko, Anatoly F. Dobrynin, the Soviet ambassador in Washington, and Andrei M. Aleksandrov, Brezhnev's foreign policy adviser.

After several hours of consultations with his staff, Nixon participated in the signing ceremony of the two agreements, and later was driven to Brezhnev's country residence west of Moscow for another round of discussions.

Mrs. Nixon, in her morning visit to the skyscraper building of Moscow University, was shown around a mineral collection in the 27th-floor geology museum and several display rooms of the geography museum on the 24th floor, where maps with flashing lights show the distribution of this vast nation's natural resources and economic development projects.

The afternoon shopping tour took Mrs. Nixon through the crowds of shoppers at the GUM store, where she bought several scarves, ranging in price from a small, white flowered scarf for 7.85 rubles ($9.46) to a black, lace scarf for 57.60 rubles.

"These are for the girls, they love scarves," Mrs. Nixon said to a flock of reporters and photographers, referring to her daughters, Tricia and Julie.

Wednesday's space agreement, providing for the docking of a United States Apollo spacecraft and of a Soyuz craft of the Soviet Union, derived from a preliminary accord first reached in October, 1970. Joint working groups since then have been discussing some of the technical problems involved in developing compatible rendezvous and docking systems.

It was disclosed Wednesday that the project directors for the joint space mission would be Glynn S. Lunney, an official of the Manned Space Center of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration of the United States, and Konstantin D. Bushuyev, a corresponding member of the Soviet Academy of Sciences. This was Bushuyev's first public identification as a Soviet space scientist.

U.S. spokesmen, apparently concerned over possible American opposition to more space expenditures pointed out that the joint mission would make use of an existing Apollo module and a Saturn rocket left over from the Apollo program. The additional cost to the United States was estimated at $250,000.

Young Cyclist Hospitalized

A nine-year old Warren boy cyclist struck a moving car at the intersection of Parker st. and Lincoln ave. at 3:30 p.m. Wednesday and was admitted to Warren General Hospital suffering with abrasions and lacerations, said Warren Borough police who investigated.

According to the report, David Hanson of 210 Grant st., Warren, was riding his bicycle west on Lincoln ave. and failed to stop at the intersection with Parker st. and struck a car in the intersection operated by Cynthia D. Bane, 29, of Box 591, Warren.

Skyjackers Take Over South African 727 Jet

BLANTYRE, Malawi (AP) — Two men hijacked a South African jetliner Wednesday, let most of the 64 passengers and crew off at a refueling stop in Salisbury, Rhodesia, and then landed here—apparently trying to decide where to go next. The plane was surrounded by a police guard.

The plane was taken over shortly before it reached Johannesburg on a nonstop flight from Salisbury by two men identified as of Lebanese descent. They threatened the pilot with guns and dynamite, telling him to fly either to the island republic of Malagasy or the British-controlled Seychelles Islands, but he apparently convinced them he could not land at the Indian Ocean islands after dark.

Blantyre is only a short hop from Salisbury over a part of Mozambique.

The Boeing 727 stood at the end of a runway at Chileka Airport. Authorities said no one aboard had been harmed.

The two men held four crew members and five male passengers as hostages, all believed to be South Africans.

There were unconfirmed reports the plane would be refueled and ordered to Dar es Salaam, Tanzania.

Education

the bill would guarantee every student a basic $1,400 annual grant minus his expected family contribution.

In addition, the bill would continue all the present student aid programs.

The entire student aid package would be financed at a total of $7.5 billion for 1972-75 under the bill. In addition, it would authorize $6.8 billion of insured loans over the period.

The three-year 1973-75 total of general grants to all colleges and universities would be $2.1 billion. These payments would be tied to the number of students in each institution who were receiving federal assistance.

The bill contains a $2-billion, two-year authorization for federal grants to aid school districts confronted with desegregation problems, providing they take positive steps in the direction of integrated schools.

Firemen Active

Though Warren Borough fire engines were active Wednesday, the occasion was not one of an emergency nature. With the onset of good weather, several men and pieces of equipment conducted some schooling exercises at the Warren Borough Sewage plant on the town's south side.

Two pneolator calls to 833 W. Fifth ave, during the preceding 24 hours were the only other activities reported by the department.

Pleasant Township firemen responded to a grass fire at 1902 Pleasant rd. at 3:25 p.m. Damage was said to be minimal.

Fire Damage Slight

Fire, of undetermined origin, did some damage to the roof of the Allen Lindell residence on Lander rd.. Russell area, at about 1:30 p.m. Wednesday. The Lander VFD, aided by the Russell department, was at the scene with about 30 men, three tank trucks and one pumper to extinguish the blaze that apparently was confined to the attic section of the home. The Sugar Grove VFD stood by at the Lander fire hall during the hour or so the Lander firemen were at the scene. (Photo by Mansfield)

KDVB Discusses Publications, Hears Reports Of Meetings

The board of directors of the Kinzua Dam Vacation Bureau met to consider a long agenda that included reports of revised and new informational publications, new and supplemental state matching funding, as well as reports of local, regional, state and federal meetings and activities related to travel development and promotion.

Copies of the revised Kinzua Country Map & Directory were distributed. These feature KDVB members' business accommodations and attractions. A new Kinzua Country booklet is in the final stages of production and will be printed in the near future.

It was reported that the Conewango Improvement Association, jointly sponsored by the KDVB, has progressed to the point where by-laws have been adopted and directors chosen. Specific projects have been listed for the new board to consider at their June 5 meeting.

Bob Holmes and Bob Dilks reviewed the progress of the predator fish sample project and they noted that within the past months news releases had been sent to newspapers and outdoor magazines in a five-state area telling of the project and urging fishermen to cooperate so that future fishing would benefit.

Catherine Christy, a director from Tidioute, recounted meetings in Harrisburg, Port Allegany and Meadville and revealed increasing emphasis toward regionalizing promotional efforts.

Charles Tranter and Bob Dilks, representing organizations of the four-county region, appeared at Senate and House hearings in Washington, D.C. to seek additional funding for needed projects in the Allegheny Reservoir area.

A limited number of maps plotting all campgrounds will be prepared for distribution. Personnel of the Forest Service, the KDVB and regional leaders have been working on the regional map. Key information centers in a five-county area that includes N.Y. State will receive them.

Progress on the Outdoor Historical Drama plan was reviewed as were plans for the Three Flags Ceremony at Crescent Park, Warren, on May 29. A band concert will be held there at 3:30 p.m. that day.

Richard Curtin, Sheffield; Harold Beach, Scandia Mountians Area; and Catherine Christy, Tidioute, gave brief locality reports and Lynne Myers of Youngsville reported that a special study was to be made by the state health department this summer on the Brokenstraw.

Also attending were: Jack Ewers, U.S. Army Corps of Engineers; Ralph Freeman, Allegheny National Forest; Richard Danzig, Warren County Chamber of Commerce; James Marshall, Warren County commissioner and Russell Hanson and Paul Harrington.

Defense Rests Case In Angela Davis Trial

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP) — The defense in the Angela Davis case rested its case Wednesday after calling 12 witnesses in three days and declining to call Miss Davis to testify in her murder - kidnap - conspiracy trial. The prosecution, which had called 95 witnesses over seven weeks, said it probably would present a few rebuttal witnesses to answer the defense's case.

The surprise witness at the end of the defense presentation was Soledad Brother Fleeta Drumgo. The convict, brought to court in chains, testified that he knew of no plan to invade Marin County Civic Center in efforts to free him and two other black inmates known as the Soledad Brothers.

Miss Davis is charged with engineering the alleged plot, which ended with the death of four persons in a shootout.

The last defense witness was Charlotte Gluck, a UCLA philosophy department clerk, who said she was snowed under with mail and harassing telephone calls when the university sought to fire Miss Davis for her Communist party affiliations in 1969. The defense has said Miss Davis, a former UCLA philosophy teacher, bought guns to protect herself against death threats during the controversy that led to her dismissal.

Attempted Suicide Investigated

OIL CITY— An attempted suicide in the Oil City Jail about 1 a.m. Tuesday is under investigation by police officials.

Gary Feroz, 19, of RD 1, Seneca, is listed in critical condition in the intensive care unit of Oil City Hospital, according to police authorities.

Police said Feroz, along with two other teenagers, was picked up at 11:15 p.m. Monday and all were charged with possession of malt beverage. Feroz, they added, was locked up for being under the influence and around 12:50 a.m. was given a cigarette by the desk man.

Three minutes later on a check of the cell, Feroz was found unconscious in a standing position, his belt around the bar and around his neck, police reported.

He was given mouth-to-mouth resuscitation by police officers and rushed to the hospital.

Three Shoplifters Nabbed By Police

Conewango Township police on Saturday apprehended three shoplifters at Jamesway in North Warren.

In the afternoon, Chief James Tridico filed charges against a 16-year-old female from Ohio. In the early evening, Lt. Richard Hegerty took the same action against two 10-year-old girls caught in the act. They were referred to juvenile authorities.

Blue Jay Satellite Closing After Two-Year Operation

OIL CITY —The Blue Jay satellite of the Venango County Area Vocational - Technical School will be closed by June 30, after having been in operation for two years.

Action to shut down the facility near Marienville was taken Tuesday night at a special meeting of the Vo-Tech operating committee.

Lack of sufficient funds to operate the vo-tech center through the next fiscal year was cited as the basis for the decision.

In the motion adopted Tuesday night, the vo-tech committee authorized the school's director and solicitor to notify the U.S. Forest Service that their agreement will be terminated the last of June.

Affected by this move will be a course on lumbering harvesting presently being conducted at the Blue Jay location.

The termination also means wiping out the program and camps that have already been set up for summer.

Archie Matha, Blue Jay coordinator said it was his understanding that when the Blue Jay satellite was taken over by the local vo-tech school, the state indicated it would provide funding for three years. Now with just two years of experience, state funds for a third year are not in sight.

One of the first responsibilities of the vo-tech staff will be to cancel programs and camping reservations already made for this summer.

Already committed to use the Blue Jay area are: International Human Ecology & Northwest Regional planning committees, May 25 and 26; In service teacher program on conservation ecology for the intermediate school unit, June 7, 8 and 9; A vocational and technccal disadvantage program, two weeks from June 12 to June 23; Justus Fund Summer program, three weeks from June 19 to July 7.

Five weeks of camping for 4-H, from July 10 to August 11; Future Farmers of America August 14 to 18; Aliquippa football camp, August 21 to 25 and Kane football camp, August 28 to Sept. 1.

Word has been received locally of the sudden death in her sleep, Tuesday night, May 23, of Mrs. William Lutterman in Albuquerque, N.M. She was the former Marge McKenney, an avid bridge player and frequent visitor in Warren at the home of the late Helen P. Rockwell. Her first husband, the late William O. McKenney, wrote a syndicated bridge column for many years. Mrs. Lutterman continued to write the column for a few years after his death.

Governor Milton J. Shapp has declared the week of June 12 to June 18 as Jazz Week in Pennsylvania and is encouraging all Pennsylvanians to turn their attention during the week to Pittsburgh's first jazz festival. Pittsburgh is the home of such jazz greats as Erroll Garner, Billy Eckstine, Ahmad Jama, Mary Lou Williams, Henry Mancini and Roy Eldridge. Programs include concerts, art exhibits, special events for schools, colleges and youth groups and will honor Roy Eldridge. Two nights of jazz will be presented at Civic Arena June 17 and 18. Proceeds from the festival will go to Selma Burke Art Center.

Archaeologists unearthing 2,500-year-old tombs on the volcanic island of Lipari off Sicily's northern coast have discovered what is believed to be Europe's oldest strong-operated puppet, the newspaper Messaggero has said. It said the terracotta puppet, a female figure painted in bright colors, was found in the tomb of a little girl. Scientists dated the tomb at about 2,500 years old or about the time Lipari was occupied by Greek settlers. A hole in the center of the puppet's head showed that it was operated by strings and scientists theorized the puppet's body may have been dressed with different clothes for different roles, Il Messaggero stated.

Shoots Self In Stomach; Listed Serious

CORRY —A Cambridge Springs man underwent emergency surgery at Union City Hospital Tuesday morning after he shot himself in the stomach while at Union City Dinor.

Hospital officials Wednesday said David Cowhick, 24, was listed in serious condition.

According to Union City Police Chief Paul Behan, Cowhick entered the dinor about 6:10 a.m. Tuesday and demanded service. The one waitress on duty was busy and Cowhick was not served immediately.

He demanded to be served again, officials said, and then pulled a .22 calibre revolver and shot a hole in the ceiling. He then turned the gun toward his stomach and fired again.

Behan said the bullet passed completely through Cowhick's body, through a window and was later found in the parking lot of the nearby A & P.

Officials said a truck driver took Cowhick to the hospital where he was rushed immediately into surgery.

Behan said Cowhick, an employe of Molded Fiber Glass Boat Co. of Union City, may have stopped at the dinor on his way to work. He added there was evidence of alcohol. and said Cowhick, "may have been up all night." It was known Cowhick had been having family problems, Behan said.

State police from the Corry substation assisted in the investigation.

What Else Is Practical?

A recent headline in this newspaper asked the question, "Is Landfill Practical?" This, basically, was the question presented to the Warren County Solid Waste Authority by officers of the Northwest Division of the Pennsylvania Federation of Sportsmen's Clubs which has lodged protests against locating a landfill on the lands of the Allegheny National Forest, and which was covered in an accompanying article.

We ask, is anything else practical?

While allowing that the recycling of solid waste materials, as advocated by the officers of the sportsmen's organization, would be the ideal disposal method, under present circumstances recycling would call for a degree of participation by the public that is beyond the expectations one can place in human nature. And it would place requirements on various industries in direct violation of the free enterprise system.

What homeowner wants to take on the responsibility of sorting waste materials into as many as five different categories? Or what taxpayer wants to foot the bill to have the sorting done by others? And what industry wants to be legislated into using a percentage of reclaimed materials when raw materials can be had for less?

When these questions are considered, it is reasonable to assume that recycling of our waste materials is still far off in the future. At least until technology has had a chance to catch up with our needs.

Incineration, the only other alternative to a landfill project, poses a far greater threat to the environment, and leaves behind a residual accumulation which still has to be disposed of in some manner.

It is fairly well established that until better means and methods for disposal of waste materials are developed, the landfill is the most practical answer to a problem that is "immediate" in this area.

We feel that the Warren County Solid Waste Authority is to be commended for its efforts in finding a location for a landfill that meets all state requirements, is in the least offensive location, and presents less of a threat to the environment than the "quick solution" that could have been had by employing incineration.

So, is a landfill practical? It certainly is! And we had better thank our lucky stars that such a suitable location for it is available in the county.

What Others Say

This summer may be a dark, hot one for Americans if experts' forecasts hold up. They are predicting numerous brownouts, or power failures. Thev are basing their predictions on an irrefutable fact—namely, that the demand for energy in this country is outrunning the supply.

According to latest figures of the Interior Department, the United States already consumes about 35 per cent of the world's energy. And the U.S. need for heat, light, and power climbs about four percent each year. This rate of consumption is expected to triple over the next 30 years.

Producers of energy are hard-pressed to keep pace with the astronomical growth in demand. But it is easy to see why: There is no single national energy policy. More than 60 federal agencies now have some say in the energy situation, resulting in too much confusion, conflict, and inefficiency.

Recently, President Nixon proposed that a Department of Natural Resources be established to eliminate so many fingers in the pie. And Secretary of the Interior Rogers C. B. Morton has been asking Congress to formulate an effective national energy policy.

Both proposals could alleviate the energy crunch over the long run. But the present dilemma demands immediate attention. Indeed some authorities recommend that for the summer, or longer, the use of energy be curbed and untapped domestic supplies of fuel be developed. Government officials and energy producers should heed their advice. —GRIT

The Readers Speak

A Particularly Silly Piece

Dear Sir:

The League of Women Voters is committed to truthful, objective facts in its presentation of information to its members and the public. Therefore, as President of the Warren Area LWV I must respond to the editorial, "Stay Separate, Ladies", which appeared in your paper, Friday, May 19, 1972.

Most important I must correct several inaccurate statements included in this particularly silly piece. The League of Women Voter delegates to the recent Convention did not "turn thumbs down on male membership", I know because I was there as a delegate and I may add so were some men visitors too!

1. The LWV National Bylaws provides for three types of membership:Voting members who are women citizens of voting age and enrolled in recognized local Leagues.

2. Associate members who are all other members enrolled in local Leagues, that is, women under voting age, non-citizens and MEN. They may take part in all League activities except that they may not vote on League business. Associate members receive local, state, and national bulletins.

3. Members-at-large who are members residing outside the area of a local League and are not enrolled in any local League. A member-at-large joins the state League or, if she lives abroad, the national League.

At the recent Convention a proposed Bylaws change would have given men the right to vote at League meetings. It was defeated after full discussion and debate and was definitely not an attempt to keep men out of the League as members.

One message to the public that cannot be stated too often is the message of open membership. No invitation is needed to join the League of Women Voters. All who subscribe to the purpose and policy of the League and pay dues are welcome, including of course, the writer of the editorial.

Sincerely yours

-s- Beatrice G. Segel,
President, LWV of Warren Area

Wallace's Prospects

By Wm F. Buckley Jr.

The headline reads: "Again a Gun Alters the Politics of the Republic," but in fact I do not see that this is the case. The alternatives for Governor Wallace have always appeared to be few. Mostly he is doomed to ineffectuality, like the assassin manque, who has given us a human tragedy, but has not in fact altered the politics of the republic.

What now can he do? Well, assuming that Governor Wallace were whole, what could he do? Let us postulate that the one inconceivable development is his nomination by the Democratic Convention. That was never possible. It would not have been possible if he had won every primary. George Wallace is a protest candidate, of overwhelmingly regional cast, distrusted by truly conservative Americans, and for good reason. George Wallace is a man who did touch pitch, and is forever defiled. The genealogy of his stand on busing and states-rights is suspect because of its segregationist animus.

John C. Calhoun could speak about the concurrent majority or about the doctrine of nullification out of a sense of respect for constitutional principle. George Wallace came around to his positions because he wanted a fancy argument for Jim Crow. It is true that he has changed his rhetoric, that the racialist lint is now almost all gone. But only one person can serve as president of the United States, and the country would simply not turn to a man with a past such as George Wallace's; nor are his qualifications otherwise remarkable. He is a great stump orator, period. He was never moving seriously into presidential contention.

Nor is it safe to assume that George Wallace could deliver his following. Everyone knows that personal political allegiances tend to be non-transferable. FDR discovered that, as did General Eisenhower. If George Wallace were to request his followers to work for the election of, say, George McGovern, it is by no means obvious that they would do as ordered to do. For one thing, Wallace would lose credibility. Notwithstanding the strange identity in the appeal of the two men to what one would suppose to have been irreconciliably disparate voters, George McGovern emerges as something on the order of the socialist candidate, and George Wallace's supporters are not, for the most part, socialist.

Wallace's popularity is related to his candor, to his refusal to accommodate. To suggest at this point to his followers that they vote now for the one man in Washington among presidential contenders most closely identified with the ideology of busing and the growth of the central omnipotent government is asking too much. Martin Luther King could not have got his followers to vote for Wallace, and Wallace can't get his to vote for George McGovern.

Or Hubert Humphrey, though the problem would be a lesser problem. No, either George Wallace will run on his own, as he did in 1968, or he will help Nixon. If he runs, it is not obvious whom he will hurt. A recent New York Times survey insists he would hurt Nixon most. The general assumption is that he would hurt the Democrat most, depriving him of critical support in some of the big cities, among blue collar workers in particular. The question is unresolved, and the fact that it is unresolved greatly diminishes Wallace's strength. If it were obvious that he could cost one or the other candidate the election, his strength would be greatly enhanced.

What Wallace probably could do is: guarantee the reelection of Richard Nixon. In order to make his backing even of Nixon credible, he would need to get from Nixon one or two headline-making promises. In the field of busing; something about taxation; and maybe something on law and order. Not too difficult, in fact, since there are many points of contact here that Mr. Nixon without ideological embarrassment could trot out and back with total sincerity. What he would be left with is the stigma of Mr. Wallace's support. There is a little of that left still around, enough as I say forever to disqualify Wallace himself for the presidency, but not to disqualify someone backed by Wallace for the presidency. This the assassin did substantially accomplish. It is in this sense only that he might prove in some way to have altered the politics of the republic.

Fraud Bill Weakened

By Mason Denison

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Syndicated Columnist Mason Denison has asked Secretary of Public Welfare Helene Wohlgemuth to express in her own words her reaction to the unprecedented move by the House of Representatives in approving legislation that would require the Legislature to approve all regulations proposed by the Department of Public Welfare — as a "control" over the department.)

By Mrs. Helene Wohlgemuth
Secretary of Public Welfare

HARRISBURG — Last week, as part of a "package deal" to pass a $54.1 million welfare deficiency appropriation, a coalition of House Republicans and rural Democrats rammed through a "control" bill which could take the teeth out of welfare department efforts to fight fraud.

Far from being a realistic control measure, the rider puts a stranglehold on the executive branch of government.

The House amendment, first proposed by Republican leaders last year, would chuck out all welfare regulations next January. Not only public assistance, but also mental health, nursing homes, and even personnel rules would then be subjected to a 90 day Legislative perusal. During the three months, the lawmakers could change the rules as they saw fit.

Given the number of welfare regulations, it's safe to assume the legislative branch would soon be doing nothing else.

And, as Berks County Democrat Russell J. LaMarca complained on the House floor, the welfare department would only be the beginning.

All this came about because the legislators tarried over replacing $69 million they sliced from the welfare budget last summer. Far from asking the Department to cut grants, however, legislative leaders warned the executive branch not to make such a serious decision by itself.

"They may have the authority", said House Appropriation Committee Chairman Martin P. Mullen, "but this is a policy decision which I think can only be made by the legislature".

"I think that the department would be in for severe criticism if they did this (changed the amounts of grants) on their own without the authority of the General Assembly", he told his colleagues in a December hearing.

Chairman Mullen: "I don't think the department would have the authority to do anything else but follow the wishes of the General Assembly. If we in fact insisted that they reduce the payment, I think they would have to do it. But I think they would be going way beyond their authority if they would do it arbitrarily or voluntarily without the consent of the General Assembly."

The lawmakers, then, knew the money would run out. In fact, they appropriated $16 million less this fiscal year to take care of 140,000 more persons at the same rate of payment!

The House-passed measure is not only an administrative boondoggle, but it is, I've been advised by Federal government attorneys,a violation of the Social Security Act which requires public assistance to be administered by a single state agency. By usurping the executive power, the legislature would threaten more than $600 million of federal funds now coming to Pennsylvania each year.

The bill runs into even thornier problems with the Pennsylvania constitution, which calls for a balance of legislative and executive powers. What the House would do is say to the Secretary of Welfare: here's your job, but you don't have the authority to do it!

We don't want to tell the legislature what they should do about welfare. The General Assembly already has the power to change specific rules or policy decisions. We just want to be able to do a job.

The task we've set out to do is difficult, but we've already come a long way. In the last two months, the public assistance rolls have dropped by 7500 persons — nearly a thousand a week. According to Auditor General Robert P. Casey, there have been 16 percent fewer errors and 20 percent less ineligibility this year than last.

This year, we are asking only one-fifth of the percentage increase in state funds for cash assistance that was requested in the last full year of the previous Administration.

Last week's House action would end that progress.

Second Kitchen Debate

By Mason Denison

WASHINGTON—It is highly unlikely that President Nixon will have a repeat of his famous kitchen debate in Moscow, but, if he does, I can't help thinking how different it might be from the last one.

I can just see the President and Brezhnev facing each other across a hot electric stove in the Kremlin.

"Mr. President," Brezhnev says, "you have many newspapermen with you on your trip."

"Yes," President Nixon replies. "The thing that makes the United States a great country is that we have freedom of the press."

"The thing that makes the Soviet Union a great country," Brezhnev says, "is we don't."

"Our system is better than yours because our newspapermen can write anything they want about their government," President Nixon says.

"Our system is better than yours," Brezhnev retorts, "because they can't."

"Off the record," Nixon says, "how do you do it?"

"We used to shoot them. But now is different. We feel someone criticizing the Kremlin has to be crazy. So we put him in insane asylum until he gets well."

"Do you mean to say that your administration has the authority to put anyone who criticizes you in an asylum?"

"Is correct. Communist system is perfect, so obviously anyone who says it isn't needs medical treatment."

"I wouldn't want it to get out of this kitchen," Nixon tells Brezhnev, "but I feel the same way when one of our press people criticizes our system."

"I know how you feel, Mr. President. Is important for strong government not to have opposition press."

"Tell me, Comrade Brazhnev. If one of your newspapers got hold of some top secret Kremlin papers and printed them on the front page, what would you do?"

"Is impossible any newspaper in Soviet Union would print secret Kremlin papers. If they did, paper would be closed, editors would be sent to labor camp in Siberia, reporters would be put in salt mines and man who gave such secrets to newspaper would be shot at dawn."

"Let me ask you this. If one of your columnists revealed in his column how you made your decision to support India in the Pakistan war, what would you do?"

"Is stupid question. We would take columnist to Lubianka Prison and attach electrical circuits to his body."

"Are you taking notes on this, Henry?" the President asks. "Comrade Brezhnev, what do you do about television commentators who give instant and critical analyses of your speeches?"

"Is no such thing in Soviet Union. Everything said on television is first cleared with us. Only loyal party members may work on TV. Is not same in your country?"

"Unfortunately not," the President says sadly. "Our television people can say anything they want to, and I can't do one thing about it."

"Why that's terrible!" Brezhnev says.

"You're telling me," Nixon says. "What about congress? Do you have any trouble with your congress when you want to do something for the good of the country?"

"Anyone in party who questions our policies is given job shoveling coal on Caucasian Electric Power Project. When our Communist Party Congress meets, I always get standing ovation."

"Comrade Brezhnev, the last time I was here I questioned your system as opposed to ours. But since I've been President, I see there is a lot to be said for how you do things here. I only regret Comrade Khrushchev is not still alive, so I can tell him I'm sorry."

ANF's Double Standard

Dear Sir:

I feel there is a situation regarding the abuse of a camping area that few people realize exists and it should be called to the attention of the public.

I live 12 miles south of Warren on Route 62 on the Allegheny River. Directly behind my home, used as a camping area, is the National Forest "Clark Run Area." Now it is very overcrowded. These people obtain camping permits free of charge and with no time limit. They move their campers in before Memorial Day and are here until long after Labor Day. Many of these campers only come to this area on weekends but their trailers are left there all summer thus depriving anyone else of the use of the area.

Starting this summer, the Forest Service is not allowing any camping in uncontrolled areas around the Kinzua Dam. Also, campers can only stay for two weeks in a controlled area. At the Clark Run area there is no fee charged and no time limit as to length of stay.

National Forest Supervisor Ralph Freeman informed me that the Clark Run Area is the only place in the National Forest where there is no limit on length of stay. I was told that these campers had a "sentimental" attachment for this area. I further inquired if the Forest Service had a dual set of standards for regulating camping in the National Forest, and to this I received no reply. I would think the people camping in places like Chapel Forks would also have sentiments attached to these areas.

On a major holiday weekend, the noise coming from this area makes it impossible for my family and our neighbors to get to sleep at night. I realize these people have the right to camp here, but what about the rights of the private property owner and taxpayer? I realize this is a very personal thing to me but I wonder how others would feel with a situation of this kind existing practically in their back yard.

I also wonder how the Forest Service can justify moving people out of other uncontrolled camping areas but yet allowing the condition at the Clark Run Area to exist. Compounding the error does not justify it.

I feel that any campers who have been moved out of uncontrolled areas should have reason to ask the Forest Service why, citing the Clark Run Area as an example of a dual set of standards governing camping in the National Forest.

Respectfully yours,
John M. Kostkas

A Promise Of Progress

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON— Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev, holding out a promise of progress at their Moscow meeting, related an anecdote to President Nixon on the eve of his departure.

The anecdote was part of the private message that Soviet ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin delivered to the President at Camp David.

Brezhnev had a favorite story, said Dobrynin, about the traveler who asked a grizzled, old Russian farmer how long it would take to walk to the next village. The farmer grunted that he didn't know. With a shrug, the traveler started off toward the village. But as he was striding away, the farmer called after him: "Fifteen minutes."

Surprised, the traveler retorted: "But you said you didn't know how long it would take me to reach the village."

"That was before I saw how big your steps are," said the old man.

Dobrynin, quoting Brezhnev, said the Communist party chief was satisfied from the advance steps that substantial agreements would be reached in Moscow to improve Russian-American relations. Brezhnev's message was that their meeting would not be merely "cosmetic"—a word that the President later repeated to the press to express his optimism about the Moscow outcome.

His optimism was based, however, on more than Brezhnev's encouraging message. The President also had on his desk an intelligence analysis suggesting that Brezhnev's personal prestige was on the line, that he needed to produce favorable results to justify the summit meeting.

Inside the Kremlin, apparently, Brezhnev had encountered harsh opposition to inviting Nixon to Moscow. The military-industrial faction, in particular, felt the summit meeting would undermine their relations with Hanoi just as the North Vietnamese were achieving victories with Soviet equipment.

The Russian marshals were anxious to share in the North Vietnamese victories and to gain an edge over the Chinese in Hanoi. They also wanted to exploit North Vietnamese displeasure over President Nixon's visit to Peking. This would be difficult to do, it was argued, if Nixon were also invited to Moscow.

The opposition to the invitation was so strong that Brezhnev had to invoke his personal authority to overrule the marshals. When the President mined Haiphong harbor, it strengthened the opposition and caused a crisis for Brezhnev. He had to exercise all his powers to keep the summit conference from being cancelled.

The intelligence analysis suggested, therefore, that he needs a successful meeting with Nixon to justify his insistence on going ahead with it.

Mafia Marketeers

Mafia-run companies with annual sales of $400 million are foisting off their products on the American housewife through some of the nation's best-known supermarket chains.

So entangled is the Mafia with the products, that their brand names should read "Cosa Nostra Cleaner" or "Crime Syndicate Suds." Im fact, they bear the labels of more than a dozen widely sold items.

What has happened is that the Mafia hoodlums have gained control of the companies making the products through intermediaries called "straws" or brokerage deals. The Mafia may also maintain strategically-placed employees within the companies.

Once the Mafia is in corporate control, its muscle men let the supermarkets know that the price of peace is to stock the mob's products prominently on the shelves.

The supermarkets, in a few cases, have resisted the threats of labor strife, arson and even murder which constitute the Mafia's favorite sales pitches.

More often, the retailers have caved in, giving the housewife products whose higher prices include the crime syndicate's cut.

To combat Mafia influence in the grocery business, Senate Commerce Chairman Warren Magnuson, D-Wash., will hold new hearings in June on some of the supermarket products. He has already produced public evidence that A and P was unsuccessfully pressured by the Mafia to carry a syndicate-controlled detergent.

In preparation for the new hearings, Magnuson's sleuths have worked incognito coast-to-coast. We have not named the supermarkets or products to avoid giving the hoodlums a chance to scurry for cover before Magnuson summons them to testify.

Footnote: Working with Magnuson to expose the Cosa Nostra commercial interests is Sen. Marlow Cook, R-Ky., an ex-judge.

National Guard Dwindles

With draft calls slackening off, the National Guard has fallen back on recruiting contests to keep up its ranks. Not only has the drive failed, but it appears to violate federal law.

The 113th Tactical Fighter Wing in Washington, for example, reported dismally in its newsletter that the guardsmen are still leaving faster than they're coming in.

Actually, the National Guard may want to reconsider its promises of cash and a Puerto Rican vacation for the winning recruiter-guardsman. Title 10 of the Federal Code clearly states that "no bounty may be paid to induce any person to enlist in the Armed Forces." When we queried the National Guard, they insisted the rule only applied to those coming in—not those bringing them in.

Mom Can't Drive After Paper Drive

The Warren County Humane Society may have some trouble raising volunteers, but not so with this pair of Jefferson School first graders. Joanna Goerlich and Donald Fink responded to a call for newspapers to be used at the Clarendon humane society shelter by gathering enough old papers to keep any normal pup busy for years. Donald's mother, Mrs. Donna Fink of 20 Conewango ave., underestimated the pair's ambition and said they could pile all the papers they found in her car and she would drive them to school for the kids. She later wisely changed her mind when she discovered a virtual truckload of newspapers weighing heavily on her auto's strained suspension.

Your Money's Worth

How To Avoid High Pressure Builders

By Sylvia Porter

You can get a real bargain by buying a house in a new development — if you buy in a properly designed and constructed development and if you know precisely what you are getting into before you sign any contract.

You can have a home with the privacy you yearn for and with areas in which your children can play safely — if you make sure that the development in which you buy is so planned that it prohibits fast traffic constantly whizzing by your house and that there are places set aside for playgrounds.

You can have a model house built to meet your special needs — and save money too — if you discuss your specifications in advance with the builder in charge and then negotiate the price according to what changes you have made.

BUT the housing development field is loaded with high pressure sales promoters. It is infested with builders whose smeared reputations would not stand up under your close scrutiny.

How, though, do you recognize the good, honest builder? What clues are there to the sleazy performer?

+Ask the builder whether he lives within the development — an exceedingly good sign if he does. For it means he is there to listen to buyers' grievances, he is willing to put himself at your mercy should you have a real gripe and be determined to track him down at any hour.

+Inquire whether or not the builder is a member of the National Assn. of Home Builders — no guarantee of, but definitely a clue to, his ethics. This is an association of reputable builders and his membership in the group would be another excellent sign of the builder's responsibility.

+Check the developer's Federal Housing Administration rating — a clue to how much you will get for your money. A below-average rating is less than 100 and an above-100 (up to 105) mark means that the developer is better than other local builders. Simply call the local FHA office to get this rating — and don't let the builder steer you away from doing so.

+Visit houses the developer has built previously to see whether they are well built and well landscaped. This is well worth your time, even if you have to take off a full day on a weekend to do so.

+Check the builder's reputation with the local Chamber of Commerce. You'll get stilted answers, but they'll be somewhat revealing. Check also with the local Better Business Bureau.

+Call the bank where the builder has his accounts, explain why you are inquiring about his reputation. Do the same with his major suppliers.

+Ask for — and get — a financial statement from the developer himself. His refusal to give you one would be a real red flag warning.

+Try to locate a couple of families or individuals who bought their present homes five or 10 years ago from the builder-developer from whom you are considering buying. Ask THEIR opinions on how the builder rectified construction errors and in general fulfilled his obligations. These opinions could be crucial to your correct judgment of the builder.

+Use your common sense about this period of the year in which you are seeing the model house if its landscaping is all completed. Do not be swayed by the magnificence of the blooming bushes, the flowering or gentle green trees. You are buying a house, not buying bushes and trees! Also look at the model house or the development when it's gray and raining as well as when it's bright and shining.

+Under no circumstances, permit yourself to be high pressured into a deal. Most salesmen can't help exerting at least some pressure on you — this is their trade. Most would instinctively try to push you into a contract by implying that another buyer is hot on the track of the house you are viewing and will take it tonight if you don't sign up first. Many a family has, in fact, jumped into a purchase of a not really suitable house just to keep it away from a competitor.

+While you're buying, also think about resale at some future date. You well may not want to or plan to remain in this development for more than a couple of years. Is the development in a good location, in a stable but progressive community? Is the layout of the house convenient and appealing?

+In sum, take your time and use your time wisely in reaching your decision — and then your purchase can truly turn out to be the best bargain in housing in 1972.

Free Shows Slated For Fair

The 1972 Warren County Fair will feature a variety of free shows every day, according to a decision made at the May meeting of the fair board.

Among the free attractions will be several horse shows, tractor pulls, ox pull and talent show. The filling and ascension of an 80-foot tall helium balloon will highlight the Friday and Saturday evening shows. A Warren area celebrity will ride in the balloon.

Outdoor stages placed across the fairgrounds will feature live entertainment every evening of the fair and there will be no admission charge.

A new entrance is being constructed to make driving easier and free parking facilities are being expanded this year.

The resignation of board member, Robert Jamison of Youngsville due to health reasons was accepted with regret. Speaking for the board, Robert Scott, president, expressed appreciation of fine service to the fair.

The Republican party was founded in 1854 in Jackson, Mich.

Miller Learning Center Dedicated At Edinboro

Formal dedication ceremonies were held last weekend at Edinboro State College for the Thomas R. Miller Research-Learning Center. Miller was a former president of the college.

Dr. Chester T. McNerney, president, gave the welcome address and a short introduction of the 12-year regime of the late Dr. Miller.

Dr. Thomas Miller II, son of the late president, introduced members of his family and explained that his father's deeds for the college were legion. He noted his father's interest in the development of a model campus school for training teachers.

NEW HEADGEAR FOR PHYSICIANS PROTECTS PATIENTS

A disposable hood has been developed for surgeons and doctors who prefer to wear beards, long sideburns, and longer hair styles. The hood completely covers the hair, and shields the neck and cheeks of the wearer, as well. According to American Family Practice, the new hood gives the patient greater protection against contamination from hair-harbored bacteria than a conventional surgeon's cap.

Can you afford NOT to buy tax-free municipal bonds?

Maybe tax-free income is unimportant to you. But . . . if you are interested in saving tax money, you could be interested in tax-free municipal bonds. They are exempt from all present federal income taxes and generally from local and state taxes in the state where issued. That is like money in your pocket! Take a look at the following table. It shows the return you would have to get on taxable investments to equal the tax-free yield of municipal bonds.

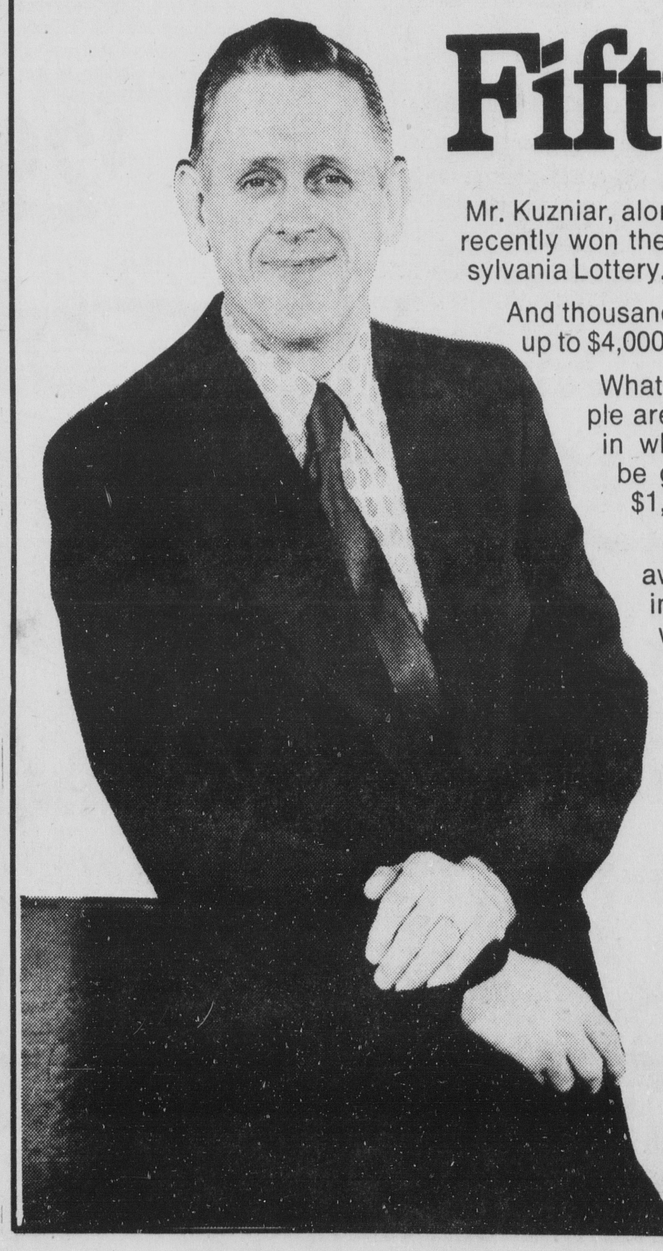
Stanley Kuzniar, from Farrell, Pa., had a grand week.



Fifty grand!

Mr. Kuzniar, along with seven other lucky Pennsylvanians, recently won the top weekly prize of $50,000 in the Pennsylvania Lottery.

And thousands more won cash prizes ranging from $40 up to $4,000.

What's more, every week thousands of people are qualifying for the Million Dollar Drawing in which the grandest prize of them all will be given away: $50,000 a year for 20 years, $1,000,000!

Each week there is new money to be given away and new people to win it. You can get in on the action simply by buying a 50¢ ticket wherever you see the Official green and white Lottery Keystone.

Who knows, next week could be a grand one for you.

It's a chance you've got to take.

The Gallup Poll

McGovern Trails By Slim Margin In East, West

By George Gallup

PRINCETON, N. J. — Although Sen. Hubert Humphrey holds a substantial lead over his nearest rival, Sen. George McGovern, among rank-and-file Democrats nationally, his margin over the South Dakota Senator is a slim four points in both the East and the Far West.

Humphrey's national margin over McGovern is due largely to his strength in heartland America — the Midwest and the South.

In the Midwest, Humphrey holds a commanding 19-point lead over McGovern, while in the South he holds a 23-point lead over his rival, as determined by a survey of Democrats asked to select their top nomination choice from a list of ten people.

Governor Wallace runs a distant third — behind Humphrey and McGovern — in all regions except the South. In the South, however, Wallace ties Humphrey for the lead with each man receiving 33 per cent of the vote of Democrats. McGovern with 10 per cent runs a weak third in this region.

Following is an analysis of the nomination choices of Democrats by key groups in the population. The results are based on the latest two surveys, which were combined in order to provide large enough sample bases for certain groups.

—Vote by Race—

Humphrey's current national lead over the top contenders for the Democratic nomination, in terms of his appeal among grassroots Democrats, is due in large measure to his popularity with Blacks.

Among Black Democrats, Humphrey is selected over McGovern by the ratio of seven-to-one.

Outside the South, for example, Humphrey's margin over McGovern is slim, 29 to 26 per cent, when Blacks are excluded from the sample. However, for the total population in this region, including both races, Humphrey has a wide 32 to 23 per cent lead.

The importance of the Black vote to Humphrey is also apparent in the South.

Among Southern white Democrats only, Humphrey is far outstripped by Wallace, 42 to 24 per cent. But when Blacks are included in the sample, the race is a virtual stand-off between Humphrey and Wallace.

Vote by Occupation—

Humphrey and McGovern run virtually neck-and-neck in most key occupation groups, with the exception of manual workers.

Humphrey is preferred by a large margin over McGovern among manual workers who identify themselves as Democrats, 34 to 15 per cent. The margin is somewhat less among skilled workers than among the unskilled.

—Vote by Education—

McGovern scores well with the better-educated Democrats while Humphrey's base of support is among the party faithful who have not gone past high school in formal education.

Democrats with a college background lean heavily to McGovern over Humphrey, 36 per cent to 22 per cent. On the other hand, a mere 9 per cent of Democrats with only a grade school education choose McGovern, compared to 39 per cent who pick Humphrey.

—Vote by Age—

Democrats under 30 years of age are about evenly divided between Humphrey and McGovern, while older Democrats, 50 and older, lean three-to-one to Humphrey over McGovern.

Following are the results in tabular form, based on the three most frequently selected aspirants:

Choices of Democrats (from list of 19 persons)	HHH	McGovern	Wallace
	Percent
East	28	24	14
West	28	24	10
Midwest	40	21	10
South	33	10	33
Outside South	32	23	12
South	33	10	33
Whites	28	21	22
Blacks	54	8	3
Whites outside South	29	26	13
Southern whites	24	10	42
Manual workers	34	15	19
Unskilled	37	12	17
Skilled	28	19	22
College background	22	36	10
High school	33	18	20
Grade school	39	9	20
Under 30 years old	27	25	18
30-49 years	31	21	18
50 & older	37	13	19

This analysis is based on interviews with 1317 Democrats out of a total sample of 3098 adults, 18 and older, reached in two national surveys conducted between April 21 and May 1. Interviews were conducted in person in more than 300 scientifically selected localities across the nation.

Each Democrat in the surveys was shown a card listing the names of ten leading candidates and asked the following question:

Which ONE of the people on this list would you like to see nominated as the Democratic candidate for President in 1972?

The national figures for the latest two surveys combined show Humphrey with 33 per cent, McGovern and Wallace each with 19 per cent; others and undecided, 29 per cent.

The latter of the two surveys, reported May 19, shows Humphrey with 35 per cent, McGovern with 20 per cent, and Wallace with 18 per cent.

The earlier of the two surveys showed Humphrey with 30 per cent, Wallace with 19 per cent, McGovern with 17 per cent.

Eberly, Hampson Join Probation Association

The annual meeting of the members and directors of the Warren County Probation Association was held recently in the Judge's Chambers of the Warren County Court House. Dr. Khlar McDonald president of the Association,announced that two attorneys, John Eberly and Robert Hampson had accepted positions on the board, replacing outgoing members S.Knox Harper and Scott Calderwood.

Dr. McDonald has accepted a third term as president of the association and will serve with his re-elected officers, Richard Huber, treasurer and Mrs. James Redding, secretary. Mrs. Helen Olson will continue her duties as assistant to the secretary and the treasurer.

In presenting her report for 1971, Mrs. Mary Holcomb, Probation Officer for Girls, noted there had not been a significant increase in referrals this past year, but that runaways continue to be the major offenders, with 16-year-olds responsible for most offenses. Shoplifting ranked high in offenses. At the present time, one girl is enrolled in the Job Corps program, two girls are in foster homes, one girl is at Odd Fellows Home in Meadville and one girl at Waynesburg Youth Development Center.

Juvenile Probation Officer Gary Phillips indicated there had been a considerable increase in referrals this year, jumping from 129 in 1970 to 151 in 1971. Again, the major osfenses for boys are larceny, burglary and malicious mischief. There has been a significant increase in larceny of motor vehicles, rising from 7 in 1970 to 22 in 1971. Also noted were more serious offenses committed, including assault with a deadly weapon, dangerous drugs and attempted arson. The age of offenders seems to be creeping down, he said with the youngest offender being only seven years of age. With a high percentage of offenders, there seems to be a breakdown in family structure at home, he indicated.

Considerable discussion centered around the report of Richard Huber, chairman of the committee investigating the feasibility of a detention home in Warren County. The report contained important details concerning the size, location, staff, controlling agencies and construction problems. It was voted unanimously by the members to authorize the committee to continue research and evaluation for this juvenile detention facility. The contribution letter to be mailed in 1972to Warren County residents interested in promoting improved probation in Warren County was approved for mailing in July. Mrs. Olson reported contributions of $15,775.23 in 1971, which included the remainder of the McLaighlin bequest of $14,540.23. Eighty individuals, five organizations, two commercial establishments, two churches and two PTA units, contributed in 1971.

Mrs. Olson noted that PTA participation was unusually low this year and that speakers from the association are available to the PTA units to point out the importance of the association.

Memorials were placed to Neil Culbertson, Glenn Werner, Carmine Tigani and Ray Goodwin. Board members and other contributors are encouraged to use these memorials for deceased friends.

SEAGOING DONATION

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (AP)— Kasidah II is newest addition to Texas A&M University's oceanographic fleet.

The 110-foot seagoing yacht, appraised at $175,000, was donated by Mrs. Jeannea A. Saunders of Corona Del Mar, Calif.

Dr. Richard A. Geyer, head of A&M's Oceanography Department, said Kasidah II will be converted for use as the university's prime vessel for studies along the continental shelf in the Gulf of Mexico.

Welfare Budget Errors Found In Forest County

Some errors have been charged in an April 4-5 audit of the Forest County Public Assistance Office, says a report from the office of state Auditor General Robert P. Casey.

Casey's office said that 16 cases were checked out of a total caseload of 97. Three cases showed erroneous records which did not affect the welfare grant; three cases were found to be ineligible; two cases were found to have resulted in overpayments which were ordered reduced by $13.60; and one case was found totally ineligible and ordered discontinued.

One case was referred for restitution involving $207.80. Administrative error overpayments, says the report, amounted to $308.10, an amount not subject to restitution.

The report did not note whether each infraction was in a separate case, or whether more than one infraction was discovered in any one particular case.

The Dodge Boys Think About You.

WE THINK YOU'LL LIKE THE "OLD-FASHIONED LISTENING DEVICE."

WE'VE MADE IT STANDARD EQUIPMENT ON EVERY DODGE WE SELL.

That's right, we're, what you might say, a "built-in receiver" on every Dodge we sell. We want you to be perfectly satisfied with that new Dodge. And that's why we believe in listening to you. So if it ever happens that there is something you would like taken care of, just call us, and we promise you good, prompt, correct service. The fact of the matter is, the best way for us to sell you another Dodge is to make sure you're happy with the one you own now. So whatever your reason for thinking about us—new car, new truck, used vehicle, service or warranty work—please stop in and see us. Remember, not only do we think about you, but we make a point of listening to you, too . . . it's a very real and very solid kind of consumer protection for you.

SOMEWHAT SUPER

NEW YORK —Modest man that he is, Bob Lilly of the Dallas Cowboys downgrades the incident as having no significance. But there is no escaping the fact that he once hit the supposedly indestructible Jim Brown with such jarring force that the stunned fullback wandered groggily in the direction of the Dallas defensive huddle instead of heading for the Cleveland Browns offensive huddle.

"It was in my rookie year," said the monstrous tackle from Texas, dismissing it all with a careless shrug of those huge shoulders. "I had broken my hand and was wearing a cast. If I hit him with it, it wasn't deliberate because I've never played a moment of dirty football in my entire life. He never saw me coming, though and I'm sure that's why I left him stunned. A time I remember better was when we met at the five-yard line, just him and me. Jim mashed in my face mask, ran right over me and scored a touchdown."

As far as can be ascertained, no other ballplayer ever took such liberties with Robert Lewis Lilly of Throckmorton, Texas. The large Dallas line stalwart is generally conceded as fine a defensive tackle as there is in the business, an automatic choice when all pro platoons are selected. He was in town the other day to be honored by the football writers at their annual dinner. They picked him as the outstanding performer in the super bowl, bestowing on him their accolade of Super Man a designation that makes all winners of the award wince in embarrassment at the extravagance of the wording.

In a couple of months Lilly will be 33 years of age, but the years don't even show on his trim and hardpacked frame. He's 6 feet, 5 inches tall and a svelte 258 pounds. And his enthusiasm for the sport shows no signs of diminishing.

"I think I'm beginning to like football even more," said Bob with the happiest of grins. "Victory in the Super Bowl brightens a man's entire existence and gives him a new eagerness. It blots out all the disappointments and frustrations of the past. The ultimate goal in this sport is winning in the Super Bowl, the satisfaction of knowing that you are the best.

"I'm fully confident that we'll be back in the Super Bowl in Los Angeles next January. We're basically the same team we were last year, plus the good rookies we will add. But most of all we'll have Roger Staubach to quarterback us all the way as a proven great leader.

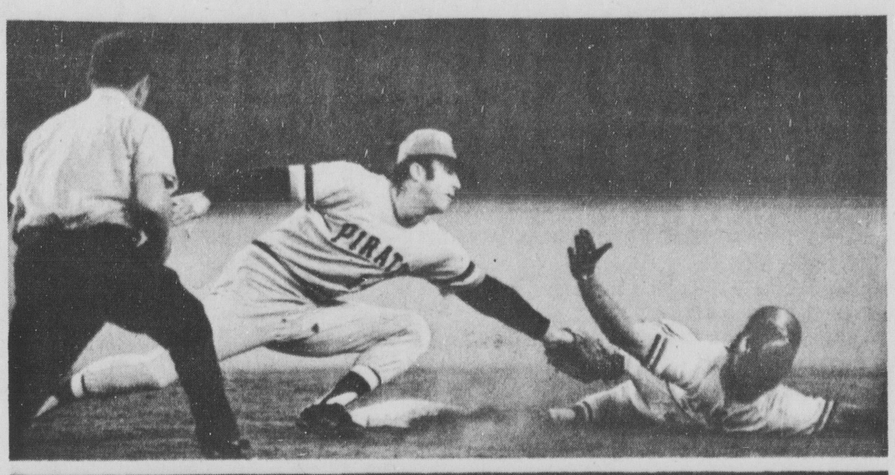
"When I look back on those earlier Dallas years, I don't think we had the background or the histroy or the leaders. We have them now. The younger boys are now able to look up to leaders like Rayfield Wright, Jethro Pugh, Roger Staubach, Chuck Howley and myself. Right now we are setting them an example in our off-season program of workouts. Four days a week we go an hour-and-a-half. I'm convinced that this program will extend the career of the average player as much as two or three years. I took part in it last Spring and never felt better than I did last season."

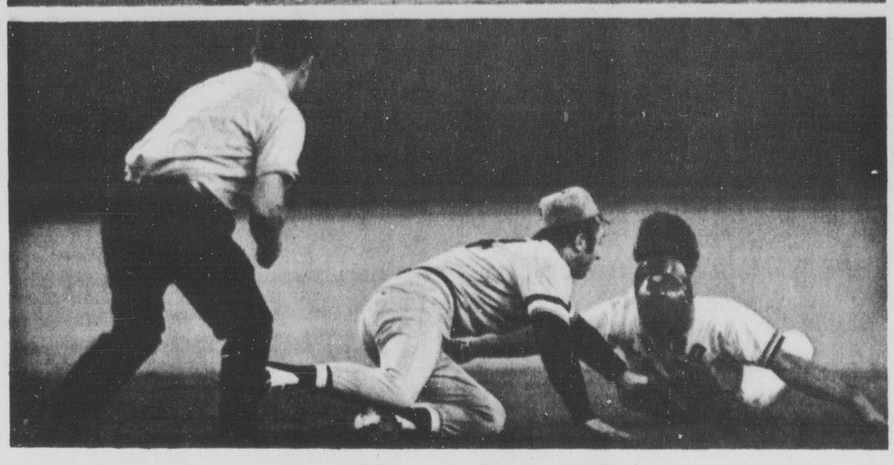
For year after year the Cowboys had been balked just as total success appeared within reach. It began to give them a complex, the so-called inability to win the big one. There was a tendency to scorn them as choke-up operatives. Although picked to breeze thorugh its division in 1970, Dallas met with one disaster after another until the St. Louis Cardinals humiliated them 38-0 in a Monday showcase special on national television.

"That was the historic turning point for us," said Lilly. "Tom Landry, the smartest coach in the game, stopped trying to do everything himself and delegated authority to his assistants. The coaching became more flexible and we won seven in a row, a comeback that brought us to the Super Bowl. We lost on a field goal in the closing seconds but we all knew we'd be back there the following year. We did and we now have to do it once more, but time time we must repeat as winners. We can do it, too."

Lilly's effectiveness as a pass-rusher and play-stopper increased enormously when Ernie Stautner, now a pro football Hall of Fame member, joined Landry's staff as coach of the defensive line. So overpoweringly effective has Big Bob become that the enemy double-teams him in 80 per cent of the plays.

"Stautner's original criticism of my style," said Lilly sheepishly, "was that I was too timid, too polite. He knew all the tricks and he taught me the head slap and the forearm smash. They are legal, you know. Otherwise I wouldn't use them because I just don't belive in trying to intimidate the other fellow with dirty play or dirty words. When played properly this is the greatest game of all and I owe a lot to it. If it weren't for football I'd probably be hauling hay back in Throckmorton, Texas."





Persistence Pays Off

St. Louis Cardinal Bernie Carbo, newly-acquired from the Cincinnati Reds, is shown sliding into and past second base, with Pirate shortstop Gene Alley in pursuit. Alley got his man to complete a double play in the fourth inning of Tuesday's game that ended 6-2 in favor of the Pirates.

Hinton Stops Cleveland; Munson Creates Impetus

NEW YORK (AP) — Rich Hinton, making his first start of the season, checked Cleveland on five hits for seven innings and Thurman Munson drove in two runs as the New York Yankees defeated the Indians 4-2 Wednesday night.

Hinton, a left-hander obtained from the Chicago White Sox last winter, left for a pinch hitter in the seventh and Sparky Lyle finished allowing an unearned run in the ninth on an error and two singles.

The Indians nicked Hinton for a run in the second when Tom McCraw singled with two out, stole second and scored on Frank Duffy's double.

Vince Colbert, making only his second 1972 start, protected the lead until the sixth when singles by Johnny Callison and Bobby Murcer put runners at first and third with none out. Roy White's sacrifice fly accounted for the first run. Murcer went to second as Ron Blomberg grounded out and scored the winning run on Munson's single.

The Yanks got their other two runs off Denny Riddleberger in the eighth on a walk to White, an infield out, singles by Munson and Rich McKinney and Horace Clarke's pinch double.

It was only the fifth setback in the last 19 games for the Indians, leaders in the American League East.

Pirates Nail 9th Consecutive

Cardinals Crumble In 14th

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Pittsburgh scored the tie-breaking run on Joe Torre's error in the 14th inning and Dave Cash and Al Oliver drilled two-run singles as the streaking Pirates beat the St. Louis Cardinals 9-4 Wednesday night for their ninth consecutive victory.

Richie Hebner drew a leadoff walk from Dennis Higgins, the fifth St. Louis pitcher, and went to third on Manny Sanguillen's single. Gene Alley bounced to third baseman Torre, whose throw to the plate struck Hebner and bounced away, leaving runners at second and third.

With one out, Cash singled both runners across. The Pirates loaded the bases again on Roberto Clemente's single and a walk before Oliver singled home the final two runs.

Both teams scored twice in the ninth to send the game into extra innings.

Sanguillen opened the Pirates' half with a double and went to third as Alley grounded out. Pitcher Bob Moose singled home the tie-breaking run and singles by Cash and Rennie Stennett made it 4-2.

Finance Teams Hold Onto 1st

There's not enough room at the top of the Western Division in the Rec League for two powerhouses like the Try-M Finance 7-Percenters and the Pennsylvania Bank and Trust.

However, until the two softball giants confront each other in the near future, that's probably where they'll remain — in first. Both are now 4-0.

Scoring three runs in the fourth inning, the Try-M Finance crew shielded itself from two Penn Glade runs in subsequent innings to post a narrow, 4-3, victory.

Under the lights, Pennsylvania Bank and Trust's "Big Gold Machine" couldn't be subdued, even at the hands of the formidable New Process nine. Scoring five in the first, seven in the ensuing three innings and four in the sixth, the Bankers smeared the opposition 16-5.

Once again Eli Fehlman was stifling, hurling a four-hitter. This came on the heels of a two-hitter the previous night for the moundsman.

Penn Glade drew first blood with a run in the bottom of the second; Try M tied the score again with a third-inning run.

Then came the fourth.

Bob Larson drew a walk from the eventual losing pitcher. Jack Colvin. Bob Lord ripped a double to escort Larson home and came home himself on a single by Fehlman. After Bill Grove flew out, Jim Fehlman singled home the pitcher.

Tony Ross led the first outburst for the Bankers with a double. After Sam Koebley walked, Chuck McDermott doubled, Bob Hoden singled and Larry Campbell doubled, Jack Lobdell, who was to be 4-5 for the night, consummated the five-run first with a two-bagger.

Bob Hoden also was 4-for-5 for the Bank. Dan Honhart suffered the loss.

On Tuesday evening, the Bankers outdid Sheffield's Boosters 9-5.

Morton Slings One-Hit Gem

MONTREAL (AP) — Carl Morton hurled a one-hitter—Mike Andersons third-inning triple—and Hector Torres and Bob Bailey socked solo home runs as the Montreal Expos defeated Philadelphia 4-1 Wednesday night, handing the Phillies their ninth consecutive loss.

Morton, 2-4, struck out two and walked two. Anderson scored on Denny Doyle's sacrifice fly to account for the Phils' only run.

The Expos took a 1-0 lead in the bottom of the second off loser Woodie Fryman, 2-2, when Ken Singleton singled, moved up on a wild pitch and scored on a double by Ron Woods.

After the Phils tied the score, Torres clouted his first home run of the year just inside the left-field foul pole.

Bailey hit his second home run in the fourth and Montreal added a run in the fifth when Ron Hunt slapped a run-scoring single, scoring John Boccabella.

Carew's 12th-Inning Hit Breaks Scoreless Game

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Rod Carew's run-scoring single in the 12th inning broke a scoreless tie as the Minnesota Twins topped the Kansas City Royals 1-0 Wednesday night.

Carew's game-winning hit off Dick Drago followed a leadoff double by Danny Thompson.

The rally gave the victory to Jim Kaat, who pitched a five-hitter for 11 innings and shut the door on Kansas City uprisings in the 10th and 11th.

Wayne Granger pitched the final inning for the Twins and saved the game for Kaat, now 5-1.

The Royals almost ended the scoreless duel in the 10th when Paul Schaal led off with a double and went to third on John Mayberry's sacrifice bunt. But Kaat shut the door, getting Ed Kirkpatrick on a short fly and Drago on a foul pop.

In the 11th inning, Freddie Patek opened with a single and was sacrificed to second. After an intentional walk to Richie Scheinblum, Lou Piniella bounced into a double play to end the threat.

Two-Run Single Upsets Brewers

DETROIT (AP) — Aurelio Rodriguez lashed a two-out, bases-loaded single in the eighth inning Wednesday night, lifting the Detroit Tigers to a 5-3 victory over the Milwaukee Brewers.

Jim Northrup started the winning rally with an infield hit off reliever Ken Sanders and Tom Haller sacrificed him to second. Mickey Stanley was given an intentional walk, Eddie Brinkman flied out and Gates Brown, batting for winning pitcher Chuck Seelbach, walked, filling the bases. Rodriguez then drilled his single to center.

The Brewers managed only two hits off four Detroit pitchers—singles by Mike Ferraro in the sixth and eighth innings. Les Cain, the starter, hurled hitless ball for 5 2-3 innings and had a 3-0 lead but walked the bases full. Fred Scherman walked pinch hitter Curt Motton, forcing in one run, and Ferraro got Milwaukee's first hit, a game-tying two-run single.

The Tigers jumped on starter Bill Parsons for two runs in the first on Haller's bases-loaded single and Stanley hit a bases-loaded sacrifice fly in the third.

In a deal made in the wee hours of the morning last Friday, the St. Louis Cardinals traded first baseman Joe Hague to the Cincinnati Reds for outfielder Bernie Carbo. Since the wire machines at the Times-Mirror and Observer are turned off at this time of the morning, the sports department wasn't aware of the deal.

BALTIMORE (AP) — Bee Bee Bee, the upset winner of the Preakness, will not run in the Jersey Derby on May 29 or in the Belmont Stakes on June 10.

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The Kansas City Royals purchased catcher-out-fielder Carl Taylor from the Omaha Royals, the Royals announced Wednesday.

The 28-year-old Taylor played briefly with the Royals last season.

In 30 games at Omaha, Taylor, a right-handed hitter, compiled a .291 batting average, with three home runs and 10 runs batted in. He also had 12 stolen bases.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Maury Wills, who at age 39 signed his first $100,000 contract this year with the Los Angeles Dodgers, says he's embarrassed to accept a paycheck.

"I'm a $100,000 player who's being used as a reserve base runner and pinch hitter," Wills said. "I've been in pro baseball for 22 years and always felt I've earned every cent I've made.

"But I don't feel like I'm earning my money now."

Wills stressed he was not bitter toward any one and, before the Dodgers 8-5 victory over San Francisco Tuesday night, he said.

"I'm getting the idea I'm being phased out. When I was first taken out, I thought it would be for three or four days. But it's been much longer than that.

"I just can't understand how I can go from major league shortstop of the year last season to nothing. I'm not over the hill yet, but I guess they've given up on me."

Indy Drivers Test Cars For Saturday

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—Thirty-one of Saturday's 33 starters for the Indianapolis 500-mile race ran their cars Wednesday in a final warmup session known officially as carburetion tests.

It was a 3½-hour session that gave drivers and mechanics some idea of fuel comsumption and tire wear problems they can expect under race conditions.

The drivers were not expected to run at top speed, but several obviously were looking ahead to the race and were clocked at speeds above 195 miles per hour—expected to be the minimum early pace Saturday.

Pole starter Bobby Uneer, whose 4-lap, 10-mile qualifying speed was a record-shattering 195.940 cruised around at 188-plus.

Others in the 184-185 bracket included three-time winner A. J. Foyt, who starts 17th, and Al Unser, the winner in 1970 and 1971, who goes off 19th. Gary Bettenhausen and Mario Andretti, who have spots in the second row, and third-place starter Mark Donohue got 181 or better.

Meantime, the STP No. 40 Lola owned by Andy Granatelli, cleared technical inspection, made several laps and was confirmed by Speedway officials as Saturday's 33rd starter.

The car had been originally qualified by Art Pollard.

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Here is the starting lineup for the May 27 Indianapolis 500-mile race as decided by two week-ends of 10-mile four-lap trials at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway:

First Row

Bobby Unser, Albuquerque, N.M., No. 6, Eagle-Offy, 195.940 m.p.h.

'Smokin' Joe' Frazier Rated A 10-1 Favorite

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Joe Frazier, who came out of a Philadelphia slaughterhouse to gain fame in the ring, will defend his world heavyweight championship against Ron Stander Thursday night in this meat packing center.

Frazier was rated a 10-1 favorite for the fight which was scheduled to start at 10:25 p.m., EDT, and seen on home television beginning at 10 p.m.

The champion, who once stripped sides of beef for $105 a week and who got $2.5 million for fighting Muhammad Ali, was guaranteed $150,000 from television and was to get 40 per cent of the live gate after taxes.

Stander, called the Bluffs Butcher from the fact he lives in neighboring Council Bluffs, Iowa, and because of his fighting style and not because of an occupation, was to get 20 per cent of the live gate and half of the foreign television revenue.

Both men are sluggers and the chances are excellent that the fight at the 10,050-seat Omaha Civic Auditorium, expected to be sold out, will not last the scheduled 15 rounds.

Frazier has scored 24 knockouts in winning all 28 of his pro fights. Stander has 23 victories, 15 by knockout, one loss and a draw.

The only common opponent they have had is Manuel Ramos. Frazier knocked Ramos out in two rounds in New York in 1966. Stander fought a draw with the Mexican here in 1970 and then outpointed him in 10 rounds here last year.

One important difference in the fighters is that Frazier has never been cut while Stander is known as a bleeder and has had more than 60 stitches in his face to back up the reputation.

Frazier, 28, is 5-foot-11½ and has a 73½-inch reach. Stander, 27, is 5-11 with a 70-inch reach. Each fighter is expected to weigh between 210 and 215. Frazier weighed 215½ in his last fight when he stopped Terry Daniels in four rounds in New Orleans Jan. 15. Stander weighed 241 — he's been heavier — in taking a 10-round decision over John Mac on March 20 at Council Bluffs.

This will be Frazier's fourth defense since he won universal title approval by stopping Jimmy Ellis in five rounds Feb. 16, 1970, and it will be a fight for charity. Frazier is giving half of his purse to research for sickle cell anemia and his manager, Yank Durham, whose 4-year-old son has the disease, is donating his entire cut.

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Facts and figures of the world heavyweight championship fight between champion Joe Frazier of Philadelphia and Ron Stander of Council Bluffs, Iowa.

Crime Committee Questions Cousy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Bob Cousy and two other former Boston area pro athletes met with members of the New England Mafia, a House committee was told Wednesday.

Joseph "The Baron" Barboza, a self-described enforcer or strong-armer for the mob who is in prison for conspiracy to commit murder, identified the other athletes as Gene Conley and Babe Parilli.

Cousy, a former star guard with the Boston Celtics, now coaches the Kansas City National Basketball Association team. Conley also played with the Celtics and pitched for the Boston Red Sox, while Parilli quarterbacked the Boston (now New England) Patriots and the New York Jets.

Appearing before the House . er and Conley visited the Ebb-tide Lounge in Boston. He said the pair spent 45 minutes in a back office with mobster Henry Tameleo during the 1964-65 season.

"When he came out from the back room, "Tameleo said, 'take the Los Angeles Lakers and four points,'" referring to an upcoming NBA contest.

Records show that Conley had retired by then.

Under questioning, Barboza said he once saw Cousy and Conley at Arthur's Farm in Revere, Mass., a Boston suburb. Arthur's Farm, he said, was a mob-owned fruitstand where stolen goods also were peddled.

Braves Overcome Cincinnati Reds

CINCINNATI (AP) — Dusty Baker's two-out single in the eighth inning drove in Ralph Garr with the tie-breaking run that carried the Atlanta Braves to a 4-2 victory over the Cincinnati Reds Wednesday.

Garr had singled to center with two out and stolen second, before racing home with the deciding run on Baker's hit.

Atlanta had tied the score 2-2 with two runs in the fifth, also scoring after two out. Darrell Evans started the rally with a double to the right field corner.

Mike Lum singled in Evans and took second on the throw to the plate. Lum then scored on Marty Perez' single to right.

The Reds had taken an early lead on home runs by Joe Hague in the second inning and Johnny Bench in the fourth.

Evans gave the Braves an insurance run with a homer in the ninth off Wayne Simpson, 1-1.

Dick Kelley checked the Reds on six hits in eight innings, raising his record to 3-4. Cecil Upshaw pitched the ninth inning and allowed one hit.

Ironically, the game played in the afternoon, marked the 37th anniversary of night baseball that started in Cincinnati on May 24, 1935.

Cubs Trap Slipping Mets

CHICAGO (AP) — Jose Cardenal slugged a pair of two-run homers and Billy Williams added a solo shot Wednesday, leading the Chicago Cubs and Burt Hooton to a 5-1 victory over the New York Mets.

Hooton, 4-4, allowed five hits and bested Buzz Capra, 3-2, in a battle of rookie right-handers. The victory was the third straight for the Cubs, who on Tuesday ended New York's 11-game winning streak.

Cardenal blasted his fifth homer of the season in the third inning after Hooton had walked, and he hit No. 6 in the fifth following a walk to Ken Rudolph. One out later, Williams slugged his fourth homer of the season.

Willie Mays opened the game with a single and Jim Fregosi singled to open the Met second. Hooton then retired 11 men in a row before Capra beat out an infield hit and advanced to third on another single by Mays. Bud Harrelson flied out to end the threat.

Hooton lost his shutout bid in the eighth when Mays walked and scored on a double by Harrelson.

RAILROADING

The other evening at the Brokenstraw meeting, I was taken to task for claiming that the officers of the Northwest Division of the Pennsylvania Federation of Sportsman's Clubs had "railroaded" through the protest the state organization had passed objecting to Warren County locating a landfill project on federal lands. I was told that the move was legal according to the bylaws of the organization as they were ammended in 1968.

Well, I know "railroading" when I see it, and I can only comment that when it is permitted by the bylaws it is even more obnoxious than when done in an unauthorized manner.

It so happens I was active during the formative years of the PFSC, so I know what was in the minds of the organization's founding fathers. No business, they said, should be authorized at the state level without every member club having full and complete opportunity to decide at division level the action desired on the matter. In fact, they were so determined in this respect that they set up such an elaborate system for the proposal of resolutions that it proved to be too top heavy to be practical.

But instead of improving the cumbersome method to get better resolution action, it seems the modern-day officials have decided that they can better decide for the clubs what is best and have amended the bylaws to permit them to do so.

I have been highly critical of the organization over the past several years. Mostly because I have seen them deviate from the principles set forth at its founding, and direct their attentions to matters only remotely connected with the welfare of the average sportsman. I have seen the organization change from a democratic association of dedicated sportsmen to an oligarchy ruled by a few individuals.

I have, for the past few years, advocated the withdrawal of the Warren County Council of Sportsmen from the state organization. The county group functions in a responsible manner, and the delegates show deep-seated concern for all sportsmen, both members and non-members. But so long as they are associated with the state organization, they are confirming the "big lie" that the PFSC represents every sportsman in the Commonwealth.

Am I bitter? Yes, I am bitter. Bitter because I know positively that the Pennsylvania Federation of Sportsmen's Clubs is failing its potential and its opportunity to be of real service to any and all sportsmen. Just to realize this is enough to make a man bitter.

Value Of Ties Changed In NFL

NEW YORK (AP) — National Football League owners changed the method of counting a tie Wednesday but turned down rule proposals involving sudden death and the penalty for intentionally grounding a pass.

In changing the method of counting a tie, the owners voted for a proposal in which a tie will count one-half game won and one-half game lost in determining a team's won-lost percentage.

Under the old method, a tie was not counted in determining percentages.

The owners turned down a sudden death proposal, in favor of further study. The proposal would have made it mandatory for each team to have possession of the ball at least once during an overtime period in post-season sudden-death games.

A proposal to change the penalty for intentionally grounding a pass from 15 yards and loss of down to five yards and loss of down was defeated.

The owners also established some definitive ground rules for the AFC-NFC Pro Bowl, scheduled for Dallas in January, 1973. The first was to make it mandatory for the players receiving the highest vote totals at their position in the coach balloting for the team to start the game.

The other ground rules dealt with the actual playing of the game. Under the new guidelines, teams can use only a standard 4-3-4 defense, the defensive backs must play man-for-man with the exception of the free safety and there can be no blitzing except on third-down-and-short yardage situations and then only by the outside linebackers.

The site for the 1974 AFCNFC Pro Bowl likely will be selected before the meetings end Thursday. A Kansas City delegation appeared before the owners Wednesday to state their case for having the game played at that site.

Five Cities Want Hockey

NEW YORK (AP) — The National Hockey League's Board of Governors heard franchise applications Wednesday from five of the 10 groups bidding for two new NHL teams to be awarded for the 1974-75 season.

Ushered in for 30 minute presentations before the governors were groups representing Cincinnati, Cleveland, Dallas, Indianapolis and Kansas City, Mo.

Still on the agenda and scheduled to be heard Thursday when the governors continue their meetings are two groups from Kansas City, Kan., and one each from Phoenix, San Diego, and Washington, D.C.

Working in alphabetical order and with its security man guarding the door, the NHL bosses called the nervous applicants in one by one. Some, like the Cincinnati group headed by former baseball owner Bill DeWitt and the Indianapolis people, who own the American Basketball Association Pacers, came with lengthy brochures for the owners to peruse.

With a $6 million price tag attached to each franchise, the 20-minute time limit allotted to the applicants broke down to about $200,000 per minute and they didn't waste any of that time.

The Cincinnati group brought Mayor Thomas Luken along to back their contention that the city is ready to build an 18,000-seat arena.

Going To Pittsburgh

Eight Eisenhower gals will be in Pittsburgh this week to compete in the Allegheny Mountain Assn. Junior Olympics at Bethel Park High School. Coached by Lucille Leathers, second row on extreme left, these girls have prevailed at nearly every meet Eisenhower has competed in. In the first row, left to right, Jolynn Beedle, Grace Hunzinger, Diana Cable, Sally Beedle. In the second row, same order, Leathers, Donna Cathcart, Mary Falconer, Connie Bauer and Brenda Burnett. Grid General Managers Attack Antitrust Suit

NEW YORK (AP) — National Football League general managers responded sharply Wednesday to an antitrust suit challenging pro football's compensation clause, contending that teams would be in danger of being destroyed without the measure.

"Without the rule my thinking would be changed," said Don Klosterman of the Baltimore Colts. "If the New York Jets were my closest opposition, my idea would not only be to build the Colts, but attack and destroy the Jets—I'd try to take a Namath away."

"We have some good young players now, we're preparing to play in an 80,000-seat stadium and our whole community is enthused," said Bob Lustig of the Buffalo Bills. "If we lost some of our players the entire enthusiasm would just burst. That's unfair to the community."

"Without the rule there's no question a very few teams would have little difficulty gathering great football teams together," said Tex Schramm of the Dallas Cowboys. "There's little doubt the Cowboys, being Super Bowl champs, would be in an extremely advantageous position."

The discussion on the compensation clause during a break in the NFL meetings here came after the filing in Minneapolis Tuesday of an antitrust suit attacking the compensation clause, or Rozelle Rule.

The suit was filed against the NFL club owners and Commissioner Pete Rozelle on behalf of eight free agents and 23 player representatives of the NFL Players' Association and was said to "represent the desires of a heavy majority of NFL players."

Ludlow Notes

By Phyllis Davidson

Mrs. Walter Ray is at home after spending the winter visiting her daughter, Mrs. Eva Villamor and children at Santa Barbara, California. Mrs. Ray also visited friends at San Francisco.

On Tuesday evening a bridal shower was held at the Merle Walter's home in honor of Miss Patricia Warr of Warren.

During the evening games were played by the 34 guests. Luncheon was served from a table centered with a cart and umbrella filled with flowers. Mrs. Anna Fetzeck poured. Hostesses were Mrs. Lawrence O. Larson, Mrs. Paul Carley Jr. and Mrs. Merle Walters. The honored guests received many lovely and useful gifts.

Miss Warr will become the bride of Charles Fetzeck on June 10.

The 59th annual convention of the McKean County Association of Township Officials was held May 17 at the Penn Hills Club in Bradford. Those attending from Ludlow were Mrs. Lawrence O. Larson and Mr. and Mrs. Merle Walters. After the morning and afternoon sessions, a dinner was held and the evenings entertainment was provided by "Dante" the magician. Mr. and Mrs. Walters each assisted with a magic act. The highlight of the performance was when Dante escaped from a straight jacket.

Ludlow 4th and 5th graders left Ludlow by bus on May 15 for a visit to the Buhl Planetarium and Institute at Pittsburgh. The children enjoyed the sky shows, lectures and demonstrations during their tour of the institute. They also visited at the Carnegie Museum and stopped for their evening meal. A group of tired but happy children returned home at 7 p.m. Mrs. Robert Carson, teacher of the grades, made the arrangements and the PTO provided the money for the trip. Parents of the children all helped in some way to make the trip a success, some packed lunches, made cookies and five of the mothers accompanied the group.

Mrs. Rachael VanSteenberg of Brookville is spending the week with her daughter, Mr. and Mrs. David Fox. Also spending Sunday at the Fox's were Mrs. John Snyder, Shawn and Amy and Billie Jo Williams of Warren.

Weekend guests of Mrs. Gust Carlson were Mr. and Mrs. Henry Baton and Jim and Cheryll of Kenmore, N.Y. Also Mr. and Mrs. Loyal Elder of Pittsburgh.

Mr. and Mrs. William Hanson and Mrs. Gust E. Anderson, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Hanson of Warren, spent Sunday visiting Mr. and Mrs. Martin Sandberg at Jamestown. The group helped Mr. Sandberg celebrate his birthday.

The Firemen's Auxiliary held its regular monthly meeting on May 16 with 14 members present. Mrs. Andrew Okruch presided at the business meeting. The nominating committee for new officers is Mrs. George Zeedar and Mrs. George Spilka. Plans were started for a fall bazaar with more information to be given later. A tureen picnic will be held at Wildcat Park on June 20 at 6:30 p.m. Hostesses were Mrs. Andrew Okruch and Mrs. John Rzodkiewicz.

On Sunday at Moriah Lutheran Church the Rev. Carl F. Eliason spoke on the sermon topic "Spirit of God Among Us". Acolyte was Barry Johnson. Altar committee for May and June is Mrs. Dean Walters and Mrs. Algot Swanson. Flowers and folders were in memory of Lawrence O. Larson by wife and children.

At First Mission Church on Sunday the Rev. Eric Edman spoke on the scripture from Acts, second chapter. The closing hymn was "There Shall Be Showers of Blessings".

Members of the Oakland Avenue United Methodist Church of Sharon, under the leadership of the Rev. Gale W. Cook held a retreat in the Olmsted Manor bungalow over the weekend.

Men of the West Virginia-Western Pennsylvania Synod of the Lutheran Church held a retreat at Olmsted Manor over the weekend. Pastor Robert E. Olson of Ludlow was the resource person.

The executive committee of the United Methodist Women of the United Methodist Church of Farrell held a planning session at Olmsted Manor on Monday and Tuesday.

The women of the Emannual Mission Church of Kane held their spring meeting at Olmsted Manor with a dinner and program Tuesday night.

Shapp Raps State Chamber For Budget Cut Proposals

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — Gov. Shapp, reacting to "the most misleading public relations in the history of Pennsylvania," assailed the chamber of commerce Wednesday for urging reductions in his proposed state budget.

"We could abolish the income tax and the sales tax totally, right now, if the state would get out of the business of subsidizing education," Shapp said at a news conference.

"But think what would happen on the local level—property taxes would rise by intolerable rates, wage taxes would increase, other local nuisance levies would skyrocket."

The state and local chambers have been running newspaper ads urging lawmakers to cut the budget by $440 million. They urged: "Ask your legislator to cut the budget and lower taxes."

Shapp responded that the chamber of commerce was merely looking for tax cuts for business and not interested in the public. "But I must say the business community is hardly promoting its own cause by the fallacious and sensational ad campaign," he added.

The governor said people don't realize how much of their tax money is pumped back to their communities in the form of grants and subsidies. The state is the "greatest revenue sharer," he said.

Shapp also announced that the latest estimates of revenue surplus for the year is $32.4 million. The administration had been projecting a $17 million surplus and a few weeks go it said a deficit might be possible.

Shapp said that by July 1, business taxes will be cut by $100 million and, according to a recent study, the state will rank sixth nationally in state and local tax levies.

"I do not intend to sit idly by and let the same people who brought this state to the point of bankruptcy set the course for state government after we have returned it to stability," he said, cautioning the public against "reactionary Republican legislators" who talk of cutting taxes.

He added his plan for cutting spending includes implementing suggestions made by a group of businessmen, who recommended ways of cutting $711 million in state and federal spending.

"The departments and agencies feel at this time that they can implement 60 per cent of the recommendations over the course of the next two to four years," Shapp said.

Without giving specifics, he added that 15 per cent of the ideas needed further study and 25 per cent were considered unworkable.

Meeting Rescheduled

The meeting of the Conewango Improvement Association, which was scheduled for Thursday evening at the Warren Area High School auditorium, has been rescheduled for June 5 at the Northwest Savings and Loan Hospitality Room.

The meeting, which is slated to begin at 7:30 p.m. will include the election of a board of directors. Following the business meeting a film will be shown on Pennsylvania watershed associations.

Hearings To Investigate Cities' Financial Straits

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — The Senate Appropriations Committee is planning hearings to investigate the financial straits of Pennsylvania cities.

"We've been receiving a tremendous number of complaints from mayors," said Committee Chairman Benjamin Donolow, D-Philadelphia, Tuesday, "that the administration is doing nothing to help their present financial position."

Donolow, making the disclosure at a budget hearing, declined to name or number the cities reportedly ailing financially. He promised details of the hearings next week.

The Department of Community Affairs told Donolow the governor's office had cut $6.5 million from the department's urban renewal program.

The state has identified eight municipalities in "economic difficulties"—Darby and Norwood, Delaware County; Scranton; Farrell, Mercer County, Beaver Falls, Beaver County; West Conshohocken borough, Montgomery County; Glenfield borough, Allegheny County, and Aliquippa, Beaver County.

The cut, which will reduce the available money from $27 million to $19.5 million, will threaten funding some of the 24 projects requested by communities. Because of changing figures, a spokesman could only estimate that perhaps only 15 of the projects could be funded. In many cases, planning has already started.

Secretary William Wilcox told Donolow, "We didn't want it cut out."

A Budget Office spokesman said the program was slashed because of reduced matching federal funding. But Wilcox claimed that a decrease in federal funding should be reason to increase state money.

The projects to be hit hardest are those that receive only state and local funding. These programs do not qualify for federal funding because they usually do not include renewal for housing but for commercial and business areas.

The spokesman guessed that about $9 million in this category will be available in the coming fiscal year because of the cut, while in 1971-72 $16.5 million was awarded. Some $15 million for the 24 projects have been requested from communities.

The department also said some communities with projects underway may be turned down in efforts to obtain additional money.

The department called the renewal projects of commercial areas "vital to the economic survival both of our large cities and of small towns and boroughs."

Wilcox said letters have been sent to Pennsylvania's two senators urging them to press the Department of Housing and Urban Development to pump more money into the Commonwealth.

Some of the cities that have applied for funding are Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Altoona, Wilkes-Barre, Reading, Williamsport, York and Farrell.

Jager Defends Position As State Consultant

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — Oscar Jager, Gov. Shapp's Washington consultant, said Wednesday Pennsylvania is getting a good deal in hiring him at $16,800 a year to look for federal funds.

"Let me tell you it's a bargain," the 59-year-old Jager said in an interview. "Other consultants get twice as much."

Jager commented a day after Rep. Frank J. O'Connell, R-Luzerne, called for an investigation of his contract with the state. To back up his request, the lawmaker cited a syndicated column last Sunday by Jack Anderson.

The column concerned Jager's election campaign work in 1969 for W.A. "Tony" Boyle, whose election as United Mine Workers Union president has since been nullified. O'Connell said the article accused Jager of getting his salary from union treasury funds.

The column, however, made no mention of Jager's salary coming from the union treasury. The column was, however, critical of Jager's work for Boyle and the contract.

Jager was Gov. Shapp's press secretary in his unsuccessful try for governor in 1966. He started working in the same capacity for Shapp's second try in 1970, but resigned to avoid embarrassing the governor. Anderson accused Jager of fabricating campaign stories for Boyle.

Jager said as Shapp's consultant he tries to obtain federal funds for Pennsylvania, suggests new legislation in Pennsylvania's interest and arranges meetings between state and federal officials.

Later, at a news conference, Shapp said Jager is doing a "tremendous job" working with congressional committees to find federal funds for Pennsylvania. He said he would call Jager before any legislative inquiry if requested.

The Shapp-Jager contract is in addition to the work of another Washington office which does the same thing.

It's headed by John Sensenig, who earns $20,666. He's assisted by research analyst Gail Rothman, who earns $10,432 and Candace H. Keller, administrative aide, at $9,011. Sensenig said he couldn't handle all the lobbying work himself.

The contract with Jager was signed in April 1971, but was never announced publicly. James Dorris, Shapp's press secretary, said the administration's policy was not to publicize consulting contracts.

Jager said his current work could not be as embarrassing to Shapp as his publicity work for the governor in the 1970 campaign.

"One was in the middle of a political campaign, one was not—that's the difference," he said.

Shapp already has signed Jager to a new one-year contract at the same compensation rate.

"The governor said it would be continued, and it's open ended," Jager said.

Memorial Day Schedule Set By Committee

The Memorial Day procession will form at 9:30 a.m. Monday, May 29, on Union street and will move off promptly at 10 a.m. The procession will move east on Pennsylvania ave. to Hickory st., cross the bridge and then along Crescent Park to Oakland Cemetery.

Services at the GAR Stand will include selections by the Warren Area High School band. Mary Patricia Donnelly will read her winning essay in the Voice of Democracy contest; Diane Keller will read General Logan's Order, and Edward Buliba will recite Lincoln's Gettysburg Address. Robert Harrison will read the Roll Call of Soldier Dead.

William Braughler, commander of the American Legion, will conduct services at the GAR Circle. Representatives of organizations and other persons desiring to place a floral tribute to the Unknown Soldier should assemble on the west side of the Circle and come forward when called upon. Flowers will be provided for the tribute.

In the event of rain, the procession will be cancelled and the services will be held in the county court house.

Vietnam veterans and military personnel in the area are invited to participate in the procession and services, as are all residents of Warren.

The veterans organizations request the observance of Memorial Day during the morning of May 29 by the people of Warren, merchants and businesses to pay tribute to loved ones.

Employment In Steel Mills Jumps 16,000

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Employment in American steel mills jumped nearly 16,000 jobs in March, the largest one month improvement in the industry work force since a 32-year low last autumn, the Iron and Steel Institute has reported.

At the same time, domestic steel shipments climbed sharply, continuing a seven-month trend and pushing the first quarter total to 21.1 million tons — not far off the total tonnage shipped the first quarter of 1971 when customers were stockpiling against a possible summer strike.

During the month, mills sent 7.9 million tons of steel to customers, an increase of nearly 1.3 million tons over February.

The continuing improvement owed mostly to heftier orders from automakers and steel service centers, the institute said, noting also that shipments to construction and container industries were showing added strength.

Imports, however, chewed up about 14 per cent of the domestic market during the first three months. But the rate of imports growth was expected to be stunted somewhat the remainder of the year as a result of voluntary restraints agreed to recently by the Japanese and members of the European Common Market as well as others.

Under the agreement with the U.S. State Department, the foreign producers have agreed to limit their total tonnage and quantities of certain types of steel, cutting the growth rate for the year to 2.5 per cent, half that of last year when imports climbed to an all-time record of 18 million tons.

Improvement in the employment situation shirttails the production picture, according to the institute, which reported 425,335 persons on steel mill payrolls during March, up nearly 16,000 from the prior month and 38,000 from November when domestic steel employment plummeted to its lowest level since 1939.

Specter Says Nixon Should Carry State

PITTSBURGH (AP) — President Nixon should be able to turn around election losses suffered in Pittsburgh and Philadelphia in 1968 and carry Pennsylvania in this year's balloting, his state campaign chairman said Wednesday.

Nixon lost by 169,000 votes in Pennsylvania in the last election, but Philadelphia Dist. Atty. Arlen Specter says it won't happen again.

"I think it's possible to reverse it all the way," Specter said.

Acting as chairman of the Pennsylvania Committee for Re-election of the President, Specter was here to announce the appointment of Pittsburgh business executive Richard Wright as area chairman of the group.

Wright's corporation owns 12 companies including Eat 'n Park restaurants, Penn Machine Co. and the Mellon Square Parking Garage.

Specter said Nixon would be in Pittsburgh to campaign after Labor Day and he predicted that the attempted assassination of Alabama Gov. George Wallace will not modify the President's plans.

"There is no way for anybody in American political life to avoid the dangers of the campaign trail," the district attorney said.

Viet Bonus Hits $50 Million In Pa.

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — Pennsylvania was to reach the $50 million mark in Vietnam bonus payments on Thursday with the issuance of a $150 check to a Mechanicsburg veteran.

James V. McElhatten's bonus is for time spent in hospitals recovering from wounds suffered near the Cambodian border in November 1968. An assistant store manager now, McElhatten is the son of Mr and Mrs. Eugene McElhatten of RD5, Butler.

When you open wide at the dentist's office remember to ask for a complete mouth check. It's one of the ways to detect oral cancer early, according to your American Cancer Society.

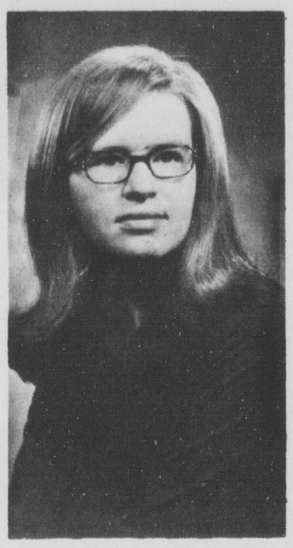
Engaged



Miss Danielson

Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Danielson, Rt. 2, Pittsfield, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Barbara Eileen, to Robert Christian Derr, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Derr, Pittsburgh.

Miss Danielson is a 1967 graduate of Youngsville High School and a graduate of Clarion State College in 1971. She is employed by the Warren County School District as a first grade teacher at Pittsfield Elementary School.

Her fiance graduated from North Hills High School in Pittsburgh and from Clarion State College in 1971 with a B.A. degree in Biology. He is serving in the United States Navy and is stationed in Washington, D. C., where he is studying Russian at the Defense Language Institute.

Wedding plans are indefinite.

Donna Jesperson, Randy Donaldson Wed

Donna Jeanne Jespersen became the bride of Randy Lee Donaldson in a double ring ceremony held at the Grace United Methodist Church May 22, 1972.

The Rev. Harold L. Knappenberger, officiated at the evening ceremony before an altar decorated with vases of white majestic daisies and yellow snap dragons.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elliot L. Jespersen, 231 Cobham Park road, Warren. The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Theodore F. Donaldson, Sr., 1009 Jackson Run road, North Warren.

As the bride was escorted to the altar by her father, she appeared in a gown of white organza with lace decorating the entire gown. The A-line skirt was gathered at the back waistline and flowed to a chapel length train. The gown featured an empire waistline, high neckline, and full length Juliet sleeves.

Her shoulder length nylon veil was attached to a bow headpiece. She carried a cascade bouquet of yellow and white daisies.

Joan Bathgate was chosen as matron of honor. She was dressed in a floor length gown of mint green dotted Swiss with a matching bow and streamer headdress. She carried a basket of yellow daisies and white baby's breath.

Robert Owen, a cousin of the bridegroom, served as best man.

A reception for the couple was held at the Scandia Fire Hall. Reception aides were Mrs. Theodore Donaldson, Jr., Mrs. Virgil Wilson, Cindy Gross, Nancy Schuler, Kayrn Bathgate, and Lois Walter.

After returning from their honeymoon trip, the couple is to be at home in Stow, N. Y.

Both the bride and bridegroom attended Warren Area High School. The bride is employed at the Warren Library Association. The bridegroom is employed at Devore's Outdoor Products until June 12, when he is to go into the U. S. Army.

Pre-nuptial affairs in honor of the bride were hosted by the staff of the Warren Library Association; and by Patricia Barhight and Nancy Schuler.

Mr. and Mrs. Randy Donaldson

Jamestown Ballet To Perform June 3

The opportunity to view a ballet performance will be made available to the Jamestown area June 3 at the Jamestown Community College Theatre.

The Jamestown Civic Ballet, under the direction of Shirley Kopp, will demonstrate the talents of twelve girls from Chautauqua, Cattaraugus and Warren counties.

The visiting company for this production will be the Schenectady Civic Ballet. The choreography for the three dances they will perform, as well as for the two in which Jamestown Civic Ballet will participate, has been done by their director, Marilyn Ramsey. The guest company will dance in "Overture," a classic with music by Glinka; "Design for 4 plus 1," a neo-classic with music by Stravinsky; and a jazz ballet, "Picking Up the Pieces," with musical background provided by Poco and Frank Zappa.

Twelve members of Jamestown Civic Ballet will join with Schenectady to perform "Graduation Ball." The local troupe plays members of a girls school who are hurriedly primping for the ball. The visiting company will dance the parts of the military cadets, who are guests of honor for the occasion. In total there are 29 dancers in this selection, for which music from Strauss was chosen.

An appeal to the younger members of the audience, and a look at the modern side of ballet, will be given to the viewers when Jamestown Civic Ballet dances in a selection entitled "Do Your Own Thing."

This dance has been set to electronic music, and each girl will be given the chance to express herself. Reactions to specific sounds in the music have been planned, but the company will have to rely on its past experience, ability to work together and spontaneity to make the dance work.

In addition to the creative footwork that will be witnessed, another twist of originality has been added to this selection. Each girl's costume will bear her own needlework or artwork that is uniquely hers.

An evening of diversified ballet will be available Saturday, June 3 at the Jamestown Community College Theatre. Curtain time is 8 p.m. and tickets may be purchased at the door.

Karen Seeley, Richard Carl Wed

Karen Seeley became the bride of Richard Carl in a double ring ceremony held in St. Paul Lutheran Church May 13,-1972.

The Rev. Carl Nelson, pastor of the church, officiated at the afternoon wedding before an altar decorated with pink carnations and baby's breath. Mrs. Russell Thelin played traditional organ music for the ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Seeley, 206 Jackson ave., Warren. The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Don Cheuvront and Mr. and Mrs. Richard Carl, all of Aliquippa, Pa.

As she was escorted to the altar by her father, the bride appeared in a gown of off-white satin trimmed in pink ribbon on the ring collar and Juliet sleeves. The skirt was full, and gathered into a chapel length train.

A ring of pink sweetheart roses and baby's breath was worn in the bride's hair. She carried a white satin prayer book with one pink rose.

Pamela Cromwell served as maid of honor wearing a gown of lavender and blue floral voile with a blue ribbon on the empire waist. She wore a headpiece of a blue bow with flowers, and carried a single blue rose with matching ribbon.

Bridesmaids were Jana Schuckers, Diane Pollock, and Virginia Guiffre, all of Warren. They wore lavender and blue voile gowns with lavender bow and floral headpieces. Each carried a single white rose with lavender ribbons.

James Slingluff, Thiel College, served as best man. Ushers were James Seeley, a brother of the bride; James Carl, a brother of the bridegroom; and Basil Trowbridge.

A reception for the newlyweds was held in the church parlors with Barbara Nelson, Maxine Yosten, Susan Schweitzer, Debbie Vicini, and Kathy Greto serving as aides.

After October, the couple is to reside in Frankfurt, Germany, where the bridegroom is serving in the U.S. Army.

The bride is to be a 1972 graduate of Warren Area High School, and plans to attend Career Academy, Washington, D. C. in June.

The bridegroom completed two years at Thiel College, Greenville, Pa.

Pre-nuptial showers in honor of the bride were hosted by Pamela Cromwell and Virginia Guiffre; Jane Schuckers; Dianne Massa; and Mrs. Clara Dumond.

The rehearsal dinner was held at the Four Seas Restaurant.

Mr. and Mrs. Bernon Pickens

Kristen Marsh Wed In Mother's Gown

Dressed in her mother's wedding gown and veil, Kristen Ann Marsh became the bride of Bernon LeRoy Pickens in a double ring ceremony held May 20, 1972 at the Grace Methodist Church, Warren.

The Rev. Wayne Price, pastor of the church, performed the candlelight service before an altar filled with multicolored killian daisies, purple asters, and white gladiolus. Richard Pratt played traditional organ music for the afternoon ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. Bruce Marsh, 10 Weiler rd., Warren. The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Dorsey B. Pickens, 153 Kings Highway, Altoona, Pa.

As the bride was escorted to the altar by her father, she was wearing the gown in which her mother had been married. The gown was of chantilly lace and nylon marquisette, accented by a shadow neckline enscrolled with lace medallions. The bouffant nylon skirt was adorned with scrolled lace medallions going to the hemline in the front and down the cathedral length train.

The veil, also worn by her mother at her wedding, was a circular finger tip length of silk illusion. It fell from a white flowered headpiece. The bride carried a semi-cascade of lavender fuji mums, multi-colored daisies and baby's breath, and stephanotis.

Gail Marsh was chosen as maid of honor for her sister. She was dressed in an empire styled gown of nylon flowered print over lavender satin. She wore a bow headpiece in matching lavender and carried a colonial bouquet of pastel tinted daisies accented with purple streamers and baby's breath.

Jeffrey Wilson, Altoona, was chosen as best man. Ushers were Stephen Cecchetti, Kane and Dennis Gibbs, Oil City.

A reception for the newlyweds was held in Fellowship Hall of the church following the ceremony. Reception aides were Deborah Honhart, Warren; Paula Schuckers, Bangor, Maine; Alice Wolf, Warren; Beth Siefert, Warren; and Alma Woomer, Altoona.

The couple is to return to Clarion State University in September to resume college.

The bride is a Warren Area High School graduate and the bridegroom graduated from Bellwood-Antis High School in Altoona. Both are attending Clarion State College, where the bride is majoring in library science and elementary education and the bridegroom is majoring in liberal arts and history. The bride is a member of Phi Sigma Sigma Sorority, and the bridegroom is affiliated with Alpha Chi Rho Featernity.

Pre-nuptial showers were given by Gail Marsh and by the bride's sorority sisters.

The rehearsal dinner was hosted by the bridegroom's parents at the Jackson Heights Restaurant.

Scotty Oilers Meet

Members of Scotty Oilers P-39 helped Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Wilber celebrate their wedding anniversary during their camp out held last weekend.

At the Friday night campfire, cake and coffee were served by Betty Ross and Doris Britton. The cakes had been made by Pauline Rapp and Marie Covell.

At Saturday's campfire, Mabel Wilbur and Martha LaRusch won awards. The birthdays of Jack Ross and Henry Newton were celebrated and movies were shown by Myron Rapp and Marie Covell. The group enjoyed Mountain Pies.

A tureen dinner was served Sunday, with the table blessing given by Orville Luce.

The next camp out is to be held at Wildwood Acres at Bemus Point, N.Y. June 16-18.

The lunch committee is to be Maxine Luce and Mabel Smith.

Ann Landers

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am 30 years old and have never married. People have always told me I am pretty, smart, and fun to be with. No one ever mentioned marriage. One day I became a little "adventurous" — or perhaps panicky is a better word — and sent my name (and check) to a scientific mate-matching foundation. I had received mailings from this "Foundation" and the letterheads carried the names of a well-known doctor and two nationally known clergymen. I was sure these people would not be connected with anything shoddy, but I was wrong.

I was put in touch with eight "prospects" in seven weeks. Five were unemployed and looking for a woman to keep them. Two were overt homosexuals — one offered to be my hairdresser and private secretary in exchange for marriage, if I'd let him keep his boyfriend. Another was a religious fanatic who wanted to know immediately if I would let him burn his initials on my back with a cigaret. The only "candidate" who seemed to have all his marbles had a severe physical handicap and told me with considerable anguish that he had met 30 women through the "foundation" — most of them crazy. For these leads he has already paid $380.

I am ashamed of myself for having been such a sucker. The public should be warned about these rackets. Tell the world, will you, Ann? — Seattle Chump

DEAR SEATTLE: I HAVE been telling the world, and I will continue to tell those who are willing to listen. Thanks for the testimonial.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I appreciated your boost for Recovery, Inc. For 15 years I suffered from nerves. I went to doctor after doctor, took thousands of tranquilizers, and then I read about Recovery, Inc. in an article by Dr. Walter Alvarez. I learned that a group was holding meetings four blocks from my home.

The people there weren't interested in anybody's past — only the future. They taught me not to be afraid of my feelings, how to react to nervous people who blow up, how to find the courage to go back to shopping, driving and living. You learn you won't die if your heart beats fast or if you can't catch your breath, or if you get waves of nausea and spells of weakness.

All it cost me was 25 cents for the coffee and cake after the meeting. Some bargain for a whole new life, after 15 years in hell. Tell it again, Ann. —M.M.M.

DEAR M.M.M.: I will. Write to the national headquarters and find out where the meetings are being held in your town. The address is: Recovery, Inc., 116 S. Michigan Avenue, Chicago, Illinois 60603.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: This is my husband's first year with a firm that will soon have their annual barbecue. Wives and husbands are not invited. It's strictly for employees.

We both work and have precious little time together. I resent this policy and feel that companies should promote togetherness at home instead of making trouble between husbands and wives. My husband says he is going, regardless — and we've argued about it. I told him if he goes it will be the straw that broke the camel's back. Comment, please. — Lana

DEAR L.: That camel didn't have a very strong back, Lady. Although I agree that company parties that exclude mates are bummers, if that's the way his company does it, be a good sport. A wife who would give her husband an ultimatum over such a trivial matter is grossly immature.

Leah Ann Barton, Donald McGuire Wed

Leah Ann Barton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Barton, R.D. 1, Grand Valley, and Donald Alton McGuire, son of Mrs. Mary McGuire, Tidioute and Richard McGuire, Ludlow, Mass., were united in marriage May 20 at Swedish Union Church in Triumph Township.

The Rev. William Irwin officiated at the afternoon ceremony and Mrs. Vera Konkle was the pianist.

The bride, given in marriage by the father, appeared in a floor-length gown of organza with dainty Venice lace interwoven with satin ribbons encircling the waist, decorating the bodice, the stand-up collar and cuffs on the full-length puffed sleeves. The A-line skirt, which flowed into a full chapel length train, featured a wide ruffle at the hemline with a heading of lace and ribbon. Her fingertip veil, edged in lace tatted by her grandmother, flowed from a Camelot cap of ribbon and Venice lace. She carried a bouquet of daisies, miniature peach roses and baby's breath.

Susan Barton was her sister's only attendant. Her gown, fashioned and made by the bride, was floor-lenth with a white bodice and peach skirt, trimmed at the waist and cuffs of full-length puffed sleeves with velvet ribbon. She wore a white picture hat with peach streamers and carried a basket of daisies, miniature roses, and baby's breath.

The bridegroom chose Mark Rondinelli as his best man.

A reception was held immediately following the ceremony at the home of the bride's parents. Aides were Mrs. Donna Johnson, Mrs. Noreen Brown, Mrs. Helen Nelson, and Mrs. Florence Barton.

The bride is a 1971 graduate of Tidioute High School and is employed at New Process Company, Warren.

The bridegroom is a 1970 graduate of Tidioute High School and is serving with the U.S. Air Force.

Pre-nuptial showers were given by Mrs. Judy Morrison and Mrs. Susan Pillar; Susan McGraw; ladies of the Tidioute Baptist Church; and Lela Dunkle.

A rehearsal dinner was given by the bridegroom's parents at the Forest Hills Restaurant.

The new Mrs. McGuire will join her new husband in Germany in the fall.

DeVore-VanHouten Vows Spoken

Afternoon wedding vows were spoken between Cheryl Lee DeVore and David Lawrence VanHouten May 6, 1972 in the First United Methodist Church, Youngsville.

The double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Lyston Knappenberger before an altar decorated with vases of white snapdragons and mums.

The wedding music was provided by Gary Baughman, a cousin of the bride.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur W. DeVore, RD 1, Pittsfield. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest G. VanHouten, RD 2, Sugar Grove.

As she was escorted to the altar by her father, the bride presented her mother with a rose from her wedding bouquet. The bride's gown was a white empire style, trimmed with pink satin ribbon and Schiffle lace interwoven in the sleeves, waist and hemline. Her chapel length veil of silk illusion was attached to a matching Camelot headpiece. She carried a bouquet of spring flowers centered with a white cymbidium orchid.

The maid of honor was Debbie Lanning, who was attired in a colonial gown of ice pink polyester voile. It featured a high ruffled neck line, long sheer sleeves, and an empire waist trimmed with pink satin ribbon which fell to the back of the ruffled hemline.

The bridesmaids were Susan DeVore and Roxanna Shannon, cousins of the bride. They were dressed in gowns identical to that of the honor attendant, in deep rose.

The flower girl, Cindy Sue DeVore, also a cousin of the bride, was dressed in miniature to the honor attendant, in a gown made by Mrs. Margie Baughman. The adult attendants wore spring flowers in their hair and carried matching clutch bouquets of mixed spring flowers. The flower girl carried a basket of mixed flowers, and wore flowers in her hair.

James DeVore, a brother of the bride, was chosen as best man. Ushers were David DeVore, also a brother of the bride, and Randy Sliter.

The wedding reception was held at the Brokenstraw Fish and Game Club, with Mr. and Mrs. Richard DeVaul as master and mistress of ceremonies. Aides were Mrs. Gordon Maynard and Mrs. Margie Baughman. The music was supplied by the Chandlers Valley Conservatory of Music.

The rehearsal dinner was hosted by the bridegroom's parents at the Rustic Restaurant.

Mrs. David VanHouten

The bride is a 1969 graduate of Youngsville High School and is a dental assistant in the office of Dr. M. E. Landin. The bridegroom is a 1966 graduate of Eisenhower High School and served two years in the U.S. Marine Corps, including a tour of duty in Vietnam. He is employed by Kemco, Youngsville.

The couple's honeymoon trip took them to Niagara Falls and Canada. They are now at home at RD 2, Sugar Grove.

At Irvine Elementary School

Art Show Accompanies 'Mikado' Performances

By FRANCES RHODES

When people went to see a production of the Gilbert and Sullivan comic opera "The Mikado" recently, at the Irvine elementary school, they got a bonus. They also saw a full-fledged art exhibit. Framed paintings in various media and styles were hung, professional gallery fashion, on walls throughout the school.

All the paintings were the work of a special group of students. The display was a spin-off from a "mini-project" funded by a grant of $289 from the tri-county (Crawford - Erie - Warren) intermediate unit board set up a year ago, with offices in Erie, to provide supplemental educational services. Title III federal funds for small independent educational research programs are the source of such "mini-project" grants.

The grant money was used solely for the purchase of painting supplies and equipment. The teacher donated her time, each Thursday afternoon, for at least an hour and a half - often for longer. Initially, the project was to run for eight weeks, but the children who were selected to participate became so enthusiastic that it was extended for another four weeks - and then beyond that, ending only when the paint supply was exhausted!

Mrs. Alice Rice was the teacher. She conducted a special project last year too - an outdoors one that lasted from fall to summer, with day and night hikes for the study of flora and fauna, the seasons, the land, the weather, supplemented with experiments, photography and program presentations, all designed to help make the children more aware of the things of nature in their rural environment, that they had grown up taking for granted.

The whole sixth grade was involved in that project. In the art project, however, only twelve, hand picked from the fourth, fifth and sixth grades, made up the after-school sessions. Some were chosen because they showed a decided artistic bent. Others, conversely, seemed inhibited, unable to express themselves, and so they were included to see if they would respond to the opportunity to work out their thoughts and ideas through their hands. Yet others were drawn into the project because a disadvantaged background had provided little stimulus for self-expression.

Says Mrs. Rice: "It was an adventure in experience. The children made great discoveries about the things they could do with color, about abstracting ideas, and experimenting with different ways of portraying things, instead of in just the literal realistic way."

However, the entire school, from first grade through the sixth, derived fringe benefits. They all received the same instruction in color values, perspective drawing techniques, composition and creative design as the special group, and had opportunities to put the lessons into effect.

Clothes lines were strung along the walls of the school corridors, and snap clothes pins were used to fasten on them each grade's drawings. The clothesline art show changed each week, as the children made use of the newest technique they had learned. It became standard procedure for each grade to check what the others had produced.

Meantime, the framed and signed works of the special group began appearing in the cafeteria, in classrooms and the halls. Before long, there were some with a surprising degree of sophistication, particularly in design, and bold use of color.

Originally, the plan was for the special group to spend four weeks working in acrylics, and four weeks with watercolors. But it didn't work out that way. Some students wanted more time with acrylics; others wanted to move on after three weeks, to watercolors, pastels. Because it was independent of curriculum requirements, the program could be flexible, and everybody was able to work as he preferred.

Direction was minimal. Discipline wasn't necessary. Everybody was too engrossed. The children were encouraged to keep on experimenting despite repeated disappointments with their results, until they were happy with them. They freely evaluated each other's efforts - and learned to be self-critical, too.

A "problem" youngster - a short attention span was among his difficulties - was one whose response Mrs. Rice found most remarkable. He seemed to "find" himself in the creation of pictures, she said, and soon became able to work with purpose and determination.

"It was very rewarding" she said "to observe children who had not had much chance for cultural development, and used dark, dreary colors, come around to realizing that they could go for the lighter, brighter colors. They loved the watercolors!"

Proof of the effectiveness of the project was demonstrated rather clearly when three sixth grade girls in the special group put entries in the Warren county junior Girl Scout art show. Lisa Green won the blue ribbon for the best exhibit, with a study in acrylics, of tropical fish. Jill Slagle took a second place with an abstract in acrylics, entitled "Four Seasons". Kim Kuzmin's pastel still life of a bowl of fruit also won a second place.

Other participants in the mini-project were: fourth grade, Jeffrey Chambers, Jodi Mack; fifth grade, Clay Campbell, Brenda Anderson, Scott Hendrickson, Jeff Gorton, Scott McKinney; sixth grade, Bob Mack, John Pollow.

Summed up Mrs. Rice: "I have thoroughly enjoyed the class. It's great to have every student genuinely interested in what we're doing."

Mrs. Rice is not a certified art teacher, but she is an artist by avocation, and has received art instruction through the Warren Art League, and at the Chautauqua Institution art center under Dr. Joseph Plavcan of Erie, and Dr. Francis Baptist of Clarion State College.

The students' reactions? Well, watching them, all so involved in what they were doing, this reporter felt that butting in with questions would have been akin to talking in church. Anyway, that involvement, that concentration, said it all.

The project is over now. Each of the special students has as souvenirs, two of his or her own acrylic paintings on canvasboard, and a portfolio full of watercolors, to keep.

All the frames are to remain at the school for future use there.

Many grade schools boast handsome reproductions of famous works of art, hanging on their walls. Irvine elementary school sticks its chest out about its collection of home talent originals!

Nameless Horse

It's a horse with no name —but the boy is Irvine fifth grader Jeff Gorton, one of the specially selected dozen students who participated in an art mini-project funded with a Title III federal grant of $289.

BPW Names New Officers

Cake Theme Highlights WSCS Affair

The Youngsville Evangelical United Methodist WSCS members had a "sweet" theme for their mother and daughter banquet. It was cake. And believe it or not, Lucy McCloskey found an appropriate Biblical allusion on which to base the devotions: she read the story from the first Book of Kings, about the starving widow, in a time of drought, who used her last handful of meal and cruse of oil to make "a little cake" for the prophet Elijah.

Cupcakes were favors for the roast beef dinner prepared and served by the men of the church, and appropriately decorated cakes were used as awards - a "blender" cake for Linda Gick, who led the singing; a sugar cake for teenagers Lori Neizmik, Joy Ostrander and Sonia Probst, who entertained; and a black and white marble cake for Jean Wolfe, pianist, who also received an angel cake, for a neighborly deed done that day.

There was a fancy hat cake for Amanda Jones, the oldest guest; a birthday cake for Frances Blum and an anniversary cake for Laura Thompson, a bride's cake for Judy Lyon, and - a fruit cake for the mother of the most children, Fay Brown!

Other cake novelties went to Dawn Jones, Debbie Long, Bonnie Bates, Helen Martin, Mabel Schreckengost (a former local resident, who returned from Meadville for the occasion) and baby Debbie Dunham (a lamb for her.) The cakes were made by Jean McKinney and Laura Thompson.

Betty Long and Lois Loomis planned the affair.

Dinner Meeting

Sunday school teachers and staff will be guests at a recognition dinner at the Youngsville EUM Church this evening at 6:30. About forty are to be there, and they will hear an address by the retired Rev. H. Ray Harris of Jamestown. The WSCS members are to prepare the meal. Committee members are Laura Thompson, Ann Forsberg, Dorothy Peterson, Hazel Bemis and Shirley Probst.

Two YHS Girls Compete In AAU Junior Olympics

Cheryl Arnold and Greta Fichtner of Youngsville high school will compete in the AAU Junior Olympics regional meet at Pittsburgh this weekend, as a result of successes last weekend, in the district event at Corry. Cheryl, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Arnold, Davis street, Youngsville, and a ninth grader, placed second in her intermediate age group, in both the 880-yard run, and the 80 yard hurdles. Her time over the hurdles is, for her years, a fine 13 seconds; but she still has a little way to go to catch the school's record-holder, Lynn Littlefield, who set a mark of 12.8 seconds last year, before she graduated.

Cheryl will take part in preliminary trials Friday night at Pittsburgh. The main events are on Saturday.

Greta's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Arden Fichtner, Grand Valley. She is a tenth grader and was second in the qualifying senior division high jump event at Corry. Her event at Pittsburgh will also be on Saturday.

The girls' coach is YHS phys-ed. teacher Paula Mead, of Warren.

Handbell Ringers Graduate, Choir Drafts New Members

The Bell Choir of Youngsville First United Methodist church has done a lot of travelling in recent months to entertain, among others, Warren State Hospital patients (twice), the Watson Home residents, the Warren College Club, the Kane District Methodist youth rally, a Lottsville mother and daughter banquet, and, last Saturday, guests at the Warren County Ministerial Association dinner.

On Sunday afternoon, they played a special concert. It was for the people of their own church.

The choir is something of an elite, a tightly knit group, for handbell ringing is not something that just anybody can step in and do. They must work together as a team, and it requires a lot of practice. Their bells range through two octaves, and include sharps and flats.

Their pastor, the Rev. Lyston Knappenberger, is their director. He started the choir in 1965, but last year lost five of his eight players, when they graduated from high school. He filled the ranks with beginners in the fall. It was almost like starting over again, he told Sunday's audience.

The young people range from sixth graders through the eleventh grade. The "veteran" member is Wendy Barton, a junior, with six years of experience.

Most of the choir members play other instruments as well as handbells. Wendy, and Janice Gustafson, put the spice of variety into Sunday's program, with piano solos.

What happens if a choir member is unable to appear for a scheduled performance? A gap in the line plays havoc with a melody! Pastor Knappenberger paid tribute to some of the "graduates" - Grace Miller, Lois Chitester, John Robert Chitester and Diane Avery - who still serve as back-up players in emergencies.

Regular members of the bell choir are, besides Wendy Barton and Janice Gustafson, Alan Peters, Kris Manelick, Linda Nelson, Gail Miller, Gerry Miller, and Jill Slagle.

First Methodist Bell Choir

Don't Be a Water Waster!

Conserving water is one way the housewife can contribute—and mightily—and conserve our natural resources. Keep a bottle of drinking water in the refrigerator, instead of letting the tap run until the water gets cold. Fix all leaking faucets—upstairs, downstairs, and in milady's chamber. Use your dishwasher for storage until you have a full load...then let the water flow and do the job all at once. If you wash dishes by hand, use a dish-pan, or stopper over the drain. Don't wash every single plate or knife and fork under constantly running water. Remember—these little things help save our natural resources. And if you pay water bills, they'll save you money, too!

Grade School Musicians Promise Bright Future

A packed audience who heard a concert on Tuesday night at the Pittsfield elementary school by a joint orchestra from the three grade schools in the Brokenstraw Valley — Pittsfield, Irvine and Youngsville — went home with the thought that the signs are great for an outstanding Youngsville high school band a few years hence.

The 55 players in the ensemble were fifth and sixth graders. One parent described their rendering of The Star Spangled Banner as "tremendous", and added: "I've heard adult bands do not nearly as well."

Another said "If you shut your eyes you could forget they were just little kids playing. You wouldn't believe the sound that came out of them".

Mr. Albert Lyford is the instrumental music instructor in the Brokenstraw Valley schools. The joint band played for Youngsville elementary children on Monday morning, and for the Pittsfield students on Tuesday morning; the public concert was their "swan song" since the sixth graders won't be there next year.

There were some special numbers. Jill Slagle of Irvine and Danny Miller of Pittsfield, both sixth graders, played snare drum duets that "came off very well" in Mr. Lyford's opinion. Ronnie Smith of Pittsfield was a cornet soloist. A clarinet quintet — of Pittsfield girls, Marsue McIntyre, Jennifer Dean, Candy Glenn, Janet Johnson and Becky Smith — have played for assemblies at other county schools where Mr. Lyford teaches; but they readied three brand new numbers for the public concert.

Tame That Flame!

Saving our natural gas resources is something we all must try to do. So, when cooking on a burner, remember, a high flame is seldom required for long. Use a low one when it will do just as well. Make sure the burners are off - completely off - when not in use (this goes for broilers and ovens, too). Get into the habit of checking before you leave the kitchen or house. Keep the area around your pilot-light clean and free of any foreign matter...keep the pilot-light on, too. And keep little children away from the range....it's not a child's play toy.

Former AFS Student Will Attend Reunion

Takeo Tanase, Youngsville high school's AFS student from Japan during the 1961-62 school year, has sent in his reservation for the Class of '62 tenth anniversary reunion to be held at Venture Inn, Corry, on Saturday, August 12.

"Tak", as he was familiarly known, is remembered as a highly individualistic student. He seemed to have a special affinity for small children, and he would be surrounded by them when he walked through the town. Today, Tak has children of his own - two. His wife and family are expected to accompany him on his return to Youngsville. They will be guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Kirk, of Marsh avenue, Youngsville, who were his AFS parents during his YHS year.

Tak is now a lawyer, and is working towards a doctorate at Harvard University, on a Fulbright scholarship.

All members of the Class of '62 are asked to attend a meeting next Tuesday, May 30, to make further plans for the reunion. The meeting will be at 8 p.m., at the home of Margo Borton Peterson, 478 East Main street, Youngsville. A good many members have not yet been heard from and are urged to make their reservations with Mrs. Peterson as soon as possible.

By RUTH LINDBERG

Hair works different ways for different people, and so it is with comedians Flip Wilson and George Carlin.

Flip gets a lot of mail—much of it from soul brothers and sisters asking why he doesn't wear his hair in the popular Afro. Friends say Flip's hair is about as natural as it can get; and that he will never have those glorious inches of growth on his head. Flip admits he hasn't had a real haircut—just trimmings—since the beginning of his second season with NBC, and his hair is barely a fourth of an inch high.

"But," he says, "my hair has been longer. When I was a poor struggling comic I had longer hair. The shorter I cut my hair the more money I got. So I'm not pushing this hair-growing routine. It's not what's outside your head anyway, it's what's going on inside."

George Carlin, on the other hand, was once a slim, blond, stand-up comedian, complete with tux and white shirt. Carlin says he hasn't seen either one for the past three years. His hair is so long he wears it in a limp ponytail tied at the neck and his beard is approaching the same length. George says his success can be measured by the growth of his hair. It's where he wants it to be and his audiences and fans like him as he is.

Carlin is Flip's guest—along with Joe Namath, Joyce Warner (Miss Black America) and three finalists in the Miss Black America Pageant—in this encore telecast to be seen at 8:00 p.m. on WGR, WJAC and WICU.

"Class of '57" is a troubled trip down memory lane for Ed on this week's episode of "Ironside" at 9:00 p.m. on WGR, WJAC and WICU. Detective Sgt. Ed Brown's (Don Galloway) reunion with his former high school girlfriend turns sour when he suspects she has knowledge about the criminal activities of another classmate. Gambler Bernie Simmons is wanted for assaulting another gambler and is suspected of involving Ed's old girl friend in the "skimming" operation.

"The CBS Thursday Night Movie" on WFBG and WSEE will present "The Bobo," starring Peter Sellers. This movie is about a singer turned matador who tangles with Barcelona's most celebrated courtesan. This movie was directed on location by Robert Parrish.

Sports fans are in for a real treat tonight. At 7:30 p.m. WBEN will broadcast the ABA-NBA All-Star Game, live and in color from Nassau Colosseum in Long Island, New York. Ten all-stars from the two professional leagues will compete among them Kareem Jabbar, Wilt Chamberlain, Walt Frazier, Dave De Busschere and John Havlicek.

Then at 10:00 p.m., the World Heavyweight Championship bout between Joe Frazier and Ron Stander, will be broadcast live from the Civic Auditorium in Omaha, Neb. Frazier is defending his title against Stander, 10th ranked heavyweight contender.

Your Individual Horoscope

By Frances Drake

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars. FOR THURSDAY, MAY 25, 1972

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 20)— Be master of your thinking rather than let it set you off on tangents which get you nowhere. Success can come through new alliances made now.

TAURUS (Apr. 21 to May 21)— Especially favored now: success in handling the affairs of others, personal interests, travel. You can accomplish a great deal under day's influences.

GEMINI (May 22 to June 21)— Keep all things in line, but avoid anxiety or worrisome anticipation of trouble. For the record, you can, with a bit of double duty, turn in an excellent performance.

CANCER (June 22 to July 23)— If all does not go as well as you'd like, take a "breather"—a bit of time in which to put the pieces in place and revive energies. Fresh inspiration and incentive will follow.

LEO (July 24 to Aug. 23)— Avoid jumping to hasty conclusions, and do not hesitate to accept ideas and suggestions from reliable sources. Do not digress from worthwhile aims.

VIRGO (Aug. 24 to Sept. 23)— Business, financial, industrial matters slated for immediate advancement; also for future gains. But take no risks; conservative management stressed.

LIBRA (Sept. 24 to Oct. 23)— Good stellar influences! Make every moment a gem. Project your pleasing personality to make others happier. Intuition should be strong now.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 to Nov. 22)— Concentrated effort will help you hurdle almost any obstacle now. Study propositions and the people behind them. Neither make agreements too quickly nor dally until you lose chances.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23 to Dec. 21)— What you accomplish on this day will have a great bearing in days to come. If you go along in a steady, constructive way, you will accelerate routine and find tasks simpler.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20)— You may now expect a "different" approach from others; also a real surprise. Work consistently on endeavors which bring big dividends. Your prestige increases.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19)— Impulsiveness must be avoided now. Also, emotionalism and extremism. In routine matters, you should do well, especially if you maintain a flexible attitude.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20)— Stellar influences mostly beneficial, but some opportunities may be hidden. It will take a little longer to achieve in certain areas, but don't worry. Just keep trying.

YOU BORN TODAY are endowed with a magnetic personality, a lively imagination and unusual adaptability. Your governing planet, Mercury, bestows mental alertness, versatility and a leaning toward the intellectual. You love travel, music and literature in all forms; in fact, could excel in writing, journalism; would make an excellent reporter, editor or promotion expert. There is a great deal of the dreamer about you, and this may lead to an extraordinary interest in the mystic and the occult. Faults to overcome: Extravagance, moodiness and restlessness which causes you to scatter energies. Birthdate of: Ralph Waldo Emerson, essayist.

Hints from Heloise

Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

Just had to let you know how I identify my day lilies for transplanting after the blooming season.

While the lilies are in bloom, I tag them with the colorful little ties that are twisted around the end of a loaf of bread.

These little doodads are the greatest for twisting around the stems of the plants, using a color to match the bloom. They come in just the right colors for my lilies, which are mostly yellow, orange and red.

I am only interested in the color of the bloom when I am transplanting them, but other information as to name and variety may be written on a small cardboard tag and attached at the same time. The tag should be sprayed with some type of protective coating to keep the information from fading in the elements.

Months later when all the plants look alike, I can look for the color tag on the plant. I now have no trouble placing the lilies exactly where I want them, not having to rely on memory.

LETTER OF THOUGHT

DEAR HELOISE:

I have to shop every week-end before I get the pay check. Money must be held back from the pay check so I can do this. Money is very limited on the amount to be spent on groceries.

A list for groceries is a must. I make it out as the week progresses. Then, right before I go shopping, I check canned goods, paper products, meat, and any other necessities to be sure I've included everything on my list.

When I get to the store, I keep track of every penny that I put into the grocery cart. Something that I do not need right at that time, I tell myself, "I will get that Monday." I find that I take off the list about five items. And, I do not go to the store on "Monday." Know what? We never even miss them.

I also have my husband saying "I'll get that Monday." So it is a pleasure having him with me at the grocery store.

No Monday Shopper

DEAR HELOISE:

I am a widow and I don't care to cook a lot of food.

So I take a ground beef patty or a pork chop and put it on two thicknesses of foil—sprinkle salt and pepper on it, add a slice of onion, and slice up a potato and add this, too.

I give it the old "drug store fold," put it in the oven at 375 degrees for about 45 or so minutes, and it's done.

You have no pots to wash, and, besides that, a salad and possibly a vegetable is all you need.

With a pork chop I sometimes make dressing or, for a change, add a vegetable such as broccoli or cauliflower.

How To Keep Well

Periodontitus

By Dr. T. R. Van Dellen

Before age 35, loss of teeth is caused mainly by dental decay, and after that, by peridontal disease. The latter, one of the most widespread diseases of man, is said to affect 67,000,000 adults in the United States. More than 20,000,000 individuals have lost all their teeth because of it.

Periodontal disease involves all the tissues surrounding and supporting the teeth in the jaws, mainly the gums or gingiva, the alveolar bone that forms a socket around each tooth, and the periodontal ligament that joins the tooth to the bone. An inflammation or irritation of the gums is the earliest sign of periodontal involvement.

Periodontitis is a disease of neglect. It is caused by local irritants in the oral cavity that are correctable and controlable via good dental hygiene. The irritants consist of bacteria that encourage the formation of dental plaque and hard calcified deposits (calculus) that get between the tooth and gum causing inflammation. Materia alba is another common accumulant on the tooth near the gum. It is a yellow or gray-white, pablumlike mass composed of bacteria and cellular debris.

All periodontitis starts in the gums which become red and swollen with a shiny surface that pits on pressure. Bleeding may be provoked by brushing or eating. If untreated, the inflammation spreads from the gingiva, destroys the bony socket, and loosens the ligaments.

Periodontitis is usually painless and progresses slowly. Manifestations include bleeding gums, foul taste in the mouth, pressure between the teeth after eating, and an itchy feeling in the gums that is relieved by digging between the teeth with a toothpick. The gums are discolored with pockets around the roots from which pus exudes (pyorrhea) on pressure with the finger. In time, the ivories spread creating unattractive spaces between the teeth and exposing the roots.

There are a variety of local and surgical treatments depending upon stage of the disease. There is, however, no substitute for prevention.

TOMORROW: Imported Diseases.

Questions on medical topics will be answered by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request.

VICARIOUS SUFFERING

C. writes: My daughter is going to have a baby any day now. She has felt fine thruout the pregnancy, but I have suffered from heartburn. Could the distress be from sympathy for her?

REPLY

Concern—not sympathy. There are examples of the husband and other members of the family who developed morning sickness, but just how much we can attribute to sympathy is a moot question.

DOUBLE CHIN

A reader writes: Why do many slim persons with a thin face and neck develop a double chin?

REPLY

Thin people do not have enough fat to keep the skin filled out and smooth. As a result, wrinkles and a few folds develop beneath the chin. This is more likely to happen when the individual reduces or the skin loses its underlying muscle tone.

SORE SHOULDER

C.A. writes: I have had tendonitis of the left shoulder for 3 months. Heat and exercise have not relieved the pain and stiffness. Is there anything else I can do?

REPLY

No, but your physician may have some suggestions, such as resting the tendon or injections of a corticosteroid drug.

Chase Putnam Will Direct Weekend Production

Although a newcomer to Warren Players, Chase Putnam, director of this weekend's musical production "The Boy Friend", is no stranger to the theater arts.

As far back as junior and senior high school days in Warren Putnam was active in musical and theater productions. At the University of Pennsylvania, where he later earned a BA degree, he was a member of the Freshman Mask and Wig Club and appeared in a variety of campus and fraternity productions.

Chase, who was proprietor of the now-defunct Putnam's Book Store on Third ave., directed a junior high school drama group while teaching at the Tatnall School in Wilmington, Del. He served as production manager for all the school's shows.

While in Wilmington he became associated with the Lyceum Players, a drama group with a heavy accent on Shakespearean plays. During a period of seven seasons he appeared in three productions of "Midsummer Night's Dream", and single productions of "Merry Wives of Windsor", "Taming of the Shrew" and "A Shakespeare Album." In 1965 he also appeared in "Thurber Carnival."

He is teamed with Producer Meredith Johnson and Choreographer Helen McDonald in the creation of "The Boy Friend", along with a host of supporting workers.

Mrs. Johnson, a former president of Warren Players, has appeared in a number of local productions over the years. She has, in fact, served in almost every capacity imaginable both on and off stage. She lives at 103 Memorial pl.

Mrs. McDonald, who also did choreography for "Fiddler on the Roof" earlier this season, is a resident of 202 Redwood st. She has worked backstage on several productions during the past eight seasons and has handled choreography five times.

Anne Mallinson, who will also appear in "Boy Friend", is assisting with the production of the play. John J. Williams, Max Saunders, Ed Bell, Jayne Schneck and Willard Wilson worked on the set design and construction.

Charles Barrett is stage manager. He wil be assisted by Bill Anderson and Gary Anderson. Annette Anderson, Mary Helen Teague, Linda Jacobson, Lucille Masterson and Bonnie Anderson are in charge of costumes for the roaring-20s farce.

Props committee members are Grace Horsfield, Red Walsh, Mary Bancroft and Cheryl Mastrian. Elsa Redding is the bookholder.

Helen McDonald will also serve on make-up, along with Kathy McDonald, Grace Horsfield, Chris Billstone and Margaret Wright.

Jim Senger, Jim Beckley and Lewis Conroy are in charge of lighting.

Music will be provided by Shirlie Wright and Jane Place on piano and Chase Putnam on drums.

"The Boy Friend", starring John Check and Barbara Larson, will be staged Friday and Saturday evenings at 8:30 o'clock at the Beaty Junior High School Auditorium. Tickets are now on sale at the B and B Smoke Shop, Chiodo's Pharmacy and at the Beaty box office for $2.50.

Opening lead: Ten of ♣ South employed information gleaned from the auction and his opponent's opening lead to make a highly unorthodox play in the trump suit which proved essential to the success of his four heart contract.

When West's opening bid of one spade was passed by his partner, South properly reopened the proceedings by making a takeout double. North responded with one no trump. South's jump to three hearts was a distinct overstatement of his values. Unless partner can proceed on his own initiative over a three heart call, it is unlikely that a game will be missed.

West opened the ten of clubs against four hearts and after the dummy was spread, declarer studied the combined holdings at some length and then played North's king. The three of hearts was led at trick two, East followed with the six and South promptly covered with the seven. West was obliged to win the trick with the ace and he returned the nine of clubs. Declarer was in with the jack and after drawing the remaining trumps with the king and queen of hearts, he conceded two diamonds to the opposition and claimed 10 tricks—having lost only the ace of hearts in addition to the diamonds.

In the post mortem discussion which followed, South had the following explanation for his rather extraordinary play in the trump suit. "West's opening lead of the ten of clubs provided some interesting clues regarding the location of the outstanding high cards. If he had held the A-K-Q of diamonds, West would surely have led that suit. East was marked with at least the queen of diamonds—if not the king. Similarly, if West had the K-Q-J of spades, it may be assumed that he would have led the king of spades—so I consigned at least the jack of spades to East, if not the queen.

"The queen of diamonds and the jack of spades gave East a minimum of three points in those suits. If he also held the ace of hearts, he would assuredly have kept West's one spade bid open. Inasmuch as East passed, I felt confident in assuming that West had the ace of hearts, in which case I could not gain by playing the queen when trumps were led from dummy at trick two. My only chance to lose one heart trick was to play East for both the jack and ten.

"If East had split his honors when hearts were led by playing the ten, it would only have simplified matters for me. The ten is covered with the queen and loses to West's ace. Dummy is reentered subsequently with the ace of spades to lead another heart. East's jack can be picked up by finessing the seven and then cashing the king."

BAKED PROPOSAL

SEATTLE, Wash. (AP) — When Lucy Gonzales, who came here recently from Pueblo, Colo., was dining with a boy friend, Daniel Fiat, each of the fortune cookies she opened bore the message: "Will You Marry Me?"

Fiat had gone to a great deal of trouble to make his proposal of marriage. He got a fortune cooky maker to put the special message in 25 of his products. He then had the waiter bring the "loaded" cookies to his table.

Miss Gonzales said "Yes."

Garden Club Members Honored

District VIII of the Pennsylvania Federation of Garden Clubs has bestowed laurels on several Tidioute Garden Club members in recognition of their outstanding service in garden club activities and projects. Those honored Monday night at the Tidioute Garden Club meeting were Mrs. Guy Courson, Mr. and Mrs. John Christy, Herbert Bush and Miss Lois McCloskey.

Mrs. Courson, a charter member and past president of Tidioute Garden Club, has chaired all standing committees, presented outstanding programs, formulated new club policies and innovations. She is known for her artistic flower arrangements and participation in local and county flower shows.

Mr. and Mrs. John Christy received recognition for planning, planting and maintaining the Tidioute Public Library plantings, the flowerbox at the postoffice, and the memorial gardens at the bridge approach.

Herb Bush has been the club's handyman, assisting with the behind-the-scenes work of staging flower shows; he is chairman of the conservation and birds committee; takes care of the litter cans the club places in the business section of Tidioute; and helps with the maintenance of the memorial gardens.

Miss Lois McCloskey, who is now a guest at the Rouse Home, was recognized for photographic and news coverage of garden club meetings, activities and projects.

The garden club currently is busy with plans for a flower show scheduled for next December. This unique show is titled "A Calico Christmas" and all arrangements and articles will be usable in the home or to give as gifts. This will be an unjudged show, produced purely for pleasure.

Mrs. Lester Noll and Mrs. Edna Moore are co-chairmen and have named the following committee chairmen: schedule — Mrs. Courson; registration and reservations — Mrs. Elizabeth Roza; entries and classifications — Mrs. Edward Shanley; staging and properties — Mr. Fay Shaw; hospitality — Mrs. Lucille Brady; publicity — Mrs. Charles Weir; junior exhibits — Mrs. Robert Zorn; cleanup — Lester Noll; door prize — Mrs. James King.

Themes for the various entry classes will be: "Bless the Door That it May Prove, Ever Open to Joy and Love"; "Bless the Hearth Ablazing There With Smoke Ascending Lie a Prayer"; "O Christmas Tree, O Christmas Tree, How Faithful are Thy Branches"; "They Presented Unto Him Gifts, Gold, Frankincense and Myrrh"; "We Gather Together to Ask the Lord's Blessing"; "Toyland" for the junior division and "Carol of the Birds" for the educational division.

Miss Sally Atkin presented a program Monday night on "Oriental Gardening", telling the meaning, background and techniques for this type of gardening. Using her own chrysanthemum plants and other perennials Sally fixed little flower boxes for each member present. Refreshments were served by the host committee, Mrs. Christy, Mrs. Daisy Herendeen and Mrs. Edna Moore.

Mrs. Edward Shanley is conducting a fund-raising activity, the sale of stationery or note paper at the price of one dollar per box. There is a selection of several designs and orders may be placed with Mrs. Shanley.

Mrs. Courson, who is District VIII bird chairman, is in charge of the local effort in the national project of garden clubs "Save the Eagle." Mrs. Courson will appreciate the donation of commemorative stamps which are used in the project to maintain the eagle sanctuary in Florida. Donations of stamps may be made to Mrs. Courson or to any garden club member.

Girl Scouts Stage 'Court Of Awards'

A Court of Awards was held Tuesday afternoon for Tidioute girls in scouting. Junior Scouts conducted the flag ceremony with the following taking part: Christine Storer, Jennifer King, Lisa Craft, Annette Drukenbrod and Paul Ludwig.

Brownie leaders, Mrs. John Mellon and Mrs. Thomas Laubach, presented Girl Scout pins and wings to Brownies who are "flying up" or advancing to the Junior level of scouting.

Junior Scouts gave them the Girl Scout handshake and led them across a bridge, decorated with yellow and green crepe paper, where they were welcomed by Girl Scout troop leader, Mrs. Dale Storer. They were given the troop crest and world association pin and all recited the Girl Scout promise together.

Brownies who will be Junior Scouts next year are Lori Laubach, Peggy Camp, Darla Ludwig, Goldie Hannah, Julie Johnson, Peggy Kelly, Penny Morris and Kelly Sphon.

Junior Scout patrol leaders, Mrs. Bruce Ziegler, Mrs. Paul Craft and Mrs. Howard Raybuck, presented the Juniors with merit badges earned by each girl. The troop of 31 girls earned a total of 140 badges.

Cadettes of Troop 768, Dawn Anderson, Patricia Stewart and Jane Heenan, welcomed the third year Juniors who are advancing to the Cadette level of scouting. These include Christine Storer, Paula Ludwig, Jacki Wolford, Becky Froman, Tammy Camp, Paulette Pascarella, Loretta Gerus and Jennifer King.

All Junior Scouts were asked to march in the Memorial Day parade on Monday, May 29. They are to meet in front of the Vets building at 9:30 a.m., wearing their uniform if they have one. If no uniform, they are to wear dark skirts, white blouses and their Girl Scout pin.

Flag bearers in the parade will be Beth Ziegler and Tammy Camp. Color guards will be Sandy Mellon and Julie Raybuck. They will be accompanied by patrol leader Mrs. Bruce Ziegler and Cadette Scout Charlene Storer.

The girls were informed that there will be a bus to take all Girl Scouts and Brownies to Day Camp, the week of June 19. They will meet at the fire hall every day at 9:00 a.m. All papers for physicals should be turned in no later than June 12.

Following a friendship circle and song, refreshments of fruit punch and GS cookies were served to the scouts and their guests.

Lions' BBQ Saturday

The Tidioute Lions will hold their famous chicken barbecue this Saturday, May 27 at the lot next to the C&M Market.

Serving will begin at 11 a.m. and continue until sold out. Halves and whole barbecued chickens will be available for take-out orders.

The Lions use the proceeds from this event to fund their many community projects.

Calendar Deadline

Anyone who has not been contacted and desires to order one of the Music Boosters Community Birthday Calendars should call Mrs. Edith Yucha, 484-4923, or Mrs. Ellenjean Downey, 484-7700.

Deadline for ordering a calendar is June 1, one week from today.

PTA Holds Last Meet

The final meeting of the school year for the Tidioute PTA was held Tuesday night. The organization will resume its monthly meetings next September.

The scheduled installation of new officers was not conducted because of poor attendance and the fact that the office of secretary remains vacant. It is hoped that someone will accept the post before next fall.

Paving of the playground area is expected to get underway sometime early in June. Contractor for the project is the Western Asphalt Company of Franklin and Tionesta.

Mrs. Mary Alice Redin's grade ten won the room count award and refreshments were served by kindergarten and first grade room mothers, Mrs. James Martin and Mrs. Louis Schwab.

School Menu

Week of May 30-June 1

TUESDAY — Hamburger on bun, French fried potatoes, buttered green bean, chocolate cake, milk.

WEDNESDAY — Pizza, buttered peas, tossed salad, bread and butter, Jello with fruit, milk.

THURSDAY — Frankfurter sandwich, baked beans, relish plate, peanut butter goody, milk.

St. John's Communicants

St. John's Roman Catholic Church in Tidioute held a first solemn holy communion recently. Pictured above is the class with their pastor in the background: first row, l. to r., David Rondinelli, Luke Kitelinger, Neil Schwab, Kelley Voisin, Sheila Mellon, Kelly Kitelinger, Angela Blair; second row, l. to r., Thomas Knight, Steve Kowalski, Timothy McLaughlin, Shelly Morrison, Shelia Ringel, Jaci Check, Margaret Kelly; third row, l. to r. Timothy Jones, Michael Jones, John Ringel, Darlene Kowalski and Mary Emery.

St. John's Church this year, under the direction of its new pastor, Fr. John A. Kuzilla, innovated a new custom for its pre-teens' first holy communion. Beginning last fall, the children were permitted to make their first communion as soon as they were prepared through their own efforts and their assistance of their parents. Thus, the pre-teens made their first holy communion at their own rate of progress in understanding Christian doctrine and practice. At the end of the spring season, on May 6, the preteens made their first communion in a group as a class, as pictured above.

Baccalaureate Slated For Sunday Afternoon

The baccalaureate service for the Class of 1972 will be held at 4 p.m. on Sunday, May 28 in the school auditorium. The Rev. G. Donald McAfoose, pastor of Tidioute First United Methodist Church, will speak on "Declaration of Dependence." The Rev. John A. Kuzilla, of St. John's Church, will give the invocation, lead the Lord's Prayer, and pronounce the benediction.

Mrs. Harold Konkle will be organist for the prelude, processional, recessional, and congregational singing of "For the Beauty of the Earth" and "God of Our Fathers." Marshals will be Patricia Shanley and John McGraw, president and vice president respectively of the Class of 1973.

Commencement exercises for the Class of 1972 will be held in the auditorium on Wednesday evening, May 31, at 8 o'clock. Following the processional, the Rev. Robert L. Zorn, pastor of United Presbyterian Church, will give the invocation.

Melvin G. Keller, president of the Warren County School Board, will offer greetings to the Class of 1972. Nancy Louise Johnson will deliver the salutatory address and Sharon Lynn Snavley will give the valedictory address.

John M. Zavinski of Warren, 1952 graduate of THS, will give the commencement address, titled "The Past-Present of Future." He will be introduced by honor student Karen June Yucha.

Diplomas will be presented by C. Frank Christy, and Ronnie D. Weller. William A. Redin, THS principal, will present the special awards. The program will conclude with the Class of 1972 singing the Alma Mater and the Rev. Zorn pronouncing the benediction. The Warren County School Board central administration will be represented by Dr. J. Blair Logan, director of elementary education.

Retiring Teachers Honored

On Tuesday, May 16, the Tidioute school staff and faculty honored two teachers at a retirement dinner at Pace's Restaurant in Warren. The two retiring teachers are Mrs. Margaret Marshall and Mrs. Albertha Barr.

Mrs. Barr has taught for 25 years in the Tidioute school. During this tenure, she has taught music, English and special education subjects. She was presented with twenty-five red roses from parents of Tidioute students. In addition, Mrs. Barr received a plaque mounted with a golden apple and an appropriately inscribed metal plate. The plate was inscribed as follows: "Albertha G. Barr, 25 years of dedicated service at Tidioute." Mrs. Mary Alice Redin presented the gift to Mrs. Barr and commented on the service Mrs. Barr has rendered to the Tidioute school.

Mrs. Margaret Marshall has had a long and rewarding teaching career. Of her 32 years in the profession, the last three have been spent as second grade teacher in the Tidioute Elementary School. She will always be remembered for her eighteen years as teacher and principal of the Plank Road School. At this last one-room school in Warren county, pupils were well prepared for their transition to Beaty Junior High in Warren.

Mrs. Marshall began teaching in Elk Township, Clarion County, with the first through the eighth grades. Since that time she has had many combinations of the elementary grades. At the Plank Road school she had grades one through six, and after the school district's reorganization, she was classified as an elementary principal.

Mr. Lee Baker, assistant principal at Tidioute, acted as master of ceremonies at the function.

Memorial Day Parade Steps Off At 10 A.M.

The traditional Memorial Day program will be conducted in Tidioute on Monday, May 29 by Elzie Lynch Post 334, American Legion, and Pequignot-Yeager Post 8803, V.F.W. The Rev. G. Donald McAfoose, pastor of Tidioute United Methodist Church, will deliver the address.

Music for the exercises at the cemetery (and for the parade) will be furnished by the Tidioute area school band. William L. Karns will offer the opening prayer and the benediction. "The Star Spangled Banner" and "America" will be sung by all assembled.

G. K. Lodge will recite Lincoln's Gettysburg Address, wreaths will be placed by R. N. Summerton with Paul Thomas calling the roll of honor and George King giving the response. The program will conclude with the salute to the dead by Pequignot-Yeager Post and "Taps."

All area servicemen and veterans are urged to participate in the parade and exercises at the cemetery. They are to meet at 9:30 a.m. at the Vets building for parade formation. The parade will move at 10 a.m., marching to the cemetery for the program there. Joseph C. King will be parade marshal and Lee Copeland will be in charge of the firing squad with the VFW Post providing the colorguard.

Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Cub Scouts, Brownies, 4-H and other organizations are invited to participate in the parade.

Methodist Groups Meet

The Mary Martha Class of First United Methodist Church met at the home of Mrs. William Karns Wednesday afternoon, May 17, with nine ladies present.

Mrs. Gordon Downey presented devotions on the theme "God's Word in our Light," based on scripture from John 8:12 and Matthew 5:16, and closing with circle prayer.

Refreshments were served by the hostess and the next meeting will be Wednesday, June 21 at the home of Mrs. Calvin Montgomery Sr. when a tureen dinner will be served at 12:30 noon.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Yeager hosted the May dinner meeting of the Odds & Ends Class in the church social rooms Saturday evening. There were 20 present for the bountiful tureen dinner which featured baked ham.

Mrs. Charles Ulf was in charge of the devotional period. Using "Thrills of the Season" as a theme, Mrs. Ulf called on various members to name experiences of particular enjoyment or excitement linked to the spring season. Most of those responding listed the awakening of nature, buds, blossoms, new foliage, growing things, birds, insects and the weather.

Mrs. Ulf read scripture verses to emphasize God's plan for the four seasons and a poem, "A Time for Beauty", by Walter Eisenhower. Two hymns were sung, "For the Beauty of the Earth" and "This Is My Father's World." Mrs. Ulf offered prayer to close the period.

The next meeting of the class will be June 17 with a picnic dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Montgomery Sr.

Comedy-Dramatic Film Aired Monday Evening

"For Pete's Sake!", a film credited as "unique in its capacity to reach out to meet the problems of people," will be shown on Monday, May 29, at Tidioute in First United Methodist Church.

The full-length comedy-drama, filmed in brilliant Eastmancolor by World Wide Pictures, will be shown only once, beginning at 7:30 p.m., and is open to the public at no admission charge.

Filmed entirely on location in Denver and in the Colorado Rockies, "For Pete's Sake!" is the story of Pete Harper, a family man and service station owner, who is knocked flat by unexpected problems but finds the strength to stand up again, to face life anew.

"For Pete's Sake!" has been seen nationwide by over three million persons in theatre premieres, and has been cited by one film critic as "the perfect mixture--" it is drama at its boldest, comedy at its lightest, and action at its liveliest. "For Pete's Sake!" is a family film, not only because it is good family entertainment but because, through its storyline, families can see and feel exactly what is needed to develop deeper understanding and build stronger ties."

"For Pete's Sake!" stars Robert Sampson, who also starred in World Wide's "The Restless Ones". Pippa Scott, as Pete's wife, Marge, is well-known for her Broadway appearances and numerous television roles. John Milford and Sam Groom are both familiar to television audiences.

Other featured players include Johnny Jensen as Pete's son, Irene Tedrow as Grandma Harper, and Nicolas Surovy as Skip, the leader of a motorcycle gang.

A cordial invitation is extended to all families of the community by Tidioute United Methodist Church which has made arrangements for this special showing of "For Pete's Sake!" While there is no admission charge, there will be a free will offering to help defray expenses incurred by the Billy Graham Film Ministries.

IN MEMORIAM

IN LOVING MEMORY OF MILTON SCHWAB WHO WENT TO HIS ETERNAL REWARD MAY 25, 1971.

A golden gate stood open,
one year ago today.
With farewell left unspoken,
You slowly slipped away
You suffered much in silence,
Your spirit did not bend:
You faced your pain with courage,
Until the very end,
You tried hard to stay with us,
Your fight was all in vain.
God took you smiling to his loving home
And freed you from all pain.

Sadly missed by Mom, Dad, and sisters.

THE FIAT 124 SPIDER VS. THE PORSCHE 914.

If you're in the market for a sports car under $4,000, you've probably considered the Porsche 914. But you should consider the Fiat 124 Spider, too.

Sure, both cars offer you the important things you want, from a fully-synchronized five-speed gearbox (optional on the Porsche) to four-wheel disc brakes.

But the Fiat 124 Spider has faster acceleration through its five gears. While its dual overhead cam engine delivers nearly 20 horsepower more and over 1200 more rpm's.

And since a quick stop is just as crucial in a sports car as a quick start, you should know that, in tests by Road & Track magazine, our brakes stopped with 50 per cent less fade than their brakes.

There are other good things, too. Like our hand-polished body by Pininfarina of Turin. Our cloth, as opposed to fiberglass, top. Our real wood dashboard.

Beauty, of course, is a subjective matter.

Northwest Planners Review Area Industrial Development

Industrial sites, zones and proposed industrial land uses were discussed Thursday, May 18 at Cross Creek Resport near Titusville when 22 industrial developers and planners met.

Attending from Warren were Robert W. Armstrong, Warren County zoning officer; Dennis L. Whipple, acting planning director and Joseph McAmbley, Warren County Industrial Development committee.

Ned Collander, executive director of Northwestern Pennsylvania Regional Planning and Development Commission (NPRPDC), had on display a number of maps pertaining to the location of industrial sites, industrial zones and proposed industrial land uses in the northwest region. He noted that most zoned areas and industrial sites are located in the Western portion and along major highways or rail lines.

Charles Haeussler, member of NPRPDC, pointed out that the majority of industrial zones in northwest Pennsylvania are quite large, 30 acres or more. He stated this fact has an implication for the types and kinds of industrial plants and industries that can be attracted since large zoned areas tend to lend themselves to development of industrial parks.

The following acreage for industrial sites of 30 acres or more was reported for seven counties in the region: Clarion 256; Crawford 4,608; Erie, 2,048; Lawrence, 1,024; Mercer, 2,560; Venango 256 and Warren, 128. Forest County listed none.

Acreage in industrial zones was reported also: Clarion, 166; Crawford, 2,866; Erie, 21,381; Lawrence 1,780; Mercer, 13,824; Venango 3,283; Warren, 3,584.

Tom Bundy, industrial developer from Erie, stressed the development of the tourist potential in the eastern portion of the region and capitalizing on recreation lands in Warren and Forest counties.

McAmbley, president of NPRPDC, stated industrial focal points should be identified and resource priorities established in those areas.

The group discussed proposed revisions to the economic activity areas in the region and agreed to these changes. If they are favorably acted upon by the State Planning Board, additional geographic areas will be eligible for state Appalachia assistance.

Mrs. Proukou Will Attend Convention

Mrs. Theodore Proukou has been appointed to represent the Warren Chapter of Pennsylvanians for Human Life at the annual convention June 16-18 in Phiadelphia.

The action was taken at a meeting of the chapter's executive committee. Other topics discussed were plans for educating the public and formulation of a newsletter to be out soon to inform supporters of future developments.

Tidioute Men Named Aides

Joseph L. Vicites, Uniontown, Pa., Commander-in-Chief of the Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States, has announced the appointments of David J. Kane and Terry L. Benner, both of Tidioute as National Aide-de-Camp, VFW.

Vicites noted that the appointees are giving their wholehearted support to the internal problems of the nation and to the purposes for which the VFW was chartered by Congress.

Camp Reunion

The YMCA is staging a Day Camp Reunion at 7:30 p.m. today (Thursday) at the "Y."

Highlights of the evening will be the showing of movies of last year's day camp activities and a number of special awards.

The Memorial Day Parade forms at 9:30 A.M., Monday, May 29th, at Union Street and Pa. Ave., W., moving to Oakland Cemetery for the Annual Memorial Day ceremonies. Marine Corp League will have charge of the procession, the American Legion handling exercises at the GAR stand. The VFW, Post 631, will have charge of services at GAR Circle.

Hunters' Fees Must Go Up To Aid Game

A federal survey on the character of hunting and hunters has concluded that sportsmen will have to be willing to spend more money through increased hunting license fees for wildlife habitat or face a shortage of game.

The Census Bureau collected basic data from almost 9,000 sportsmen and projections made by the Bureau and the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service indicate that efforts must be stepped up in habitat acquisition, development and management.

Assistant Secretary of the Interior Nathaniel P. Reed, who heads the Interior Department's programs for fish and wildlife, said, "Sportsmen must be willing to pay as much for habitat through licenses and special taxes as they do for privilege fees and transportation. If not, they will find the rivers empty of fish, the skies empty of birds and the hills empty of game."

Reed points out that money spent for hunting licenses, duck stamps and other permits, which provide for habitat preservation and restoration and wildlife management, is the smallest percentage of hunting expenses.

In Pennsylvania, the relationship between hunting license fees and special privilege fees is badly out of balance, but there has been resistance to bringing the two into line.

Just about the minimum charge to be found anywhere in the state on a regulated shooting ground is ten dollars. Many of the special shooting areas have a twenty-dollar minimum charge. Yet resident hunters currently are able to purchase a hunting license for only five dollars, plus a nominal issuing agent's fee.

The federal survey showed that the other major problem facing hunting is a shortage of available land. Demand far exceeds the supply nationally, and the federal agency says that a far greater percentage of the sportsman's dollar will have to go toward restoring a favorable balance between the amount of public hunting ground and the demand for it.

Several other interesting problems were also noted in the U.S. survey. Sportsmen's clubs' expenditures, including dues, have almost tripled in five years. Transportation mileage has gone up 24 per cent in just five years. Expenditures for items such as guide fees, equipment rentals, etc., have increased almost 50 fold in fifteen years.

Yet during that time, in Pennsylvania, hunting license fees have been relatively constant.

The Pennsylvania Game Commission is well aware of the increase in operating costs, and nearly a year ago asked the Pennsylvania Legislature to increase the cost of all hunting license fees. Non-resident fees were increased, but today's resident hunting license costs the same as it did in 1963.

Understanding Your Boat Prop

Certainly one of the most misunderstood parts of the outboard, and yet one of the most important, is the propeller. Terms which are associated with the prop can also be unclear, such as pitch, diameter and rpm. In an attempt to solve this problem, Evinrude engineers have agreed to explain these terms.

Pitch is the angle at which the blades are attached to the hub expressed in inches of water travel. Ideally, a propeller with an 11 inch pitch should travel through the water 11 inches every time it revolves. During the actual running of your boat, however, the distance is less because of slippage.

Propeller sizes are designed by two numbers such as 10x11. The first number is the diameter, while the latter is the pitch.

As the blade angle (pitch) of the propeller is increased, more power is needed to move the prop through the water. As a result, it is evident that the pitch of the propeller directly affects how fast the engine can turn, and how fast your boat can go.

All outboards are designed to be operated within certain revolutions-per-minute (rpm) ranges. With this the case, it is extremely important that the proper propeller be used to match your boat and load combination.

In actuality, there is no such thing as a standard prop. The propeller which is perfect for a tow boat during water skiing will not be perfect for an identical boat used for fishing. In general, though, a high pitch propeller is used for speed or on a lighter boat, while a prop with a low pitch is used for power on a heavier boat or one carrying a big load.

The propeller is certainly one of the major factors in the performance of your boat. If your rig isn't performing the way you think it should, start by checking the propeller. A change in props can always make a great difference.

Now, Where Can I Go Fishing?

By DON NEAL

Where can I go fishing?

This is the toughest question an outdoor writer has to answer for two reasons. One, if a known hot spot is named and located, the regulars, who consider this stream to be their private paradise, will be ready to assassinate the writer. Two, just to mention such a hot spot in a way that publicizes it, and the fishing pressure becomes so great that nobody catches fish.

For this reason, it's more practical to instruct the stranger on general fishing conditions, plus a few pointers on the various lures that are tops for individual species, and let them seek their own piscatorial bonanza.

Native brook trout can be found in almost every headwater stream in Kinzua Country. Some are better than others, of course, but in general the stream that shows the least evidence of heavy fishing pressure will probably be the best luck. Such streams are hard to find, and I would advise the person searching for one to employ a typo map and seek out those furthest from access roads.

So far as lures and bait are concerned, the native brookies are about the easiest species to please. Worms and minnows are good. As well as spinners wet flies and occasionally dry flies. But keep both the bait and the lures small.

Rainbows, which are to be found in all of our larger streams, will go for the same baits and lures as the brookies, plus such things as salmon eggs, cheese, marshmallows and prepared bait.

Brown trout are a bit more fussy. While they are usually active and will take a nightcrawler readily following a storm when the stream is just starting to color up, their most active time is at night. This is the time when they will hit almost anything, especially artificials all the way from wet flies to jitterbugs. This is about the only time, too, that the lunkers feed with any regularity.

Night time, too, is the best bet in fishing the Kinzua Dam. The walleyes and bass that have been in the deep water all day, come into the shore as darkness falls to provide the fisherman with a lot of sport that just isn't available in the daylight hours. The best bet for both species is a small jig fished slowly along the bottom, although some of the regulars have luck with live bait. Top water plugs aren't to be counted out, either.

Downstream from the dam the river fishing is slightly better in the river during the day than in the dam. But it's still a fact that the walleyes, bass, trout and muskies are more willing after dark than during the daylight hours. However, fair luck can be had, especially on cloudy days, by keeping the bait or lure deep or working the riffles.

Walleyes prefer the deep holes, bass prefer the rocky shoreline, trout in the river are usually in the riffles, and the musky, being a raider, can be found almost at any of these places. Walleyes and bass are more likely to hit a slow moving lure, northern pike and musky the faster moving.

Some sections of the river host schools of large crappies and perch which can furnish the rodbender with some exciting action on light tackle. Small minnows fished on a bobber are best for these species and occasionally small spinner-type lures or jigs are taken readily.

Overall, fishing throughout Kinzua Country could be classed as excellent. Our streams offer a greater variety of species than can be found in other areas, as well as a wide range of fishing conditions. Which means that the fisherman having trouble catching the number of fish he desires should check his techniques and methods, rather than flit from one location to another in an effort to have better luck.

Kinzua Country has the fish and the fishing, the catching is up to our visitors.

July Fourth Festivities:

A Fun-Filled Weekend

For 25 years, the annual highlight of the summer season in Warren has been the Fourth of July Celebration, an extravaganza that combines aspects of the small-town celebrations common in America 50 years ago with a sophisticated entertainment agenda that far surpasses available amusements in larger cities.

The Warren Jaycees, sponsoring the event in this anniversary year, have released a tentative schedule for the weekend, with final plans to be made sometime this week.

The inaugural event in the celebration is the Soap Box Derby, with youngsters aged 10-13 coasting homemade racers down Central ave. for local-level prizes and a chance to compete in the nationwide event in Akron, Ohio. The Derby will be run Saturday, July 1.

On Sunday, July 2, a donkey baseball game is scheduled with some of Warren's premier athletes carrying the respective banners of GTE-Sylvania and Struthers Wells. The game will be held in the afternoon at a site to be determined later.

On Monday, July 3, the county's volunteer fire departments test their skill and get wet in the annual water battle, scheduled for 7:30 p.m.

The annual parade highlights the activities on Independence Day, beginning at 11 a.m. A drum and bugle competition is set for 3 p.m. at Memorial Field in Warren, with fireworks scheduled to conclude the festivities at 11 p.m. on Beaty Field.

A Fun Fair will run all weekend, Friday through Tuesday, at Beaty Field. Also planned is a display of U.S. Army heavy equipment and some military exercises with an aircraft overfly scheduled during the parade.

The entire weekend is a family-style entertainment spectacle that annually draws many visitors and gives many residents a memorable summer holiday.

Area's Organized Sports Interest Entire Family

For those who like organized competitive sports as a spectator attraction, the Warren County area has much to offer.

Perhaps the most popular activity, regularly entertaining crowds in excess of 5,000 people each Saturday night, is auto racing at Stateline Speedway. Located just north of Sugar Grove on the Kortwright road, the half-mile dirt oval features three divisions of competition — new car stocks, sportsman racers and older stock cars, with usually a three-hour program. Upwards of 50 drivers compete and the activity is among the top summertime attractions here.

Warren has fielded an entry in an area sandlot baseball team pitting community teams from the area against each other on Sunday afternoons. Last year, Youngsville joined the league and plans this year call for two county teams in the league, which features some fine young post-high school talent competing on Sunday afternoons. Warren's Memorial Field is one game site and admission is free.

Just about each week night, softball is a predominant activity on better than a half-dozen area diamonds. Attracting players from 16 to 60, the Recreation Softball League a slow-pitch league, features 200 fine players in evening activity that is fun to watch.

Additionally, the league's teams are active in tournaments on weekends. One a 32-team affair, is scheduled to be hosted in Warren over the Memorial Day weekend.

Other sports activities occupy smaller groups, but add up to a lot of activity for many people during the summer right here at home. A horseshoe pitching league tosses on week nights at the Warren County Fairgrounds west of Youngsville, a summer trap shooting league alternates between the various outdoor clubs in the area, and a summer basketball league, playing mostly at Beaty Field, allows the youngest to showcase their talents during the hot months. All these activities are free to spectators.

Golf, with three public courses and one private one, is probably the sport that occupies the most people during the summertime in Kinzua Country. Leagues operate at all courses, and greens-free players are welcome at Jackson Valley near Sugar Grove, Blueberry Hill and Cable Hollow near Akeley. Tournaments —the club championships and a Pro-Amateur in particular —pit the area's best golfers against the courses in some truly fine shotmaking. And the sylvan settings of area courses stimulate the love of the outdoors that is characteristic of most of Warren County's residents and visitors.

Though our area, nestled in the Allegheny National Forest, is thought of mostly as an outdoors paradise, its organized sports provide fun and relaxation for residents and visitors alike.

Sheffield Hosts Own Celebration During Summer

This year, the Sheffield Tournament of Drums, sponsored annually by the Sheffield Volunteer Fire Department, will be held in conjunction with the Northwest Pennsylvania Firemen's Convention during the weekend of July 28.

A host of activities will precede the parade and competition during the week, with a kick-off auction to be held on Saturday, July 22. A donkey ball game will also be held on Sunday, July 23. Details as to the time, place and teams will be announced at a later date. The firemen, have also arranged to bring in a carnival, which will have a large and varied assortment of rides for children and adults, with tentative plans to run the carnival the whole week preceding the parade. The local firemen also plan to sponsor a few stands near the carnival.

The highlight of the week will of course be the parade which is always held on Saturday afternoon, July 29. A drum and bugle corps competition will follow at Sheffield War Memorial Field, with five competing corps and one exhibition corps to participate. Again definite times have not yet been announced.

The main session of the Northwest Firemen's Association convention will be held on Friday, July 28 and other activities on July 29. Representatives of the convention will also take part in the parade.

Novice Hunters Must Attend Safety Classes

Youths who have become 12 years of age since the last hunting season and are now thinking about hunting woodchucks are reminded that they will need hunting licenses before going afield.

In order for a youth under 16 to purchase a hunting license, he must either (a) present evidence that he held a hunting license in Pennsylvania or another state in a prior year or (b) satisfactorily complete a course of instruction in the safe handling of firearms and bows and arrows.

Numerous hunter safety courses are being held throughout the state and youngsters who have not yet completed a course are urged to do so at their earliest convenience.

Actually, woodchucks are fine targets for training youths in the art of hunting. In unhurried fashion, a parent can teach a youngster to develop self-control, to identify his target correctly, to be certain of the backstop, to be considerate of the landowner, to develop sportsmanship, etc.

It also provides an excellent opportunity to teach a youngster the importance of identifying himself to others, primarily through the use of conspicuous colors, such as fluorescent orange, which is strongly recommended for woodchuck, small game and big game hunting.

'Rules Of Road' Can Save Lives

Boating regulations have become a necessity for both safety and enjoyment on the waterways ever since a great growth in boating took place many years ago.

Basic to safety on the water are Evinrude's "rules of the road," which are guidelines that give a direction for action, especially where there is a threat of collision.

Besides your knowledge of local regulations, knowing these rules are important.

1. When two boats approach head on, each driver steers to the right or starboard so that the boats pass port side to port side.

2. When one boat is overtaking another, it must be kept clear of the slower boat.

3. The person to the operator's right has the right of way. If necessary, the operator is required to slow down, stop or reverse to comply with this regulation.

4. Boats leaving slips, wharves or piers have no rights until they are in open water. Proceed with caution.

5. With only one exception, a a sailboat has the right of way over power craft. The only exception is the unlikely situation of a sailboat passing a power craft.

6. Fishing boats have the right of way unless anchored in a channel.

7. Many times common sense must be used when situations do not come under boating regulations.

Muskellunge Legal Game Fish In State

HARRISBURG —Shad, muskellunge, northern pike, pickerel and walleye are stealing some of the limelight away from trout on Pennsylvania's fishing calendar.

The 1972 season on members of the pike family — muskellunge, northern pike, pickerel and Siberian muskellunge opened on all inland waters in Pennsylvania at 12:01 a.m., Saturday, May 6. Also becoming legal quarry at the same time were the walleye, a member of the perch family and considered by many fishermen to be the most delicious eating fish of any that swim.

In reminding anglers of the opening date on Pennsylvania's biggest game fish, the State Fish Commission listed daily creel limits and minimum sizes for these species as follows:

Species	Daily Creel Limit	Minimum Size
Muskellunge	2	30 inches
Northern Pike	2	24 inches
Pickerel	+6	+15 inches
Walleye	++6	15 inches

+Minimum size for pickerel from December 1, 1972, to March 14, 1973 will be 16 inches; daily creel limit reduced to 3.

++Daily limit on walleye from December 1, 1972 to March 14, 1973 is reduced to 3.

Pennsylvania's muskellunge program has been paying off in record numbers and sizes of big fish caught in recent years. Started in 1953, the program has involved highly successful fish culture techniques in hatching and rearing muskellunge fry and fingerlings at the Commission's Union City and Linesville Fish Cultural Stations. Millions of these young fish have been introduced into many waters of the Commonwealth to expand the range and increase populations of these fighting fish.

During 1971, more than 80 big muskies were entered by successful fishermen in the Fish Commission's "Husky Musky Club" which recognizes trophy catches 40 inches or more in length. Largest musky entered in the program last year was a 56-inch, 26¼ lb. trophy caught by Richard Liebold, Box 389, Mars, Pa., from the Allegheny River in Forest County on August 10. Other outstanding water areas which produced big muskies last year were the Susquehanna River in York and Dauphin Counties, French Creek in Erie County, Juniata River in Mifflin County, Conneaut Lake in Crawford County, Pymatuning Reservoir in Crawford County, Tionesta Lake in Forest County, Somerset Lake in Somerset County and Edinboro Lake in Erie County. The Pennsylvania record muskellunge was caught in Conneaut Lake, Crawford County, in 1924 by Lewis Walker, Jr., of Meadville. It measured 59 inches in length and weighed 54 lbs., 3 ounces.

This Is The Life

Snakes Alive!

While many summer fishermen treat themselves and their families to a combined boating-fishing excursion, there is still much to be said for the traditional streamside trout fishing technique popular in Kinzua Country long before the concrete breastwork of the dam stilled the Allegheny's waters into the huge reservoir. Here, a spin-caster watches his lure work its way down through a riffle, hoping to tempt the trout lurking beneath the overhanging tree into a strike.

Are there snakes in Kinzua Country? This is a question often asked by visitors coming to enjoy our outdoor pleasures.

Of course there are snakes in Kinzua Country, some of them the poisonous rattlesnake But the nice thing about the rattler is that he is a gentleman in every respect, and the last thing he wants to do is get within striking distance of a human being.

Once he is aware that there are humans about, he'll be on the move. Sometimes he may get a bit confused and move further into an area of human occupation rather than away from it, but such instances are seldom. A rattlesnake that can be seen in the open, which is usually the case if they move into an occupied area, isn't dangerous. He'll escape at the first opportunity.

However, there are some rules to be followed when a human invades the rattlers domain without giving the snake due notice that he is about to be disturbed.

Never walk hurriedly or run into high grass. A slow pace will alert the snake and give it time to move off.

Never try to pick up anything from the ground unless the area around it is plainly visible without first moving a booted foot or stick around "just to make sure."

Never place a hand on a rocky ledge or grassy stream bank.

Don't open a car door and jump out without testing the area to be stepped in.

Then the most important rule of all—don't let the fear of rattlesnakes ruin your outing. There aren't that many of them. Most persons who have lived in Kinzua Country a lifetime haven't seen one in its natural habitat, and a report from Warren General Hospital, a couple of years back indicated they hadn't treated a poisonous snake bite in 15 years. Actually, if you check the statistics, there's far more chance of dying from a bee or wasp sting than from a rattlesnake bite.

As one oldtime woodhick put it: "If you don't bite them, they won't bite you."

Boating A Bass

Most fishermen eat what they catch. They aren't overly concerned about how a fish is boated since the object is to enjoy their catch at the table. But for some anglers, particularly those who take big largemouth bass (a specie under increasing pressure these days) releasing the fish is more important. If not done correctly, the fish may be injured and die soon after being returned to the water. When this happens, it truly is wasted, for it will no longer provide sport and it wasn't consumed as food.

With small fish it is usually possible to swing them into the boat by raising the rod. This presents no problem until the fish is aboard, but then it may thrash about and become injured. Or, because of the weight on the hook, the jaw may become torn. This invites disease and a slow death.

Some fish can be landed by firmly grasping the lower jaw and lifting. This must be done with one smooth movement. A problem here is that with multi-hook lures there is a possibility of imbedding a hook in your hand if the fish jumps around. A better method is to use a landing net. This supports the fish and allows you to remove the hooks without damage.

A new method, especially good for largemouth bass, is to place your hand under the fish, just behind the gills, and pull up, raising it out of the water. This compresses the internal organs against the nerves along the backbone, temporarily paralyzing the fish.

When releasing a fish, the experts suggest that you place it gently in the water and observe it for a few moments. If there is any doubt about whether it will live, hold the fish upright by grasping it around the tail. Let it recover sufficiently—you can usually tell when by the regularity of breathing and the fish's ability to remain upwright without support —then release it.

Stay Safe Afloat

Pennsylvania's recreational waters will be a little cleaner and safer if 167 ecology-oriented, safety-minded Pennsylvanians redeem their pledge. That's the number who have signed up in a national campaign to work for "safe boats, safe boating and clean waters." Incidentally, men outnumbered the women by more than 2 to 1—117 to 52.

The pledge campaign was the idea of Kelli Herron, a blonde, Erie, Pa., high school girl and was launched with the MFG Boat Company's help at the New York and Boston Boat Shows. Kelli and her assistants manned a booth at the shows and signed up 8,317 people from 30 states and six foreign countries.

All took the pledge: to work for clean rivers, bays, lakes and ocean shores; to follow boat safety rules and work to improve boating skills; to use only safe, sound boats and boating equipment; and to cooperate with others to achieve these objectives.

More than 51.8 percent said they were interested in joining a "take the pledge" group.

To help guide pledgees to effective action, MFG has prepared a booklet that lists private organizations and public agencies with boat safety and ecology programs. It tells where training courses, boat inspections, literature, films and other program materials can be obtained. The booklet also includes safety tips and a suggested "float plan" for boatmen to file before taking off on cruises. MFG also is sending each pledgee a litter bag. Single copies of the new booklet will be available without charge to anyone who writes MFG at Union City, Pa. 16438 — as long as the supply lasts.

"Concern for ecology and safety was not restricted to teenagers," MFG President Richard Morrison reported. "Kelli and her crew found pledgees ranged through every age group all the way to Golden Agers and an overwhelming number were so sincere that they wanted to discuss specific programs for improving the environment."

Morrison expects the movement to grow and said he would help all he could. "Drop us a note about any group you form or join, any projects you undertake," he told the pledge signers. "We'll spread the word to other Pledge people and see what we can accomplish."

Pledge cards yielded some interesting statistics:

1. Among those taking the pledge, men outnumbered women nearly 3 to 1. There were 6,055 men, 72.8 percent and 2,262 women, 27.2 per cent.

2. Asked to name their favorite form of boating, fun pledgees named more than 20 activities with fishing first (22.5 per cent), sailing second (20.3 per cent), water skiing third (14.5 per cent) and cruising fourth (5.8 per cent).

Though some pledges came from as far away as Alaska, Sweden and Japan, the bulk, as expected, were from the northeastern states. The largest contingent to "Take The Pledge" came from Massachusetts—a total of 3,317. New York State was next with 2,652; then New Jersey was 1,076; Connecticut with 470; New Hampshire with 196; Pennsylvania, 169; Rhode Island, 87; Maine 81. The remaining 269 who took the pledge are scattered through another 22 states.

Reservoir A Boating Mecca

By BOB CLEVER

Boating in Kinzua Country isn't limited to the waters backed up by the Kinzua Dam, but that's where several hundred thousand and increasing numbers, head each summer.

Crafts of all descriptions can be seen at Wolf Run Marina and at Onoville in New York State and the sight is similar at the Forest Service launching ramps along the 90-mile shoreline.

One can get an idea of the popularity of boating by watching activities at Wolf Run Marina.

You can see anything from a 30-foot seaworthy cruiser to a 10-foot sailboat; from a craft powered with a 100-horse engine hauling skiers to a 30-pound canoe powered by paddles and muscle.

Some are built for speed and comfort; some strictly for speed and some for comfort alone.

For comfort, there's house boating. It is becoming an Allegheny Reservoir way of life. The largest you will see at the marina is 47 feet long and costs a mere $14,000. But this has all the comforts of home and more. The price range for these homes on pontoons is from $6,000 up.

The less affluent get the same effect with a much smaller investment. They buy pontoon boats with a canvas-covered area and haul out the lawn chairs and lounges for the comfort medium. These can be had from about $2,500 to $5,000.

The cabin cruiser is epitome of power boating and there is one built for just about everybody's pocketbook. They are powered by anything from a 35-horsepower outboard to a 225 horsepower Chrysler marine inboard engine.

There is good access to the waters of the reservoir at Wolf Run Marina and at a charge Onoville, or at the Forest Service launches, free of charge.

Forest service launches are located on the Kinzua Arm at Kiasutha, Elijah and Dewdrop. Of the three, Kiasutha and Elijah are designed for the larger power boats. Facilities are somewhat limited at Dewdrop. On the main reservoir, launches are located at Roper Hollow and Webbs Ferry on the west bank and at Willow Bay on the east bank.

Because of the depth of the reservoir, boaters are relatively safe at summer pool as long as they stay at least 100 feet from shore. There is a fast drop-off from the shoreline except in the bays, such as Sugar Bay, Hodges, Cornplanter, Billy's and at the upper end of the Kinzua Arm.

Speed buoys must be observed on the Kinzua Arm and on the entrances to these bays. These are placed by the Pennsylvania Fish Commission. The PFC also enforces a regulation limiting the speed of boats near small craft and fishing craft so there is no danger of swamping the smaller boats in the wake of a larger one.

Sailing vessels are not as prominent on the reservoir as the power craft. This can be attributed to conditions of wind. The direction of the wind and the steadiness of that wind is often variable because the lake is surrounded by ridges and valleys. But sailers contend there is no finer way to tour than under the quietness of the wind-blown canvas.

Canoeists can often be seen traveling the full length of the reservoir as they proceed downstream on a float trip. Canoes may be portaged around the dam with relative ease, as a roadway has been made available by the Corps of Engineers for this purpose.

The summer flow of the Allegheny River downstream limits the size of boats that may float as far as Pittsburgh. Canoes, therefore, ply these shallow and at times swift waters with little interference from larger craft. Rubber rafts often join the canoes in enjoying the pleasure of float trips.

There are numerous islands where camping is permitted overnight and where floaters may stop for shore lunches and dinners.

Private campgrounds at Tionesta and above Tidioute along the river also cater to the downstream travelers.

Canoeing is also popular on Conewango Creek and Tionesta Creek. The less adventuresome find bobbing on the placid waters of Chapman Dam a pleasure.

Boating is "in" —and there's plenty of it and a variety of it in Kinzua Country.

Campers Crowded, But Still Coming

By BOB CLEVER

Camping is so fast becoming a popular pastime that private and public campgrounds cannot be built fast enough to meet the demand.

Overuse of the area by campers has become a concern on the Allegheny National Forest.

This year, to protect certain areas from environmental damage due to excess pressure, the Forest Service is restricting camping to designated areas.

For those who seek wilderness camping, without the comforts of home, but with all the pleasures of nature, boat-in camping on the Allegheny Reservoir is the ultimate.

The Forest Service has designated areas at Morrison Run on the Kinzua Arm and at Pine Grove, Handsome Lake and Hooks Brooks on the main arm of the reservoir. These campsites are available on a first-come, first-served basis. There is access to pit toilets and to drinking water, but the comforts end there. Camping is permitted only at these and other designated areas.

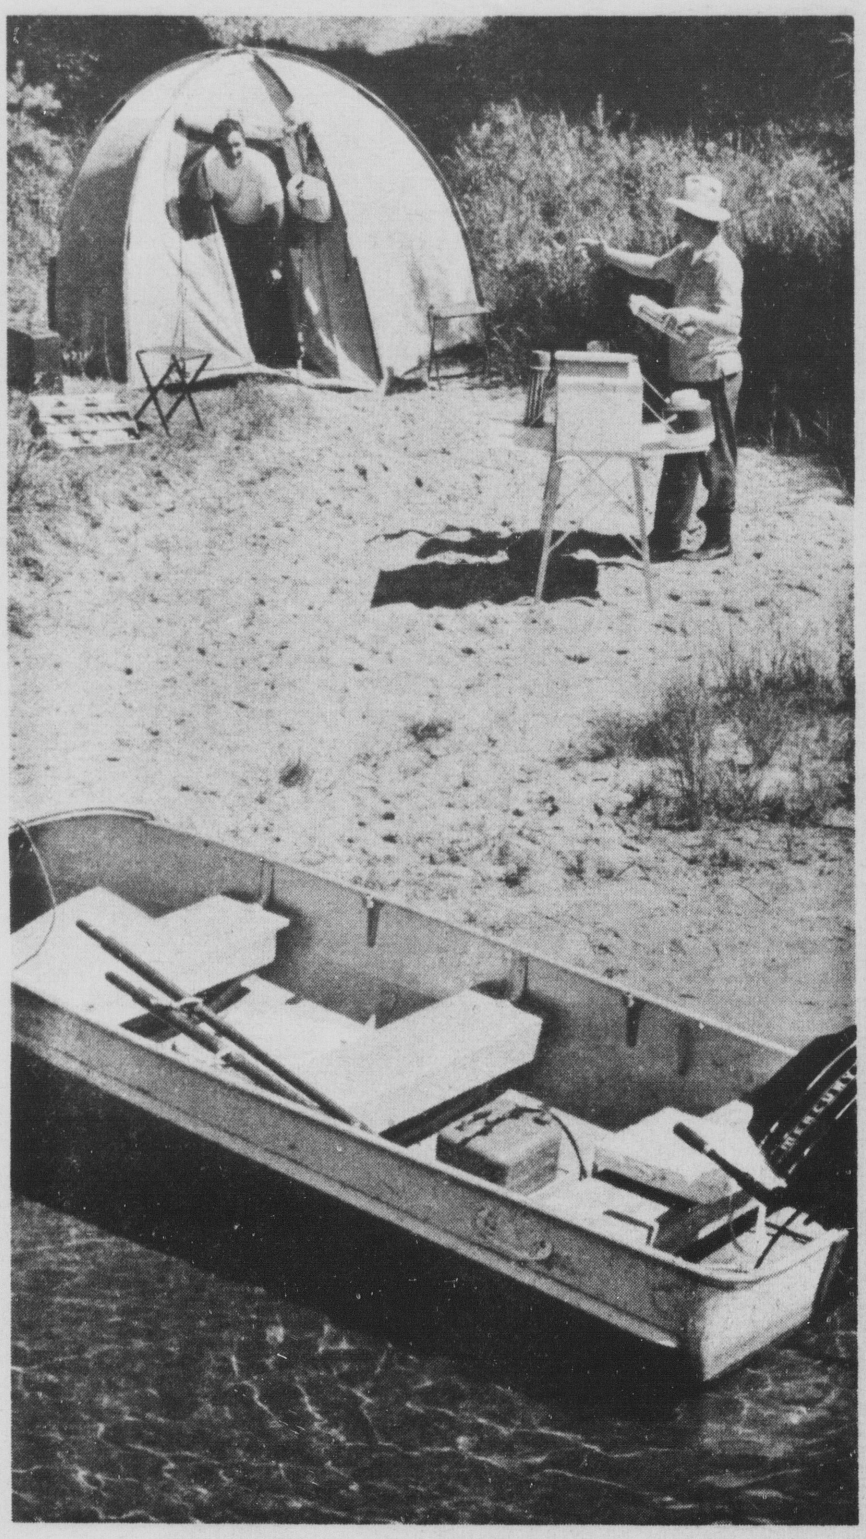
There are more sophisticated facilities for campers on the Allegheny National Forest, with the more plush areas to be found at the private sites. The stay is limited at the Forest Service facilities to two weeks and there is a nightly charge.

On the reservoir, there are sites available by car at Red Bridge, Kiasutha, Dew Drop and Willow Bay.

There are also Forest Service campsites throughout the forest. Information regarding these may be obtained at the Forest Serivce information booth on Rt. 59 above the Kinzua Dam or at the information centers at Marienville, Tionesta or Warren. In Warren, the center is on Pennsylvania ave. west and is operated by the Kinzua Dam Vacation Bureau. The center is Marienville on Rt. 62 is operated by the Marienville Area Civic Association. Tourist information is distributed by the West Forest Businessmen's Assn. at member houses.

State operated camping facilities are located at Chapman Dam off Rt. 6 east of Warren near Clarendon and at Cook Forest State Park south of Marienville off Rt. 62.

Wherever the camper goes in Kinzua Country, he will find the effort is being made to meet his every need, but he will also find the inconsiderate camper is not welcome.



Compact Camping

Today's modern, compact camping equipment makes it easy for these fishermen to carry all the equipment they need in their boat for a combined camping and fishing trip.

Great River Race

Festooned with inner tubes, rivers across the country are beginning to bob up as sites for oddball races. While the Allegheny so far has hosted the more conventional contests such as canoe races, rafts ranging from this homemade design on the Chattahoochee River to elegant pontoon boats are rapidly gaining in popularity.

Trappers Report Beaver Harvest

Pennsylvania trappers harvested 3,382 beavers during the trapping season this year, according to figures compiled by the Game Commission.

The 1972 harvest was higher than the 2,672 taken last year and the 3,317 trapped in 1970.

Although Pennsylvania's prime beaver range is in the northern part of the state, the flat-tails were taken in 45 counties this year.

Crawford County was the top beaver producer this year after placing second for the two previous years, yielding 416 pelts. Wayne County, the leader for the past two years, slipped to second place this year with 413 beavers. Susquehanna County was third with 270 and Erie was fourth with 193.

A rough breakdown of the harvest by weeks of the season follows: first week, 42 percent; second week, 25 percent; third week, 13 percent; fourth week, 17 percent.

This year the beaver season was extended for one week in Wayne County and 56 were taken during the seven days in that country.

An estimated 1,800 trappers participated. Of these, 1,551 were successful. Records show 480 trappers caught one beaver, 434 took two, 505 trapped three, 32 harvested four, 29 caught five, and 41 took six.

Check Your Rig During Summer

How does a full season of uninterrupted boating fun sound? Well, it can be accomplished by simply checking your rig periodically to make sure that a safe, fun outing is insured the next time you take your boat out.

Evinrude Motors suggests that the boat, motor, trailer and all related equipment should be fully inspected regularly. At mid-season, however, it's best to go a little further and examine your rig closely.

If the boat has remained in the water for a number of weeks, the hull will probably become fouled with marine growth. This fouling has a great effect on your boat's performance and speed. The hull, consequently, should be scrubbed periodically or washed down after each boating trip.

Also at mid-season, it is a good idea to remove all spark plugs. They should be inspected and cleaned, and replaced if necessary. This applies even if the engine has not been used much. In addition, check the fuel system—tank, lines, carburetor and fuel filter to make sure they are free from foreign deposits.

Inspect the lubricant in the lower gear case to see that it is free of water and air bubbles, and change it if necessary. Your owner's manual will list other points that require mid-season lubrication.

The propeller is also an important item to check, so make sure it is not overlooked. If the prop is nicked or bent, it should be repitched or replaced.

With everything now in shipshape condition and your rig healthy again, you will be all ready for an enjoyable and exciting boating season ahead of you. Problems will remain non-existent or minimal as long as everything has been checked and then re-checked.

Water Skiing Takes Two

Teamwork is the essential ingredient which leads to a successful water ski ride. The teamwork between the skier, driver and observer is always important, and to make the job of communication and understanding easier, Evinrude has supplied a few tips that will insure safety and fun throughout the ride.

The first job begins before anyone has reached the water. The skier, driver and observer should compare notes in detail before the ride to insure an understanding when the run actually begins. The three must make sure that they understand the six important hand signals and their meaning.

The take-off is the most important part of the water ski run. The driver should position the boat so that he will be able to follow a straight course. This will allow the skier to gain his balance before having to execute a turn. Also, when the skier yells "Hit it," the driver should be ready to take off, as the skier has requested. Use enough throttle to make sure the skier is pulled quickly to the surface.

Turns are another enjoyable part of the run if they are executed well. Always avoid abrupt maneuvers. When turning, swing wide, especially if the skier is on the inside of the turn.

Also, the driver, observer and skier should all acquaint themselves with state and local regulations governing water skiing. Many areas have "sunrise to sunset" rules only.

In general, however, the most important idea to keep in mind is to stay alert. The driver must always be looking out for any obstructions or congestion in front of the boat. Many times the skier is executing turns or tricks and does not see hazardous areas coming up. It's the driver's responsibility to avoid piers, swimming beaches, shallow water and weed-choked areas.

Time To Water Ski

Cheered on by two pretty observers in the tow boat, a slalom skier puts on a spray-throwing demonstration. The skiers have plenty of wide-open room in the center of the Allegheny Reservoir, though they are asked to consider bank and boat fishermen when their wakes cut close inside the bays and banks of the mountain lake.

Coolers Preserve Food, Drink On Board Boats

Do you like to eat and drink when on trips? Well, you'll probably get even hungrier and thirstier when out on your boat during a hot summer day. There just seems to be something about the sun and water—they're usually good for the appetite.

More and more boatmen now are carrying small coolers aboard their boat just in case the hunger pains begin. These coolers serve the purpose for both food and drink, and keep both cold and fresh.

The most common snack aboard boats is usually a sandwich, but unlike the soggy sandwiches in a lunch bag those in the cooler stay crisp. Meats, cheeses and other materials used to prepare snacks can also be kept fresh in the cooler.

Breads, cakes and cookies should be kept in tight containers and then placed in the cooler, where they stay fresh and retain their flavor.

Utensils carried on board should not be sharp, remind the folks at Evinrude. There are plastic glasses, plates, knives and forks that are shatterproof and easy to clean. If paper plates and cups are used, dispose of them in proper waterfront receptacles.

Often forgotten but certainly valuable to bring along is a bottle opener. A combined bottle-can opener should always be aboard.

Fishing Now Top U.S. Sport

If someone were to ask "What's the national outdoor sport?" you'd probably answer baseball. Right? Wrong! Fishing is America's favorite outdoor activity. It attracts more participants than baseball does spectators. Actually, more than 60 million persons fished last year and many of them spent a great deal of time at their favorite sport.

Fishing is a family affair. Everyone from the youngest to the oldest can participate and have fun. All it takes is some simple equipment and the desire. Here are some tips from the Mercury outboards outdoor experts that will be helpful to "first-time" fishing families.

Don't spend a lot of money on tackle that you might not use. For youngsters, nothing beats a cane pole, stout line,plastic or cork bobber and a can of worms for bait. They'll enjoy the simplicity as they learn to fish. Rig the line so it's a few inches shorter than the pole is long, teach them to hook their own worm, put them at a corner of the boat and they'll have a great time!

Older children might want to try more sophisticated methods. A good rig for them consists of an inexpensive closed face spin-casting reel, and a light-action rod. Low priced matched kits are available. For lures, choose a spinner or two, some top water plugs and add a couple of bass-sized popping bugs. The latter cast easily and can be relied on to provide action when all else fails. Also, include a few hooks and a bobber, in case they want to try bait fishing.

For yourself, select a medium action, medium priced spinning or spin-casting outfit, or fly fishing rig. Check with a knowledgeable tackle dealer and let him advise you.

Part of the task on the intial outing is to get everybody interested. The Mercury staff suggests that the first trip be taken to a nearby lake where panfish (bluegill, sunfish, bream, crappie) are abundant.

Capture Your Fish On Film

Lift the fish...now smile...hold it...CLICK! —and another picture is recorded for the family album. But was it really what you want to show, or will it look like all the other fish holding photographs you've seen?

Chances are that unless some thought was given to composing the picture before the shutter was released, you're not going to capture the scene as you experienced it.

Photographing your family's fishing, boating and other outdoor fun can be a rewarding hobby and Mercury outboards' recreation specialists have found that almost any camera is suitable for general outdoor photography. In fact, they learned that knowing how to compose a scene is more important than having a lot of sophisticated equipment.

Consider the fish holding scene, for example. Why not show the fish being netted from a boat? Capture the action as the net is lifted—being sure to include the fisherman, of course. It's more interesting than a static picture where the subject holds a dead fish in front of him and stares straight into the camera. Or, have the angler grasp the fish by the lower jaw, raise it to eye level, looking at the fish and smiling. Then he can look at the camera and smile again for another interesting shot!

Want photos of the youngsters running the boat? Simply move in close on one side while he's at the wheel. Have the subject hold his head erect and look straight ahead. A girl should let her hair down so that it streams back in the breeze. Frame the picture so that it shows the subject, the wheel, part of the windshield and some water. That's all you need to make the scene complete.

To add interest to a boating scene, shoot into the sun catching sparkles of light on the water and silhouetting your subject in the foreground.

The Mercury staff suggests that when taking photographs of people in action you move in close, fill the frame, and make your subject feel at ease. If you are not satisfied with the first effort, try the same pose again. After all, you want action and interest, not dead pan shots.

Colorado Spinner For Trout

Are you a rainbow trout enthusiast? If so, don't fail to give the time-proven Colorado spinner a fair trial on your favorite rainbow water. The success you will have may surprise you.

After all, the Colorado spinner was developed to appeal to rainbows in their original habitat, and evidently things haven't changed as the species was moved east. These acrobatic performers still seem to have an irresistible urge to "kill" every Colorado blade that comes with their sight.

And don't get the idea that this type of spinner will only take rainbow trout. Ted Trueblood, noted author, and as close as you can come to a professional sport fisherman, doesn't hold the effectiveness of this lure to any particular species of trout. He claims the Colorado is the best trout bait going, barring none. And as Ted has fished trout all over the world with all kinds of lures given to him on a trial basis, his word should be worth something.

For Kinzua Country fishing, a size 1 would be ideal for the smaller streams, a size 2 for streams such as Kinzua Creek, Brokenstraw and the Tionesta. Size 3 would be the best choice for the river where the attractiveness of this lure seems to appeal to bass, northern and muskies as well as trout and the larger perch and crappies.

A smaller spinner blade attached to the hook as on the flicker-type lures is a definite advantage, but not a necessity.

The lure is fished to best advantage by casting across stream and allowing the current to sweep it in a wide arch. Especially in streams where there is a lot of rock cover.

If there is a single artificial lure that the fisherman can depend on to get him tiptop action from almost any game fish species, it's the jig. Especially locally where everything from perch, crappies and trout to bass, northerns and muskies hit the lead-heads as well or better than almost any lure one could name.

This is a fact almost all experienced fishermen will readily admit. And they will tell you that the only reason they aren't fishing jigs in preference to other artificial lures is they can't afford to lose them.

This is easily understood if the fisherman doesn't make his own. To be effective, jigs have to be bumped along the bottom, usually the slower the better, which means that they get hung up a lot and a few hours fishing can cost the angler a "pocketful" of his favorite creations firmly attached to the rocky bottom. With jigs retailing at prices from 45 to 85 cents apiece, only the wealthy can afford the over-the-counter kind for regular fishing.

However, most confirmed jig fishermen make their own at a cost of less than a dime apiece. A mold, some jig hooks, and almost any kind of tail material is all that is needed. The lead for the heads can be had free or at low cost from various sources.

The jigs used for perch, crappies and trout are usually small. Bass, northerns and muskies take larger sizes. Although sizes 4 and 6 can be used successfully for all species.

Body material can be bucktail, maribou, nylon or various hairs.

It has only been in the last few years that the jig has regained popularity in freshwater fishing, although it has been a favorite lure for salt water fishing for many years. And in tracing the history of this popular lure, most writers will state that its beginning dates back to the Japanese feather of a couple of centuries ago. That it originally was a salt water lure. But the fact has been established that the Indians used jigs on this continent long before the coming of the white man, and they were fished in the manner of the modern Canadian dipping jig.

Bone fish hooks which have been found along the shores of the Allegheny River could have been hair-covered and fished as jigs a considerable number of years ago. And there's a possibility jig fishing was just as productive for the red-skinned angler of that day as they are for his modern counterpart. For there's no question about it—jigs will catch fish!

Trout Tremble To Take Taste Of--Stickworms!

By DON NEAL

Do Kinzua Country trout have any preference when it comes to natural bait? You can just bet they do. And if you talk to the oldtimers who have experimented with just about anything and everything in the bait line they're most likely to tell you that the items "ain't" garden hackle, nightcrawlers, or even minnows.

It's just about ten to one that the first natural bait they'll name is the stickworm. Not used to any great extent by modern anglers, this caddis fly larva was the ace in the hole for all the oldtime greats. When the fish were touchy about hitting wet flies (long before dry flies were in general use), a size 14 hook with a caddis worm attached soon replaced the feathered creations. And in most instances, Lady Luck smiled.

But the art of fishing the stickworm is a tricky one. Whether the bait is fished sticks-and-all or the worm removed from its case, it's most produtive when bumped along the bottom. Some of the best insisted that a small bb shot was a requirement. Others wouldn't think of using one. They cast their bait well upstream and let the current carry it to the bottom.

Stickworms aren't hard to find. Sometimes they will be attached to rocks in the stream and can be picked easily. But if they aren't out in plain sight, the little eddies where woodland debris gathers will yield enough bait to keep the angler going. A handful of debris should contain anywhere from two to six stickworms.

It's also best to fish the stickworm, either bare or in the case, on a long leader with an extra fine tippet. In fact, most stickworm fishermen in the good old days used diamond-drawn gut tippets in the 4X or 5X sizes.

Another favorite of the "early day" troutster was the grub found in rotting pine stumps, or those to be found by tearing the bark off a decaying log. These, however, were seldom fished as deep as the stickworm. As a rule they were allowed to respond to the will of the current, floating well up at times, or bumping the bottom if the current carried them there.

Yes, Kinzua Country trout do have a preference when it comes to natural bait. And today's angler would be well advised to take a tip from the boys who made a specialty of fishing natural bait when this art was in its prime. A stickworm or a piney grub could spell success on a day when other baits and lures fail.
